BUILD YOUR NEW CHURCH OR HALL ON VERSATILITY AND UNSHAKABLE STOCKS ECONOMY

Catholic Church of the Assumption, Southampton.

These days a church has to be a great deal more than a church.

It has to be a social centre too.

Even a sports hall.

But who do you go to — a conventional builder, or Stocks?

Stocks will build you a church or hall cheaper than any conventional builder, and can complete the job in half the time.

And the modular Stocks system is infinitely variable.

Founded on economy, versatility and permanence your new church building will be individually designed — modern or traditional style.

What's more the exclusive Stocks package deal takes all the work and worry off your hands — right through from design to decoration.

Remember Stocks — the unshakable one.

Send now for colour brochure featuring actual case histories and details of how Stocks can bring you considerable savings on your new church building.

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND

THE HIERARCHY OF SCOTLAND

I

FROM THE EXTINCTION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1603 TILL ITS RESTORATION IN 1878

The ancient hierarchy ended with the death of James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, at Paris on 24th April, 1603, aged 86.

Rome showed little interest in Scottish affairs in the years following the reformation. From 1598 to 1621 Scottish Catholics were nominally subject to the English archpriests but there is no evidence that they concerned themselves with their Scottish subjects. The appointment of the first English vicar apostolic, William Bishop (1623-1624), was of a different order since his jurisdiction was episcopal and included Scotland. In a petition to Gregory XV, the few Scottish secular priests still on the Continent appealed to the papal bull, Cum universi, dated 13th March 1592, which declared the Scottish Church subject only to the Roman see; and the point was conceded. Nevertheless, the brief in 1625 appointing the second English vicar apostolic, Richard Smith, again included Scotland but since Smith's stay in England was short and he had left by 1631 the issue of jurisdiction did not have to be pursued. The work of the Irish Franciscan mission in the Highlands and Islands was the main burden of the missionary effort in Scotland during these years; and it was not until 1650 that a group of Scottish seculars met in Paris under the leadership of William Ballantine to consider what should be done. Their names should be recorded:

Dates of events which occurred in Scotland before 1752 are given in Old Style while those which took place in European countries before 1752 are expressed in New Style. Consecrations qualified by the phrase "in secret" are those for which extraordinary measures were taken to conceal both the event and the news that it had taken place

William Ballantine, James Crichton, William Leslie, Thomas Lumsden, John Smith and John Walker. They reached two important conclusions: to send William Leslie to Rome as agent for the Scottish secular clergy; and to petition Propaganda for the incorporation of the clergy into a missionary body, adequately subsidised by Rome. This was done by a decree of the Congregation de propaganda fide, dated 13th October, 1653; and it is to Ballantine that the credit for this first step is due.

PREFECTS APOSTOLIC

1. William Ballantine: born 1618, son of Thomas Ballantine (or Bannatine), minister of North Berwick, and Margaret Cockburn; brought up as a Presbyterian in Douglas where his father was incumbent from June 1621; educated University of Edinburgh (matriculated 1635, but left without graduating, presumably in 1636); received into Catholic Church, probably at Paris, date unknown; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 1641, and took the oath, 1st November; "factus ob infirmitatem citius sacerdos," 3rd December 1645; left the College, 15th March 1646; prefect of studies at Scots College, Paris; arrived in Scotland, "immediately before the Hellish Murder of the Best of Kings" [30th January 1649]; returned to Paris, 1650, and arranged meeting of six Scottish priests at which it was agreed that he and John Walker should petition Propaganda for the appointment of a prefect and missionaries with subsidy and that William Leslie should go to Rome as agent for Scottish secular priests; appointed prefect, 13th October 1653; arrested at Rye, Sussex, England, September 1656, imprisoned until July 1658, released on personal order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell, with a gift of £60 to take him to France; returned to Scotland, 18th May 1660; died at Elgin, 2nd September 1661, and is buried in the Huntly aisle, Elgin Cathedral, Moray; author of A preparation for death or, The practice of dying well (2nd edition, 1715).
2. Alexander Winchester: born at Garmouth, Moray, c. 1625 [parents' names unknown]; studied for four years at Rheims and for four further years under the Jesuits at Dijon; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 27th May 1651; ordained priest, 21st May 1656; left College, 1657 [at a meeting of Propaganda, 3rd September 1657, described as a member of Scots College in Rome who had just finished his studies]; appointed prefect 12th June 1662; school with 60 pupils established on Skye, c. 1663, by Ewen McAllister, schoolmaster, but subsequently driven out and re-established with 24 pupils in Glen Garry, 1665; absent in France, 1668-1672, during which period John Walker substituted as prefect but was not formally appointed as such by Propaganda; apostolic visitation of Scotland by Alexander Leslie, 1677-1680, with report submitted to Propaganda, January 1681; proposed by John Leyburne, vicar apostolic of England, to Propaganda as bishop for Scotland, 19th February 1686; Dean of Chapel Royal, Holyrood, 1687; escaped north to Gordon Castle at the Revolution in 1688; resigned July 1697; died at Banff, 14th January 1708, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Tynet, Moray. [There is little prospect of discovering Winchester's real name. The parish register for Urquhart in the presbytery of Elgin, which includes Garmouth, has nothing earlier than 1647. During his life he was known under many aliases, especially that of Dunbar; there is a Nicholas Dunbar, a merchant of Moray, included in the list of Catholics in Prefect Ballantine's report to Propaganda in 1660. Clapperton, however, says that his father's name was John Gray and implies that he was born in 1629. "Winchester" is a north-east of Scotland name, pronounced "Winster", and it is in the latter form that his name appears in the Scots College register and in the ordination registers of the Roman vicariate.]

In practice the prefecture apostolic covered only the Scots-speaking parts of the country. From 1612 to 1647 Gaelic-speaking Catholics in the Hebrides and Western Highlands of Scotland were ministered to by priests from the Irish Franciscan mission who were formally commissioned in this work by Urban VIII on 4th September 1623. At first they worked from the Irish Franciscan College of St. Anthony, Leuven, Belgium, but in 1626 they were granted as their headquarters the friary at Bonamargy, County Antrim, Ireland, traditional burial place of the MacDonnells of Antrim, descendants of the Lords of the Isles. The Irish spoken by these missionaries was understood by the people of the Highlands and Islands. The most effective period of their work was during the years 1624-1637. Although Patrick Hegarty worked from Bonamargy as prefect of this mission from 1631 to 1647, he did not visit Scotland during this period and the priest who spent the greatest number of years on the mission was Patrick Brady who laboured, chiefly in Sutherland, from 1619 to 1637. The last priest to leave was Cornelius Ward in the summer of 1637. Although the mission was formally re-established on 22nd January 1647 under Edmund McCann, no details of this new enterprise have come down to us and there is no evidence that any missionaries ever reached the Highlands and Islands.

Further attempts to carry on this mission were made by the Vincentians, of whom the best known is Francis White, "a truly Apostolic man," who was sent to Scotland by St. Vincent de Paul in 1654 and who worked in the West Highlands until his death on 28th January 1679. On 20th April 1665 and 20th September 1666 Propaganda in Congregation considered requests from the prefect, Alexander Winchester, that Irish-speaking priests should again be sent to the Highlands. It was eventually decided by Propaganda that a separate prefect apostolic for the Highlands and Islands should be provided and, on 17th September 1669, St. Oliver Plunkett, nominated only two months earlier to the archbishopric of Armagh, Ireland, was appointed additionally to this office and continued in it until his martyrdom in 1681.

THE VICARS APOSTOLIC OF SCOTLAND

The report on the state of the Mission requested in 1677 by Propaganda, prepared by Alexander Leslie and presented by him to the Congregation in January 1681, recommended, inter alia, the appointment of a general superior for Scotland, with authority over both seculars and regulars. At their meeting on 4th March 1681, Propaganda accepted most of Leslie's proposals but took no action on the nomination of a bishop. However, the disarray in which the Church in Scotland found itself after the "Glorious Revolution" of November-December 1688 and the subsequent triumph, by the settlement of 7th June 1690, of presbyterianism over episcopalianism as the form of Church government in Scotland confirmed the need among Catholics for a single episcopal superior towards whom all could look for leadership and support.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XII approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic for Scotland under a titular bishop (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 37v) and on 27th July 1694 Thomas Nicolson's name was proposed by Propaganda in Congregation for the appointment ["per tale Ministerio D. Tomaso Nicolson, sacerdote scozzese antico e benemerito Missionario il quale ha qualità, dottrina e costumi ecclesiastici com'è stato rappresentato più particolarmente all'Em. Prefetto"] (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 130v/131r). On 24th August 1694 Innocent XII approved the appointment of Thomas Nicolson as first vicar apostolic.

1. Thomas Nicolson: born at Birkenbog, Banffshire, c. 1645, son of Thomas Nicolson of Pitmedden, Aberdeenshire, and Elizabeth Abercromby of Birkenbog; brought up as an Episcopalian; educated University of Aberdeen (matriculated 1660); regent [i.e. professor], University of Glasgow, 1666-1682; received into Catholic Church, 1682; visited Scots College, Douai, 3rd July 1682, when he was described in College diary as being 36 years old and formerly professor of Greek, mathematics and philosophy in University of Glasgow; appointed to staff of episcopal seminary at Padua, Italy, and later decided to enter the priesthood; prefect of studies, October 1685 to August 1687; ordained at Padua, 9th March, 1686; returned to Scotland as missionary, December 1687, and stationed at Glasgow where he stayed in the town house of the Baillie family of Castlecary; name proposed by James VII as bishop, July 1688; arrested at the Revolution and imprisoned in Stirling Castle, November, 1688; exiled to France on bond of his brother, Lord Kemnay; chaplain to English Benedictine nuns at Dunkirk, 1689-1694; consecrated titular bishop of Peristachium and first vicar apostolic of Scotland by Jules de Mascaron, Cong. Orat., bishop of Agen, France, assisted by Henri de Barillon, bishop of Luçon, France, and Martin de Ratabon, bishop of Ieper, Belgium, in secret at Paris, 27th February 1695; left Paris for Scotland, 8th April 1695, but for lack of a passport was unable to cross to England and was forced to spend the rest of that year and most of the next in Holland and Germany where, at Würzburg, he received in August 1696 from John Ambrose Cook, O.S.B., abbot of Würzburg, and Thomas Placid Fleming, O.S.B., abbot of Ratisbon, the promise of complete submission to his authority of Benedictine monks while on the mission; arrived in England, November 1696, arrested, and subsequently released, May 1697; arrived in Edinburgh, July 1697, but took up residence at Preshome, Banffshire, which thus became administrative centre of Church in Scotland; divided Scotland into fixed districts to which missionaries were attached and prepared rules for their direction, April 1700, which were approved by Propaganda in 1706 and remained in force until 1780 [Statuta Missionis—see under George Hay ((6) below)]; received from William Aloysius Leslie, S.J., submission of Jesuit missionaries to his authority at Aberdeen, 7th February 1701; undertook extensive visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; ordained Peter Fraser priest, 11th March 1704, probably at Preshome, the first ordination in Scotland [? British Isles] since the reformation; “a very great man, both in learning and piety, under whom the Mission was always free from intestine embroils”; imprisoned at Fochabers after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715; died at Preshome, 12th October 1718, and is buried in St. Ninian’s churchyard, Tynet, Moray.

3. John Wallace: born at Arbroath, baptised 8th April 1654 [Arbroath Parochial Register in New Register House, Edinburgh], son of Patrick Wallace, merchant [mother’s name unknown]; [the Wallace family played a leading part in the affairs of Arbroath in the 17th and 18th centuries, and many with the name of Patrick Wallace were provost; they were, in religion, Episcopalian; politically, after 1688, Jacobites; in trade, tobacco and linen merchants with a taste for smuggling; brought up as an Episcopalian and licensed to preach and baptise in Episcopalian ministry; tutor to children of Earl of Perth, 1681 "in Lent"; left Scotland for France, 1686, and probably received into Catholic Church there; after Revolution with Jacobite court at St. Germain-en-Laye; private almoner to James VII; retired to live at Scots College, Paris; was persuaded by Bishop James Gordon in July 1706 to return to Scotland and did so in October 1706; ordained at Preshome, 3rd April 1708; missionary at Arbroath; in February 1709 the Presbytery of Arbroath recorded that "popery was prevailing in Arbroath, by the industry of Mr. John Wallace, and by reason of his interest in the place and in the country about" and he was therefore summoned to the justiciary court at Perth, 1709, for apostasy and for trafficking and perverting but, for want of evidence, the diet was deserted; from 1709 lived mainly in Edinburgh where he was chaplain to Duchess of Gordon; consecrated titular bishop of Cyrrhus and coadjutor vicar apostolic by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic of Scotland, assisted by Alexander Drummond, priest, and James Carnegie, priest, in secret at Edinburgh, 21st September 1720; arrested Edinburgh, 1722, and outlawed; died at Edinburgh, 30th June 1733 [place of burial unknown].

II: 1727-1827

On 23rd July 1727 Scotland was divided into two vicariates, the Lowland and Highland Districts. Alexander John Grant was nominated titular bishop of Sura and vicar apostolic, Highland District, 6th August 1727. He was born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, c. 1693, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid, and elder brother of James Grant (see (5) below); entered Scots College, Rome, 2nd April 1711, aged 17; ordained priest [sub-deacon, 18th December 1717, but dates of diaconate and priesthood not traced]; left the College, 5th June 1719; at Scots College, Paris, July 1719 to July 1721; arrived in Scotland, August 1721; and was superior at Scaln, 1721-1726. In anticipation of his appointment he went to Paris, November 1726, and to Rome, March 1727. Although he was duly elected by Propaganda on 17th December, 1726, there was, for a number of reasons, a delay of some seven months before this was approved by Benedict XIII on 6th August 1727. In the meantime, Grant left Rome in April 1727 for Loreto and eventually reached Genoa in August where he became ill. He was last heard from in a letter dated 28th December 1727, seriously ill and living in great poverty in Genoa. It is presumed that he died there since no further trace of him has been discovered.

A successor was not appointed until 20th January 1731 when Hugh MacDonald was provided to the Highland District. The brief dated 12th February 1731 issued by Clement XII approving this nomination contained a clause empowering Bishops Gordon and MacDonald to define the limits of their respective Districts. This was done at a bishops' meeting in Edinburgh in October 1731 following Bishop MacDonald's consecration and was formally ratified by Propaganda in Congregation on 7th January 1732. The division was made on a basic recognition of the linguistic and cultural differences which separated the two peoples of Scotland at that time. In general terms, the two Districts were divided along a line which may be thought of as running from Dumbarton to Nairn, with the Scots-speaking area to the south and east comprising the Lowland District and the Gaelic-speaking area to the north and west in the Highland District, but with a number of localities where each overlapped the other.

FROM THE RESTORATION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1878 TO THE PRESENT DAY

The Apostolic Letter "Ex Supremo Apostolatus Apice" of Leo XIII, 4th March 1878, divided Scotland into the Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh (with four Suffragan Sees) and the Archdiocese of Glasgow, which was directly subject to the Holy See. By the Apostolic Constitution "Maxime Interest" of Pius XII, 25th May 1947, and the Apostolic Constitution "Dominici Gregis" of the same date, the Archdiocese of Glasgow was erected into a Province and divided into the Metropolitan See of Glasgow with the Suffragan Sees of Motherwell and Paisley.

A pamphlet entitled Diocesan Map of Scotland, showing maps of each of the dioceses of Scotland, was published by The Mercat Cross in 1953.

NOTE

"Notes respecting the Catholic Bishops of Scotland", including the first nineteen post-reformation bishops from Nicolson to Murdoch, first appeared anonymously in this Directory in 1836. The draft is in the Preshome papers in Columba House and it is clear from the handwriting that the author was Bishop James Kyle. The matter was factual and the style succinct; Kyle, after all, had claimed that James Grant was the greatest bishop in Scotland because he wrote short letters and wasted no words.

The more familiar tabular arrangement of the list of vicars apostolic did not appear until 1864 and, with the addition of the names of successive diocesan bishops, was published annually until the present arrangement was made in 1949. The equally familiar "Lineage" made a tentative appearance in 1919 but was fleshed out considerably in the following year in the form which was continued until 1971.

The basic information on the early post-reformation bishops was still that published by Kyle in 1836 and, in the light of modern research, it seemed worthwhile to attempt a complete and systematic revision of all the episcopal curricula vitae, working as far as possible from the original material and, where this was not available, from a critical examination of secondary sources.

Three main guidelines were established: style, matter and exclusiveness. A trial appearance of the style eventually adopted can be seen in the diocesan entries in the Directory for 1971. This summary form of entry appears deceptively simple but only those who have practised it can know the severity of the discipline it imposes. On matter, a list of questions was devised and the information collected on each bishop tested against them; by this method, and by what must have appeared to some as a rather obsessive concern for exact dates, rather serious gaps appeared in the curriculum of individual careers. These pointed the way to further research and, for the most part, these gaps have been filled, except in the cases of Alexander Smith, of whom little appears to be known between 1712 and 1718, and of John Maguire of whom there is no record between leaving Stonyhurst in April 1867 and entering Glasgow University in October 1870.

The third guideline of exclusiveness has been maintained, although there have been frequent temptations to abandon it. Each entry has been devised to be complete in itself and to be read without reference to any other entry. This, of course, is tedious for those who read the entries consecutively but I think the balance of advantage lies on the side of the self-contained biography.

Dates of birth were checked from birth certificates for bishops born after 1853; with the help of parish priests concerned, I have been able to trace the baptismal entries for all bishops born from 1796, with the two exceptions of John Gray and John MacDonald. For those born before 1796, only the baptism certificates of John Wallace and Andrew Carruthers are available. In all pre-1853 cases where baptism has been traced, the present location of the baptismal register is given. The use of the phrase "baptised" means that no date of birth is given in the register. In all other cases in the period between 1618 and 1796 a healthy scepticism should be used towards the dates of birth given, even although they may have come from college registers. It should be recalled that in those years the attention given to birth dates was not as close as it is now and that, in many cases, the rector of the college was merely recording what a quite young boy remembered of what he had been told at home. For convenience, parental occupations have been given for those pre-1853 entries for which they have been found; and for the three post-1853 births which occurred outside Scotland.

Use has also been made of two other shorthand phrases. Canonically erected parishes are a comparatively recent innovation in Scotland but it would be pedantic to burke at terms which were in common use for many years before they were legally exact. The word "missioner" has been used to indicate the priest in charge of a mission before the year 1900 and "parish priest" for the priest in charge after that date; before 1900, the phrase "stationed at" has the same meaning as "assistant priest" after that date.

Apart from the two prefects apostolic, two others have been included because they were elected and formally nominated to titular sees—Alexander John Grant in 1726 and Hugh Cameron in 1917. The reasons why Grant did not proceed to consecration are complicated and, since they include the rupture in 1727 in the relations between the papacy and the exiled Jacobite court, would require too much space to set out; perhaps it may be enough to say that it would be advisable to treat with reservation the jaundiced view of Grant given in Paul Macpherson's catalogue. Cameron was appointed while serving with the Lovat Scouts in Salonika and had not been consulted before his appointment was published; and it was presumably on these grounds that he was allowed to withdraw.

The first revision was published in the Directory in 1974 and the text which appears in this Directory is the fifth and final amendment of that revision. There is still information to be discovered but it is not clear where it is to be found; the limited use which has been made here of material from the archives of the Roman vicariate suggests that there is a source of information there on Scotland which has yet to be tapped.

No revision on this scale could have been attempted without the active co-operation of many people. To all of them I am very grateful. Two editors of the Directory have suffered me with resignation and Mr. Francis Burns and his staff have borne the burden of multiple annual revisions with great patience and great skill. Mgr. Alexander MacWilliam not only allowed me to use his unpublished book, The Scottish Seminaries, 1714-1829, but contributed substantially to the 1977 and 1978 revisions. Mgr. David McRoberts actively helped at all stages and his death is a severe loss, not only to the Church in Scotland, but to those to whom he gave his friendship. It is to his memory that this revision is dedicated.

JAMES DARRAGH.

OBITUARIES — 1978

The Right Reverend George H. Bennett, Bishop of Aberdeen — 25th December, 1946

Bishop Bennett, alone among the bishops of the restored hierarchy, has no obituary in The Catholic Directory for Scotland. It seems fitting to mark the sixtieth anniversary of his consecration to the episcopate by making good that omission.

George Henry Bennett was born in St. John's, Antigua, West Indies, on 24th June, 1875, the elder son of George William Bennett by his second marriage, to Jemima Peary. His parents originated from the north-east of Scotland. A great-great-great-grandfather, Henry Ogilvie, born at Corriedoun in the Enzie of Banffshire, was at the Scots College, Valladolid, but left unordained in 1773, while two of the family on his mother's side—Andrew and James Pearey from Elgin—appear in the Aquhorties College lists as lay students in 1799 and 1812. He came from a family which was rooted in the faith. Some half-dozen priests, all from the Enzie, were of the same Bennett stock. His only sister entered the Society of the Sacred Heart. His family connection with the north-east was no doubt one of the reasons which prompted his nomination to the Diocese of Aberdeen. His father was a sugar planter and of sufficient standing on the island to be a member of the Executive Council of Antigua and to have his son baptised by the local ordinary, Bishop René Poirier, Bishop of Roseau, Dominica. While the children were still young, their father died and the family, after a brief stay in Elgin, settled in Edinburgh. They were comfortably well off. A cousin remembers George Bennett as a high-spirited, generous, cheerful boy and a great reader who encouraged the others to read and to share his enthusiasm for the Waverley Novels; something too of a dare-devil. There was one incident when he was out cycling and a horse and cart came out of a side road. There was no time to stop and, as he gathered speed, the horse providentially tossed back its head and he passed unscathed. The later acquisition of a motor-cycle caused his sister no little anxiety.

He was schooled at Edinburgh Academy and the Abbey School, Fort Augustus. On 20th October, 1892, he entered the Scots College, Rome, where he was to remain for almost nine years and to acquire three doctorates (Ph.D., D.D., D.C.L.) at the Gregorian University. (The University of Aberdeen was to add a fourth on 5th June, 1931, when at the quincentenary celebrations in honour of its founder, Bishop William Elphinstone, it conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D.). He was ordained to the priesthood on 9th April, 1898, in the basilica of St. John Lateran by Mgr. Francis de Paula Cassetta, Latin Patriarch of Antioch, and came back to Scotland in 1901. He loved the Scots College, entered fully into its life, even to undertaking to learn to play the mandoline and help with the college sing-songs.

In Aberdeen, when he entertained the cathedral chapter or the city clergy to dinner, the meal was always followed by a sing-song—but no mandoline accompaniment!

On his return to his native country, he was appointed to St. Patrick's, Edinburgh. He, who had never looked on the seamy side of life, flung himself into work in the slums of St. Patrick's with enthusiasm and devotion. While serving the parish, he was confessor to the Venerable Margaret Sinclair. His ministry among the poor was so successful and he proved so skilful an administrator that Mgr. Patrick Grady, to whom he was assistant, steadfastly set his face against any suggestion of change and pleaded his cause so persuasively with the archbishop that Father Bennett remained undisturbed at St. Patrick's for almost ten years, until Mgr. Grady's death. In 1910, he went to North Berwick and in 1912 to the important parish of Hawick where he endeared himself to every member of the congregation.

It was while he was parish priest of Hawick that, on 18th June, 1918, the call came to succeed Bishop Aeneas Chisholm of Aberdeen who had died on 13th January, of the same year. It came out of the blue, unexpected, unsought for. George Bennett had no ambitions, was by nature somewhat shy and reserved, and the thought of ruling a diocese and of the public work it entailed appalled him. There is a letter before me to Father Donald Mathieson in which he apologises for his inability to attend the Keith meeting and in which he speaks of his "utter dismay". It was a cross he had to bear and he would bear it, not grudgingly but cheerfully. Emblazoned on his episcopal coat-of-arms is a cross and the motto (with its play on his family name): Benedictus qui tollit crucem. It was precisely in that spirit that he assumed the task which was to occupy him for the next twenty-eight years.

The consecration of the new bishop took place in St. Mary's Cathedral, Aberdeen, on 1st August, 1918, the feast of St. Peter-in-Chains. The consecrating prelate was the Most Reverend John A. Maguire, Archbishop of Glasgow, and he was assisted by the Right Reverend John Toner, Bishop of Dunkeld, and the Right Reverend James W. McCarthy, Bishop of Galloway. There was a large gathering in the cathedral which included Sir James Taggart, Lord Provost of Aberdeen, many prominent citizens and representatives of the university. It was unfortunate that the preacher, the Right Reverend Henry Grey Graham, Bishop of Tipasa and auxiliary Bishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, chose to deliver a polemical sermon on the One True Church. But the words in which he referred to the bishop-elect were in tune with the occasion: "If rare intellectual gifts and deep learning in the sacred sciences, personal piety and apostolic zeal and charity, business capacity, youthful vigour and natural talents and graces afford any guarantee of success in the episcopal office, then you have it in him whom the Holy Ghost by the hands of our Holy Father has given to you as your Chief Pastor . . . We in Edinburgh have been deprived of one of our best priests. but what we have lost you have gained and so we wish him godspeed in the name of the Lord."

In those far-off days, sixty years ago, any consultation with the diocese concerned about the candidate it fancied for the vacant see was unheard of. In Rome, Cardinal de Lai, the all-powerful Prefect of the Consistorial Congregation, who was also Cardinal-Protector of the Scots College, ruled the dioceses with a rod of iron. In the shadows behind him stood Mgr. Donald Mackintosh, Rector of the Scots College and a contemporary of George Bennett, who is credited with advising the cardinal about episcopal appointments in Scotland at the time. The appointment to Aberdeen was a first rate appointment but the clergy of the diocese, immediately after the sudden death of Bishop Aeneas Chisholm, had made their own choice and it was a unanimous one. It had fallen on the late bishop's vicar-general, Mgr. John Charles Meany, who had acted as vicar-capitular in the interregnum. In the letter to Father Donald Mathieson, already quoted, the bishop-elect had written: "Please God I shall try to live up to the characteristic fatherliness of my predecessor and it will give me the keenest pleasure if the clergy will treat me as one of themselves." His reception by the members of the cathedral chapter (was there a terna in those days?) was chill. He never complained or talked about it but it was felt. Yet in no time the bishop's modesty and patent friendliness had broken down all barriers and this initial hostility to a stranger and an outsider yielded to esteem and affection.

His episcopate was a long one; it was also an uneventful one. The diocese was stable, there were none of those problems later years were to bring and the bishop's time was spent like St. Paul's "in journeyings often", serving his people, preaching to them, confirming them. He was without comparison the best speaker among the Scottish bishops and at a confirmation (though the children were wearied through not understanding a word of the long discourse) the adults were enthralled. A pastoral letter came out regularly in Advent and Lent but it attracted little comment except for its lengthy sentences. He was every inch a bishop and made up for lack of height in dignity of bearing and appearance. These were never more evident than when he appeared in cappa magna and pontificated in his cathedral or when he sang High Mass at Blairs College, accompanied by all the ceremonial the college did so perfectly, at the annual meeting of the Blairs Society which the bishop never failed to attend. His shyness was a drawback and made him shrink from publicity, so that he was little known outside his own people. It was a pity since, with his keen and exact mind, he could easily have been an influence in the city.

Bishop Bennett was a born administrator and had a flair for business which was truly remarkable. He left no financial problems for his successor to deal with. At the time of his death, his affairs were in perfect order and on his desk only one unanswered letter. He was a man of regular habits. After Mass in the private oratory at 19 Golden Square, he would attend to his correspondence. He had no secretary and he wrote all his letters in his own hand. Those who have dealings with the clergy can be sorely tried by a failure to answer letters. It was a fault Bishop Bennett could never be accused of. A request for a dispensation, a matter of parochial business, a diocesan collection—all were accounted for by return of post and always with the accompaniment of a few personal words. At midday he took a constitutional down Union Street to the beach or to Duthie Park, a dapper figure with a couple of inches of purple sock showing. His afternoons were spent in his study, very often engaged in transcribing letters and documents from the Blairs Archives, and it was owing to the bishop that Malcolm Hay, the laird of Seaton, was given entry to the almost inaccessible muniment room of Blairs College and produced that series of books, beginning with The Blairs Papers (1929) and ending with Failure in the Far East (1957), based on the Blairs material and on transcripts furnished by the bishop. It is to be regretted that he published next to nothing himself. On Saturday afternoons, he would be seen kneeling in the cathedral and preparing to go to confession to one of the curates. Next morning he was back again to celebrate an early Mass and again in the evening for evening devotions, hidden behind a pillar and enduring the untutored utterances of one of the young priests. He was seldom away from his diocese apart from an ad limina visit. One lasting interest was the school attached to the Convent of the Sacred Heart, the benefit of which to the diocese he never failed to recognise. It could be said of Bishop Bennett that one great characteristic was his devotion to duty. He lived for his diocese and its people.

A second characteristic was his consideration for others. Whenever you wished to consult him, no formality was required. You walked in and immediately he set aside whatever he was doing and gave you his whole attention. He was always ready to consult your convenience—not his own. He was kind and sympathetic in every circumstance. A shy man, he never let his shyness stand in the way of the exercise of duty and, when admonition was called for, it was straightforward and direct. "His tellings-off were good", one priest remarked, "but not as good as Jimmie McGregor's", (i.e. Mgr. McGregor of Blairs College). But they were good in another sense, because always accompanied by tact and understanding. Bitterness was never allowed to enter into a reproof.

His consideration for others was particularly exemplified in his dealings with the clergy. He cared for his priests and understood the loneliness of some of the parishes they had to administer. That is why five years was considered a long enough spell for places like Dornie, Wick and Kirkwall (Lerwick had no resident priest then)—the so-called outposts of the diocese. His happiest and most relaxed moments were spent with his priests at their various meetings and gatherings, and it was not unusual for him to write and ask (he never used the 'phone for this purpose) if he might spend a long week-end, since his housekeeper was "entertaining" the sweep. He was good company, talking of his days as curate in Edinburgh and as parish priest at Hawick, and enjoying a game of bridge or golf though he was an indifferent player at both. He always thought that the clergy should have hobbies of some kind or another and he encouraged them to get together regularly. He was glad to know, he said, that a number of them met every Monday at Elgin to play golf, "although, I presume", he added with his quiet humour, "you have an opportunity of criticising your bishop!"

He was conservative, he stood by the old ways as everyone did fifty years ago; nihil innovetur, nisi quod traditum est! The priests of the diocese had been long accustomed to say the prayers at the grave side in the vernacular (except when the V.G. was present.) A couple or more of ad clerums sought to bring them back to the official language of the Church. A bad tradition, like the conditional baptism of all converts, continued to be enforced and a query about its applicability to a Baptist brought a peremptory "Baptise the woman immediately".

Modesty, devotion to duty, consideration for others were the three main characteristics which combined to form Bishop Bennett's personality and they were in evidence to the very end. Generally speaking, a man dies as he has lived and this was certainly true of the bishop.

At two o'clock on Christmas morning, 1946, he contracted a thrombosis (he had been unwell for some time). He had only to press a button to call for assistance but no—he could not disturb his house-keeper or the maid at that hour of the morning. Some three hours later he got up to prepare for the Mass he had determined to say for his household on this great festival. But the effort proved too much for him and he had to return to bed exhausted. It was only then, when he realised that Mass was out of the question, that he rang for help. When medical aid was forthcoming, there was little that could be done. He received the last sacraments at the hands of his vicar-general, Mgr. David Paterson, and slipped away peacefully after noon on Christmas Day. The lettering on the altar cloth in his private oratory read: Magister adest et vocat te. He had served that Master faithfully and he was ready to answer the call.

The Funeral Mass was sung in St. Mary's Cathedral by the Right Reverend James Donald Scanlan, Bishop of Cyme and coadjutor-Bishop of Dunkeld, with Father Alexander S. Kerr, Braemar, as deacon and Father Colin Macdonald, Marydale, as subdeacon. The panegyric was preached by the Most Reverend Andrew Joseph McDonald, O.S.B., Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. The bishop was laid to rest in Allenvale Cemetery in the city he had come to love.

Bishop Bennett had many gifts. He never paraded them and he remained unassuming to the last. He was dedicated to the welfare of his people and he had a constant care for others and for the problems and difficulties of his priests. The Diocese of Aberdeen was privileged to count him as its pastor.

"And I heard a voice from heaven saying, 'Write this: blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.'" Apoc., 14, 13.

Reverend John McGeown — 16th December, 1977

Born at Flemington in Lanarkshire on 4th March 1906, John McGeown spent his boyhood in Edinburgh. After completing his secondary education at Holy Cross Academy, he proceeded for a year to St. Kieran's College in Kilkenny and thence in 1927 to the Scots College in Rome.

He was ordained to the priesthood in the Cathedral Church of St. John Lateran on 23rd December, 1933 and, on the completion of his training and studies, returned to Scotland and was appointed curate at St. Francis', Falkirk. Shortly afterwards, he was transferred to St. Peter's, Edinburgh where he served both as assistant priest and as part-time secretary to the late Archbishop Andrew Joseph McDonald.

In 1939, he became parish priest at Bo'ness and remained there until 1944 when he replaced the late Father Anthony Gallagher as parish priest of St. Margaret Mary's in Edinburgh.

This parish took in the new and rapidly expanding housing development at Granton and the surrounding district and its Mass centre was a large and well-equipped hall. Father McGeown threw himself into the building up both of the parish and of the local community. He was admired and loved by all who knew him, independent of their religious affiliation. He lived for his people and, as the parish grew in loyalty and numbers, he transformed the hall into a beautiful church, built a recreational and social centre for his clubs and guilds and extended the presbytery to accommodate three priests.

Father McGeown was a dedicated and tireless priest. The joys and sorrows of his parishioners became his own. He loved and was loved by all and especially by the children whom he visited almost daily in their school. He kept in touch with them when school days were over through his youth clubs and young men's associations. He knew each parishioner and their problems and circumstances. He was a true father to his people.

Perhaps the intensity of his concern for his people was the cause of the breakdown in health that afflicted him the more as the years went on and eventually led, in 1977, to his request that he might lay down the burdens of his office and retire from the active apostolate. His one concern was the spiritual good of his people. When he knew that his failing health no longer permitted him to offer all that was needed, he did not consider the personal cost. His beloved people came first. Father McGeown retired to St. Anne's in Musselburgh and some months later he was transferred to St. Patrick's Hospital in Waterford for specialised medical treatment. There he died on 16th December, 1977.

His Lordship Bishop Monaghan celebrated the Requiem Mass on Tuesday, 20th December, 1977. Father McGeown was buried in the Brothers' Cemetery in Waterford.

The memory of Father McGeown that will remain with every priest and parishioner fortunate enough to have known him, is the memory of a completely dedicated priest who vividly saw his Lord in his people and utterly forgot himself in his ministry to their needs. Of a priest who loved the beauty of God's house and ever sought fresh means to adorn it. Of a priest who loved a theological argument with his brother priests but remained, almost to the point of scrupulosity, utterly loyal and submissive to the voice of Rome and his bishop. He was one whose priesthood none could fault; whose selfless service to God and his people none could but reverence and admire.

May he rest in peace.

Reverend John Dominic Curran — 19th December, 1977

Father John D. Curran, Chaplain to St. Anne's Convent and Hospital, Musselburgh, died in Edinburgh on 19th December, 1977, in the seventy-fourth year of his age and the eleventh of his priesthood. His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, delivered the following panegyric at the Funeral Mass in St. John's, Portobello.

"The Lord has sworn; He will not repent Thou art a priest for ever" Ps 109: 4.

John Dominic Curran was born in Edinburgh on 29th April, 1904, and educated at Holy Cross Academy, then the sole secondary school in the city for Catholics. No doubt, but for his father's death whilst he was still a boy, he would have proceeded, encouraged by the late Mgr. Miley, to Blairs College to begin his studies for the priesthood—for frequently he spoke of himself as having had an early vocation that reached its fulfilment half a century after he had heard God's call "Come follow me".

He felt he should postpone his departure to college until circumstances were easier, and meantime find employment and help to maintain home and family. He entered the service of the catering department of the railway. He began on the lowest rung of the ladder, but through sheer hard work, utter integrity and a growing administrative ability, he steadily rose to the responsible and senior position of Administrative Officer in Scotland for British Transport Hotels and Catering Services, a responsibility that necessitated his travelling all over Scotland and frequently south of the border. He gained a reputation among those whose work he supervised and inspected, as one who would accept only the best. He demanded the highest standards and himself set those standards. But although a hard taskmaster in his concern for the catering service he supervised, John Curran was deeply interested in the welfare of and the opportunities open to the personnel with whom he came in contact. He himself had worked his way to a senior position in his profession. He saw no reason why others with ability and integrity should not do the same and many a young man today holding a responsible post in the hotel and catering business knows well his indebtedness to the encouragement and practical help he received in his early days from John Curran.

But—as a layman, shouldering heavy responsibilities and working long hours—he still made time for his absorbing love of music and the liturgy, a love inspired by his friend from boyhood days, the late Mgr. Miley of Restalrig. At his suggestion he had early on learned to play the organ and studied liturgical music, especially Gregorian chant. He put that knowledge to good use. I first met him in the late 'forties when I was Rector of Blairs College. He had trained the choir in Aberdeen Cathedral and shared such weekends as he had free between conducting his choir in Huntly Street and his choir here in St. John's. He did not spare himself. I recall my first Pontifical Mass in this church. John travelled by night train from London, conducted the choir for the Mass and returned south on the Sunday afternoon to resume his business meetings. Quite typical of him!

His great friend in those days was the late Canon James Harold and to him he confided his desire—at an age nearly on sixty—to dedicate the rest of his life to the priesthood. He came to see me in October, 1963, and began his studies in the Beda. It was no easy task to adjust his life not only to books, but even more to the restricted life and routine of a seminary. He persevered and, in 1967, was ordained by Pope Paul VI on the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, 25th January, in the Sistine Chapel. For him not only his ordination, but his ordination by Pope Paul was the culmination of hopes and dreams. He was a great Roman—in unswerving devotion and reverence for the Holy See and to the authority of the Church. He was a pillar of support to his superiors. He was a great European too—he had a love of Spain and travelled on the Continent, Lourdes, Fatima and the great pilgrimage shrines.

After ordination he was appointed to Granton and then to Camelon where he remained until he retired just over two years ago—but his was an active retirement. He drove himself in Camelon despite heart trouble. He felt he could not remain as a priest in a parish if he could not satisfy himself that he was doing all he felt he ought to do and was required to do. Visiting, choir and the rest became too much. He retired to his home and sister who so lovingly cared for his needs, but he accepted the new appointment of chaplain to St. Anne's, as visiting priest to Edenhall Hospital, Musselburgh, and as regular supply on Sundays at Our Lady of Loretto.

But, in retirement, his health deteriorated—with lengthy periods in the Eastern General and St. Raphael's, slow recovery from an operation and sight badly affected. Yet always full of zeal and hoping for recovery. He loved to meet priests who could not but be enthused by his infectious enthusiasm. The end came suddenly—Friday evening last week, he had a severe heart attack and was taken to the Deaconess Hospital. I saw him in the morning. Through the oxygen mask he spoke of his priesthood, his chaplaincy and asked for old friends. He died early on Monday morning with Father Tom Flynn of St. Patrick's at his side—as he had been so often during the three days of his final illness.

We shall remember him as a man who, as a layman, demanded the best from those under him, who as a priest gave his best to those he served. If he had the reputation as a layman of expecting perfection from those whose work he supervised, as a priest he equally demonstrated perfection in his own priestly tasks and expected the same from his choir boys, his altar boys, from his parishioners and penitents—but above all from himself. Father John could never be content with mediocrity. For him there was but one standard—the best and in his turn as layman and priest he gave it.

To his sister and brother, our sympathy and prayers, and to the sisters at St. Anne's who served him in his prolonged illness, surgeons, doctors, sisters and nurses, in state hospitals and in St. Raphael's, our gratitude. To the priests who gave him spiritual help and strength—our thanks. For all, he will surely be an advocate in heaven where speedily may he rest in peace.

Very Reverend James Canon Fisher — 20th December, 1977

The Very Rev. James Canon Fisher, parish priest of St. Conval's, Linwood, died in Linwood on Tuesday, 20th December, 1977, at the age of sixty-one.

He was born on the 29th February, 1916, in Cavendish Street, in the heart of the Gorbals, the eldest of the six boys and a girl born to Patrick Joseph and Margaret Mary Fisher, solid Catholics of an Irish-Scots mix.

Baptised and confirmed in St. John's, Portugal Street, he received his primary education in St. John's School, before going on to St. Aloysius' College in 1928. In 1934, he entered St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and was ordained priest on Sunday, 29th June, 1941.

His first appointment was to St. Patrick's, Coatbridge, where he served under the late Canon Michael Dooley for four months. It was not a long time, but perhaps it was Father Dooley's great love and care for the sick and the elderly that set Father Fisher on a similar course that was to become one of the outstanding features of his priestly life. His care for the sick and the elderly blossomed in the four years he spent in St. Anthony's, Govan, after leaving Coatbridge. He loved his work in the Southern General Hospital, bringing the sacraments and his own brand of sympathy and comfort to the countless patients who passed through the hospital every year. He had a most retentive memory, which he cultivated as a God-given talent to be used in the service of the Church. He set himself to remember all his patients in the hospital by name, ward after ward!

In October, 1945, when he moved to St. Mary's, Greenock, which was to be the scene of his labours for the next sixteen years, he trained his memory to achieve total recall about every person in his district, and eventually in the parish. He completely accepted the value of house visitation, and he is remembered in St. Mary's as a conscientious and tireless worker.

He had a disciplined and well-equipped mind, and he could apply it to a given task or subject with a quite phenomenal intensity. He was not remote from the people, and they found him kindly and concerned, a prudent and even profound counsellor, and quite uncompromising in his presentation and defence of the truth. In the confused and troubled times after the Second Vatican Council, he was ever completely loyal to the Holy Father and to the bishop.

In 1961, the late Bishop Black gave him the charge of Our Lady of Lourdes, Bishopton, where he is still fondly remembered. In 1964, he succeeded the late Father Hamill in St. Conval's, Linwood. Linwood was undergoing a dramatic expansion since the coming of Rootes to the area. The Catholic population had nearly trebled, and the old St. Conval's clearly had to be replaced. Plans had been drawn up for a new church and presbytery at Green Farm Road. Father Fisher inherited these plans and put the work in hand, and the church and house were completed in 1967. One feature of the church was its 110 ft. high bell tower, standing adjacent to the main entrance. Father Fisher became convinced the tower was unstable, and there was great anxiety late in 1974 when it gave signs of imminent collapse. It fell on 28th December and—quite miraculously—it caused no damage whatsoever to the church or house, not even a broken pane of glass!

The building of the parish, as distinct from the church, was his own personal achievement. There were really two communities—the original parish community and the thousands of newcomers suddenly planted in their midst. He set about welding them into a new St. Conval's, giving them all a new sense of identity. He promoted and strengthened existing organisations and set up new ones. There was a concentration of activity for the youth (boys' and girls' clubs, boxing, dancing, etc.) and for the elderly. These organisations became the core of the parish council which he inaugurated, and through which he was able to regulate the life of the parish. By setting up the social club from the parish council he was to give a centre, and a fillip, to the social life of the parish.

The wider community of Linwood was facing the same problem of fusing the old community and the newcomers into a new Linwood. The police community involvement section of the Renfrewshire and Bute Constabulary took up the task, and enlisted the aid of existing leaders and organisations in the area. A community council was set up in October, 1971 (well in advance of our present-day system) and Father Fisher served for three years as its first chairman. He organised committees for youth and the elderly and a census was made for the first time of the housebound and the elderly in Linwood. In 1973, the Linwood Community Council with its Rev. Chairman received the Paisley Junior Chamber of Commerce Trophy, newly instituted and awarded to the organisation judged to be most outstanding in its efforts to promote community life.

In 1975, Bishop McGill recognised Father Fisher's merits by elevating him to the Cathedral Chapter. He also served on the education sub-committee district no. 3, and was a member of the diocesan finance board.

His health, however, began to suffer, and he spent two periods in hospital in 1976 and 1977. He made a fair recovery for a while, but died on Tuesday, 20th December, 1977.

Bishop McGill concelebrated Mass with a large number of priests from the Diocese of Paisley, the Archdiocese of Glasgow and the Diocese of Motherwell. The church was filled to capacity. He was laid to rest in the priests' plot in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend Patrick Canon Conway — 28th December, 1977

Canon Conway was born on 15th August, 1899 at Drumheel, Virginia, Co. Cavan. He went to St. Fenian's College, Mullingar, and completed his studies for the priesthood at St. Kieran's, Kilkenny. He was ordained on 10th June, 1928, in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kilkenny.

At that time, the Archdiocese of Glasgow included Lanarkshire and Renfrewshire. His first appointment was to St. Mary's, Paisley in 1928. There he worked zealously for eleven years. He was then appointed curate to St. John's, Port Glasgow. His priestly life was never far removed from the industrial din of the River Clyde. Returning to the city, he was appointed curate to St. Mary's, Abercromby Street.

In his student days, he played football for the County Cavan team, which was the greatest honour in Gaelic athletics in every age, even to the present day. He was gifted with the further Celtic culture, of being an excellent player of traditional music on the violin. These attributes were great assets in the diligent work performed for the youth of St. Mary's Parish. He spent hours supervising leather-craft and the finished products helped to make funds for further entertainment. He visited every family, sharing their joys and sorrows. In 1949, he became parish priest of St. Conval's, Pollok. He spared no sacrifice in his endeavour to form a new parish and raising the funds necessary for a new church and presbytery. At the same time, he enriched the lives of all who came into contact with him. This power of organisation and undying energy must have influenced his appointment to St. Luke's, Ballater Street, where a well-established parish still lacked a church.

One could enumerate the many facets of his noble character, his conviviality, his hospitality and kindness, yet one could never convey the complete man. He was appointed an honorary canon in 1967. He hoped his now declining health would not deprive him of his greatest wish in providing a church, a monument of architectural beauty, an honour to the priests of the past, a focus of the love and generosity of the people of the Gorbals, a new home where Christ could dwell amongst them. This was not to be and he retired in 1969 and returned to his birthplace to spend the remainder of his life in prayer and preparation for his last journey to his eternal home.

It came as a great shock when we discovered that God had called him on 28th December, 1977. The grief of all was exemplified by the huge, sorrowing congregation of priests and laity from all walks of life, at the Requiem Mass in Maghara Church. The requiem was concelebrated by Archbishop Winning and Canon Conway's priestly relatives and friends. He was laid to rest in the cemetery surrounding the church, in the picturesque spot at the foot of Brucehill. We pray that his epitaph can be that of St. Paul — "I have fought the good fight to the end. I have run the race to the finish. I have kept the faith. All there is to come now, is the crown of righteousness reserved for me, which the Lord, the Righteous Judge will give to me on that day." R.I.P.

Reverend Patrick Quinn — 2nd January, 1978

Patrick Quinn ordained in 1932, came to the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh on loan from the Archdiocese of Birmingham. He settled so happily in Scotland that eventually he asked that he might stay — an offer gladly accepted at a time when this archdiocese was very dependent on the temporary and zealous services of priests from Ireland.

His first appointments were to Kirkcaldy, St. Marie's, and Addiewell. In February, 1944, he was appointed to St. John's, Portobello, where his kindly and gentle manner quickly endeared him alike to the ageing Canon Franklin, to the parishioners and above all to the children of St. John's. He was the first assistant priest ever to work alongside the rather unique Canon Franklin who, even when sickness and age had overtaken him, was reluctant to admit the frailties that accompany advancing years. But Father Quinn, always patient and placid, remained with him, caring for him in his ills with gentleness and concern until the canon's death in 1955.

After a spell of three years as parish priest in the small but lovely parish of Innerleithen, Father Quinn was transferred to the geographically difficult parish of Burntisland, with its churches and Mass centres, four in number, and with boundaries that stretch the length of the coast from North Queensferry to the approaches to Kirkcaldy. He remained stationed at Burntisland until 1972 when he was appointed parish priest of the more compact and populous parish of Cowdenbeath. There he continued the quiet, yet so effective, apostolate that characterised the years of his priestly ministry, until his medical advisers recommended his retreat from active work because of increasing cardiac weakness or his continuing his priestly apostolate in as light an assignment as might be available. He chose the latter course and in the late autumn of 1977 took up residence in Slamannan. Alas, his days were numbered. Just a few weeks after his arrival, on the evening of 2nd January, 1978, he collapsed and in a few brief moments had passed to the Lord he had so loyally served and loved.

His Eminence Cardinal Gray presided at the Requiem Mass in Cowdenbeath on 5th January. The previous evening Bishop Monaghan had presided at a Requiem Mass in Slamannan. Father Quinn was laid to rest in the cemetery in Kirkcaldy.

May he rest in peace.

Reverend Patrick B. Molony — 14th February, 1978

Father Patrick B. Molony was born in Dublin, 12th March, 1892, entered the Cistercian Order at Mt. St. Bernard's Abbey, Leicester and was ordained priest, 29th June, 1922 in St. Barnabas' Cathedral Nottingham.

During World War II he volunteered to work outside the abbey because of the shortage of priests and for the war years (1939-1945) spent much time working with and advising servicemen. This period of his life gave him a taste for parish work and, in 1950, he offered his services to Paisley diocese and was appointed to St. Mary's, Greenock. He was to spend the next twenty-five years of his life at St. Mary's before retiring to his native Dublin in 1975. His retirement of a little over two years, was mainly spent at the Sacred Heart Residence of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Raheny. He died on 14th February, 1978 and was buried in the family plot in Glasnevin Cemetery.

Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley, his Vicar General, Mgr. Matthew Kinsella and several priests of Paisley diocese, crossed to Dublin for the funeral. Bishop McGill began his homily by expressing thanks to the Little Sisters of the Poor for their kind attention to Father Molony in his last years. He proceeded to outline his career and, in particular, his twenty-five years in Greenock where he helped to create a friendly image of the Church, was confidant of the clergy, generated an atmosphere of joy and peace and was attentive to the sick even as an old man and after several heart attacks.

On the occasion of his retirement from Greenock in September, 1975, the Greenock Telegraph for 11th September commented: "During his twenty-five years in town he made friends in every corner, dedicated much of his time to spiritual direction and was often to be found in the many hospitals in the district visiting the sick. He was also a regular visitor to Gateside [Women's] Prison. People were Father Molony's hobby. He loved them and gave his working life to them . . ."

Earlier in his life as a Cistercian at Mt. St. Bernard's Abbey, Leicester, Father Molony made many friends in his capacity as guest master.

Long life has always been considered a sign of God's favour. The Hebrews looked upon old age as Yahweh's special blessing. The Psalmist continually spoke kindly and respectfully of what he termed "length of days". Father Molony had a long life—nearly eighty-six years, and fifty-six of them spent in the priesthood in the service of God and of his neighbour. He served God and the people of God in an exemplary manner. He projected a paternal image of the priesthood. He had a sympathetic ear for everyone, a smile for all who crossed his path, a fatherly pat on the head for children and an abundance of time and understanding for his fellow priests.

In the quiet way he lived he gave all a sermon in fidelity to the priesthood. He was humble and sincere and to the people he came in contact with he was a constant witness to Christ. He was always a priest and with his people in their joys and their sorrows. He loved Greenock and its people and they loved him in return.

All who knew Father Molony can feel that it is indeed true to say that "happy are the dead who died in the Lord" and "how precious in the eyes of the Lord is the death of his saints".

While esteeming the country of his adoption, Father Molony in a quiet and unobtrusive way loved the land of his birth. His remains await the resurrection in Glasnevin Cemetery, Dublin, among the graves of many of Ireland's patriots and not far from the last resting place of one he admired most of all, Eamon de Valera.

May the lesson of his life be remembered by all and in the language of the Gael: "Sunas siorraí da anam i bfocair na Maideana Muire agus na naomh uile—Eternal peace to his soul in the company of the Virgin Mary and all the saints."

Reverend Michael Rynn — 22nd February, 1978

Michael Rynn was born at Aughrim Ballinaglera, Co. Leitrim, Ireland, in December, 1900.

He studied at St. Patrick's College, Cavan, and completed his studies for the priesthood in St. Peter's College, Wexford, where he was ordained for the Archdiocese of Glasgow on 7th June, 1928.

His first appointment was to St. Mary's, Paisley, where he served as an assistant priest. In 1929, he was transferred to St. Roch's, Gargad. In 1933, he was appointed assistant to St. Brigid's, Kilbirnie, Ayrshire, where he was to spend fifteen fruitful years and made his mark as a really zealous and dedicated priest. In those days St. Brigid's served Lochwinnoch, Longbar, Beith and extended as far as the Lugton Water. On the Largs Road, it extended beyond the Camp-hill Reservoirs. A curate needed to be fit and strong in such a parish and Father Michael was one of these. He was a man of warm-hearted, kindly and genial character. He was a great mixer and a very good companion and friend. He was cool and calm—a priest of dignity, one whose personality carried authority. He was a good listener and kind and helpful with everyone's problem. But he was very much his own man. He always spoke out and said what he believed to be true.

Although he looked after the Children of Mary and a flourishing girls' club, he was very much a man's man. In his Kilbirnie days the reservoirs were built by hundreds of Irishmen. He was in his glory amongst them. He looked after their spiritual and temporal welfare and was very much part of their social activities. He organised concerts and various functions to ensure there was life in the parish. For years he travelled to the reservoirs to give the men their Sunday Mass in all kinds of weather and then made the journey to Beith to look after his flock there. The Beith children travelled to St. Brigid's School. There was a bus, but because Lochwinnoch was in Renfrewshire a different county, there was no bus to take their children to the parish school. But Father Michael made sure their spiritual welfare was taken care of. For years, he travelled to teach them their catechism in the non-denominational school. He was a very conscientious priest. Old and young were his great concern.

He had his human side too. Being a country man he had a great interest in sport — hunting, shooting, golf and he did love a race meeting. Indeed he was a character and his charm and great sense of humour made him many friends.

In 1948, North Ayrshire was transferred to Galloway diocese and Father Michael, now twenty years ordained, found himself in a new diocese. In April, 1948, he was appointed parish priest of St. Conal's, Kirkconnel, Dumfriesshire. It was a small, but scattered parish. It covered Sanquhar and New Cumnock and many a time in winter's snow he had great difficulty in reaching New Cumnock for Sunday Mass. But the welfare of his flock was his concern. He always made it. He loved the people of Kirkconnel and many a Sunday evening he spent with a handful of parishioners, in the little hall, smoking his pipe and enjoying their company as he played with them a simple game of cards.

In 1953, he was appointed to St. Patrick's, Birnie Knowe, and again he had to serve two stations—the "Birnie" as it was called and Auchinleck. Again, he made many friends.

In 1961, he was appointed to a small parish — Beith, in North Ayrshire, and was very happy to get a rest from Sunday travel. He had only one church to serve. He did relish returning to earlier pastures. His friends from his Kilbirnie days knew him and welcomed him. He remembered all the families of earlier days and when he missed them from church, he went after them and his charm and warm-hearted patter won many back. He was really enjoying life as pastor in Beith, but his joy was short lived. Arthritis got hold of him. He spent six weeks in Paisley Alexandra Infirmary where he had a hip operation. There he went through excruciating pain but his heart was big. He rallied and returned to Beith undaunted. He really was making great progress when he suffered a cerebral attack that paralysed him in one side and he lost his speech. But again his great courage prevailed. He struggled to walk again and actually got back driving his car. He undertook speech therapy, but, alas, he did not recover sufficiently to resume his parish duties.

In 1966, he retired to St. Paul's, Bushmount, Clonakilty, Co. Cork. Here he was very happy and contented. He loved St. Paul's and the good sisters who nursed him. So happy was he that he bought his own plot in Clonakilty Cemetery so that his remains might rest with his friends in a place he loved so dearly. The soul of this great priest returned to his Master on the 22nd February, 1978.

Very Reverend George Canon McCafferty and Reverend Francis Kiernan represented Galloway diocese at his funeral. His brother, Very Reverend Frank Canon Rynn of Bristol was the main celebrant at the Funeral Mass. Canon McCafferty, Canon Ryan, Father Kiernan and others joined in the concelebration. His wish was fulfilled and his mortal remains were laid to rest in Clonakilty Cemetery on 25th February, 1978.

He has now gone to share in the company of the Great High Priest whom he tried so earnestly to serve. He was looking forward to June to celebrate his golden jubilee but God had decreed that he should celebrate it with his friends in heaven.

May he rest in peace.

Reverend John Francis Byrne — 25th February, 1978

Father John F. Byrne, parish priest of St. Andrew's, Livingston, died in Edinburgh on 25th February, 1978, in the sixtieth year of his age and the thirty-third of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass in Drung Church, Quigley's Point, Co. Donegal, Ireland, the following panegyric was delivered by Reverend Hugh G. White, of St. Andrew's College, Dryrange.

"There was a man sent from God; his name was John. He came as a witness to speak for the light, so that everyone might believe through him." We read these words in the first pages of the fourth Gospel; they are words designed to capture something of that great character who lived only to pave the way for Christ—John the Baptist. This morning, for me, these words take on a new meaning, for they are well suited to the memory of the man for whom we are offering this Mass today (a man sent by God—whose name was John—John Francis Byrne—known to all who loved him as "John F.")—a man who spoke to us, in his living and in his dying, of God. It is not easy to speak of God; for some it is a source of some embarrassment, for others it is an occasion to indulge in so much wordy and often useless speculation—but to a privileged few it is simple and enriching; simple because they speak from their hearts, and enriching because their hearts are filled with the love of God. Such a man was John F. He was no theologian (and would have been the first to acknowledge that fact) but he was at ease with God and the things of God. How could anyone have doubted the existence of God when the man to whom you were speaking was standing in his presence.

John F. Byrne stood among men (among us gathered here this morning) and his God was with him. Yesterday, in his own church in Livingston, Cardinal Gray, Bishop Monaghan and 150 concelebrants gathered in an over-crowded church to honour this man they all loved.

I know that each person in this church has his own memories of his coming—memories that are all the more precious because they are so personal and private; they are memories of a great priest who enjoyed his priesthood, and wanted to share this joy with others. Your very presence here this morning speaks loudly of his priestly work, and surely must be a source of consolation and peace to his brother and to his four sisters who are with us here today. For all the years of his priesthood (almost thirty-three years since he was ordained in St. Columb's College, Derry, on 3rd June, 1945) for all those years his family and you, the people to whom he belonged, have had to take second place, because you knew that John Byrne's heart was given to the people he was asked to serve in the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. How fortunate for them to have been loved and served and inspired by such a man.

In the name of the cardinal, the priests and the people of Scotland, I say to you this morning, thank you. Thank you for giving this man to us and do not think too harshly of us if we were unable to let him come back, as he so much wanted, to enjoy the peace and quiet of Quigley's Point. But in our giving him back to you, we give you a part of ourselves and are glad to know that a little bit of Scotland will forever be cherished among you here in Drung. And yet this morning there must be many questions crowding in upon your minds:

1. What was it that allowed this man to worm his way, not only into people's homes and into their lives, but into their hearts? For that is what he did.

2. What was it that allowed John F. Byrne not only to preserve his priestly zeal but to make it grow warmer as he grew older?

3. What was it that allowed this man to maintain his loyalty always to the teaching and tradition of the Church (and especially to the person of his bishop and the Holy Father) and at the same time be able and ready to listen to new and young ideas, ideas that he knew meant growth and development for the Church he loved, but ideas so often viewed by others with a cool reserve, that wanted nothing to do with them?

4. This man of fifty-nine (brought up in the old school, trained in a discipline that seems so foreign to many today)—what allowed him to be so much at home with young priests, made him welcoming and encouraging of their vigour and energies with a trust that was humbling?

5. And when we consider the suffering that he saw and shared so personally in his years as a hospital chaplain, at the Western General in Edinburgh and at Bangour, we wonder how he escaped the chilling grasps of cynicism; how he prevented that hardness of heart which finds an easy refuge in mouthing platitudes and takes cover behind a cold routine; John Byrne never mouthed platitudes and his visitation of the sick was never routine; we wonder how he was able in fact to grow warmer in his love and dedication to the sick and the dying.

These are questions that we ask; and beneath them is the awful question that no one dare speak: "Why John F.?" I think that John Byrne would surely smile at the complexity of our minds and our lack of understanding (not in a dismissive way because he never dismissed anyone, but in that disarming way he had). For him it was clear. There was only his faith, the faith he learned and lived in the strong Catholic household at Quigley's Point, County Donegal—the faith that, in Jesus Christ, God our Father is reaching out to touch men's hearts; and what healing is in that touch. John F. Byrne was only too conscious that he himself stood in need of that touch; he was no saint; he had his faults and shortcomings like the rest of us. But he believed that God had touched his life in so many ways, above all through the love of his family; and he was grateful. It was there that he first heard the call of Christ; it was from there that he set out so willingly. When, on the day of his ordination, Christ said to him "Come, follow me—where I am you must be there too"—his answer was ready—"very good now". He counted that the greatest blessing of his life—a privilege—never to be taken for granted, never to be abused.

I believe that John was always a young priest at heart because he found his priesthood to be the opportunity of a continuing discovery—the discovery of how much loving Christ wants to do, and how much he, John F., could help. It was that personal, simple, unaffected and unembarrassed awareness of Jesus Christ in his life which explains why John F. was who he was. But there was one discovery that God was preparing him for—a discovery that was sudden in its coming, yet so rewarding in its unfolding—the discovery of the beauty and peace that is death.

I believe that God had planned that John F. should provide one last great service to him; for so many people live in fear, fear of death—so many are appalled at the wastage of human life, and so live in dread of that fateful word "cancer", a word that brings panic into human living, a word which can create divisions within families which can force loved ones to live a pretence, unable to face reality. John F. was asked to face that awful spectre, to defy it, and deprive it of all its power to crush the human spirit.

With what courage he accepted that challenge, with what grace he vindicated his Master's faith in him, and fulfilled what he had said so often throughout his life: "Very good now". I believe that God chose John F. to witness among us that "Life" is what "Death" is all about, no matter how awful or fearsome that death may seem. For three years he lived under that spectre, but he lived as his Master did, with purpose; and he died as his Master died, by giving to God his Father what he held most sacred—his life.

And so with one voice we say to God our Father: "We seem to give him back to you, O God, who gave him to us; yet, as you did not lose him in giving, so we do not lose him by his return. What you give you do not take away, for what is yours is ours, if we are yours. And life is eternal and love is immortal, and death is only an horizon, and an horizon is nothing except the limitation of our sight; lift us up, strong Son of God, that we may see further; cleanse our eyes that we may see you more clearly; draw us closer to yourself, that we may know ourselves to be nearer our loved one who is with you. And while you prepare a place for us, prepare us also for that place, that where you and he are, we may be also forevermore."

Very Reverend Michael Canon Kelly — 9th March, 1978

Canon Michael Kelly, retired parish priest of St. Alexander's, Denny, died at Milford, Co. Donegal, Ireland, on 9th March, 1978, in the seventy-sixth year of his age and the fiftieth of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass in Milford Church on 13th March, the following panegyric was delivered by the Right Reverend James Monaghan, V.G., auxiliary Bishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh.

As the days of Lent pass, and we come nearer and nearer to the great feast of Easter, we are being made more aware in the liturgy of what the Christian life is all about. Through our baptism we share in Christ's life and by our readiness to die with him through our acceptance of trials and suffering, we can look forward to rising with him to the new and eternal life in heaven. Death then, for us, can never be thought of as the end but only as the temporary tomb from which we pass into the eternal life of happiness that God has prepared for us.

Canon Michael Kelly who has passed through this gateway would never have thought of himself as anything more than ordinary. An ordinary Christian, who responded to our Lord's invitation to him to share in his ministerial priesthood and who was ordained in Dundee Cathedral on 29th June, 1928, for the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. In a few more months he would have completed fifty years in the priesthood. How providential of his parishioners that they should have insisted on honouring this occasion in anticipation by celebrating it in Denny as he left last autumn.

If ordinary means well nigh fifty years in loyal and devoted service to the Church, to his archdiocese, to the cathedral parish and Tranent where he spent short periods as curate and to the parishes of South Queensferry (1932) and Addiewell (1937) where he was parish priest until his appointment to St. Alexander's, Denny, in 1947 where he was to spend thirty years—altogether a lifetime of conscientious and practical service of God's people joined to a marvellous fraternal bond with his fellow-priests—if all this adds up to ordinary, then let's have more of it. The saints didn't consider themselves anything but ordinary and yet we know what they accomplished in one lifetime. With the saints he excelled in his practical, down to earth application of our Lord's teaching.

While saying as much as I do, I am conscious that, typically, he did not want a panegyric preached. We should respect the wishes of the dead, but I think he would forgive me, with one of his quizzical smiles, by saying, "Well, I suppose you are the bishop".

If I may, I would like, briefly but sincerely, to pay tribute to the canon in particular and to his generation of priests generally for the way in which they accepted the changes following on Vatican II. Were it not for their trained discipline in accepting the Church and its teaching, looking on the Holy Father as the Vicar of Christ and a readiness to accept his directions, we would scarcely have weathered the storms of recent years. At heart, the canon was a traditionalist but accepted the changes not grudgingly but with a willingness to make them work.

One thing I know the canon would like me to do today and that is to thank the many friends who, especially since he took ill, have shown concern and interest. His Lordship the Bishop of Raphoe for his friendly visits to him in hospital, his kindness in receiving the body into the church here on Saturday evening. He very much regretted his inability to be here today for the requiem.

The priests of this diocese—some of them very long-standing friends—for making him so welcome when he came in retirement here. The people of this area who took him to their hearts. He was as much at home here as in his native Scotland.

The devoted doctors and nurses of the hospital who attended him in what turned out to be his last illness.

I am sure he would be so pleased to see so many good priest friends who have managed to make the journey here today. Perhaps the most striking tribute comes from his grateful parishioners of Denny in the persons of those who have undertaken a long and arduous journey at awkward hours to be here at his requiem.

He would certainly want me to thank and pay tribute to his house-keeper, Miss Margaret Shiels, who served him so faithfully with a spirit founded in her deep respect for the priesthood.

On behalf of His Eminence the Cardinal, who regrets being prevented from attending this requiem—to her and to his family and relatives, so many of whom have managed to be here, we offer our deepest sympathy and the assurance of our prayers and support.

May he rest in peace.

Reverend John Murphy — 25th April, 1978

The very sudden death of Father John Murphy on 25th April, 1978, left a shocked and stunned community in Annan, Dumfriesshire, and in the whole of the Galloway Diocese. Many who knew him were aware of some of his health problems but few knew how serious they were until he died suddenly on his way to Dumfries and Galloway Royal Infirmary for urgent medical attention.

After Requiem Mass celebrated with the parishioners of his last parish, St. Columba's, Annan, his body was taken for burial to Ayr where he had been brought up. The Funeral Mass in St. Margaret's, Ayr, was attended by a large number of his friends in the priesthood from different parts of the country, relatives and friends and parishioners representing the various parishes in which he had served, especially St. Columba's which he had served so well for the previous seven years.

John Murphy was born at Annbank, Ayrshire on 19th May, 1930. After receiving his early education at St. Margaret's School, Ayr, he later studied for the priesthood at St. Mary's College, Blairs, and Propaganda Fide College, Rome. He was ordained on 16th July, 1954, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dumfries, by the Right Reverend Joseph McGee, Bishop of Galloway. Following his ordination he was appointed assistant priest at St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock. He left there in 1958 to be assistant at St. Andrew's, Dumfries, and from there in 1962 he went to St. Peter-in-Chains, Ardrossan. It was from Ardrossan in 1965 that he left to take up his first appointment as parish priest. He was at this time appointed to St. Conal's, Kirkconnel. During his time there he won the hearts of the parishioners who belong to what is largely a mining community. Proof of his standing there and the appreciation of the community was demonstrated in the presentation made to him of a specially inscribed miner's safety lamp. This was one of his most treasured belongings.

John Murphy is remembered by many as a fine devoted priest who took his duties seriously. Often he spoke in sermons of his desire to be a priest from boyhood and of his happiness in doing what he was called upon to do as a priest. When he preached he did so briefly and interestingly, helping people in a straightforward, practical and unambiguous way. He is remembered also as a man of wide interests. During his time in Rome he came to love the city and its history. Anywhere he went he aroused a similar interest in Rome in people of all denominations by his talks on the subject. His associations with Propaganda Fide College meant that he had contact with a large group of friends all over the world.

It is difficult to think of John Murphy without thinking about golf. Indeed, until his health began to bother him seriously he was a very competent golfer and had a wide circle of friends through his interest and participation in the sport. He was also a knowledgeable and keen car-driver and caravaner. His interest in caravanning brought him into contact and kept him in touch with many friends the length and breadth of the country.

Music was another of his interests. He thoroughly enjoyed playing the accordion and the piano. Not only did he enjoy playing; he also liked to listen to a wide and varied choice of music. The annual visit of the Gretna Choral Society to St. Columba's, Annan, on the feast of the Immaculate Conception began at his invitation. This is an event which is eagerly anticipated and enjoyed by many members of the parish and the local community.

Because of the death of his father when he was young, and, with him being an only child, Father Murphy had a very close and caring relationship with his mother. When he went to Kirkconnel and Annan as parish priest, his mother went with him as his housekeeper. As the years went on and as her health failed she became dependent on him. Sadly, he only outlived her by about three months. Despite his own poor health at times, he managed the affairs of his parish well. Though he was taken away from it suddenly, he left his charge in good condition. Just before he died he had the whole interior of the church painted. The fabric of the church, the hall and the presbytery are all a credit to him and are a fitting reminder of his constant care and diligence.

His involvement and popularity went far beyond the bounds of the parish. While in Annan, he was involved in the local health board, the old people's welfare committee and the society for the mentally handicapped. Through his involvement in committees like these and through his friendship and co-operation with the ministers of the other Christian denominations he did much to create good inter-denominational relationships in the town and helped to break down many barriers.

A man of serious disposition, quiet and undemonstrative, wherever he went Father John Murphy engendered friendship. Anyone's death leaves a tremendous void. With his passing many people said: "I've lost a good friend". R.I.P.

The Very Reverend James Canon Matthews — 1st May, 1978

James Canon Matthews, the oldest priest of the Diocese of Dunkeld, and living for the past year in retirement, died very suddenly at the home of his devoted house-keeper, Miss Margaret Dolan, Muirton Place, Perth, on Monday, 1st of May, 1978. Although in the eighty-seventh year of his age and the fifty-ninth of his priesthood, nevertheless, his death came as a great shock to his many friends, clerical and lay, who had hoped that he might be spared for several years to enjoy his well-deserved rest after the many years of devoted service to the Church and to the diocese.

James Matthews was born in Partick, Glasgow, on 9th February, 1892, the son of John Matthews and Mary Hamilton, pious parents, whose influence is shown by the fact that four of their family found their vocation in the Church. He entered Blairs in 1904 and after three years passed to the Scots College, Spain, in 1907, at the very early age of fifteen. Whether this had any effect on his progress there or whether the turbulent state of the Iberian Peninsula at the time influenced him, it is now impossible to ascertain but he left the Scots College in March, 1912 and returned to Scotland. For the next two years he worked as a clerk in the shipyards of his native Partick, and a most meticulous clerk he must have been, but his heart during this time must have been centred on the priestly life for in August, 1914, he was re-admitted to the Scots College.

His second period at the Scots College not only gave him the necessary training for the priesthood, but an enduring affection for everything Spanish; and it was his great regret in his declining years that he could no more enjoy, as in former times, an annual visit to Spain to savour once again the joys and pleasures of his alma mater. Passing through all the minor and major steps to the priesthood, he was ordained priest in Valladolid Cathedral by the Auxiliary Bishop, Peter Segura Saenz, on Saturday, 14th June, 1919. By nature a quiet, unassuming man, if ever James Matthews boasted, it was that he had been ordained by the future Cardinal Segura, Archbishop of Toledo and Primate of Spain.

After a few months curacy in St. Mary's, Lochee, Father Matthews was then sent to St. Mary's, Forebank in February, 1920. He remained in St. Mary's until 1930 and it was during these ten years in the Hilltown district of the city that he made his lasting reputation as a priest completely dedicated to the salvation of souls and adult Christian education of the people. During this time he had charge of the Men's Sacred Heart Confraternity. This may, today, be an organisation of the past, but when we consider that at that time, in the early 'twenties, Father Matthews could assemble some 900 men every Monday evening over the greater part of the year, and hold them together during an hour's lecture on some aspect of Church teaching, apologetics, liturgy or history, illustrates not only his ability as a lecturer, but also the place such lectures held in the apostolate to the laity. Woe betide anyone who missed the lecture! A young baker, one Monday evening, had to work overtime to prepare an extra batch of morning rolls for the next day. He had to miss the weekly lecture and thought no more about it. But the next evening there was Father Matthews on the door-step asking the reason why!

For three years, from 1930 to 1933, Father Matthews served in St. Joseph's. Here he ran a successful girls' club during these terrible years of the Depression keeping the girls of the parish together in a time of great trial and hardship. Many of these girls never forgot their spiritual director in the years to come; indeed only a few months before his retirement a bus party arrived at his door to wish him well.

In 1933, Father Matthews was promoted to his first charge at St. Thomas', Arbroath, and in June, 1940 was transferred to St. Mungo's, Alloa. It was here that he was to serve the people of God for the next thirty-six years. When Father Matthews arrived in Alloa, the Second World War had begun. This had brought a tremendous disruption of family life and many years of social unrest. Plans for a new church in Alloa had been drawn up but now all that had to be shelved for the duration of the war, as no new buildings could be planned due to the scarcity of building materials. Even when peace came in 1945 there was no glimmer of hope as housing was now the national priority, and government restrictions made it impossible to plan anything definitive.

But during these war years, Father Matthews had not been idle. He had "inherited" a small building fund of £4,000 from his predecessor in Alloa and, by careful administration, all surplus monies were being quietly and effectively put into the new church building and furnishing fund for the day when all government restrictions would be lifted and the new church could be built. During the post-war years on 18th March, 1948, Father Matthews was installed a Canon of the Chapter to the great joy of his parishioners who had come during these difficult times to deeply appreciate his worth as their parish priest.

The new church of St. Mungo, Canon Matthews' memorial in Alloa and the diocese was finally opened and consecrated by Bishop Hart on 21st September, 1961. During forty-seven years the priests and people of Alloa had laboured together for this glorious venture and this was the fruit of their patient work. Many of the earlier parishioners who had so wonderfully aided each successive pastor had gone to their eternal reward but their efforts had not been in vain. A magnificent church and presbytery had arisen in Alloa, a building worthy to be called the house of God.

Immediately after the war years, the small mining village of Tullibody began to increase in numbers due to the influx of miners from Lanarkshire. Recognising the future state of this community, Canon Matthews immediately made provision for the Catholics of the area. The Tullibody Miners' Institute was hired for the saying of Mass and, each Sunday, the Alloa clergy would travel to ensure the religious welfare of this distant part of the Alloa parish. At the same time, Canon Matthews began a fund for the eventual building of a church and had the great joy of seeing the church of St. Bernadette opened by His Lordship Bishop Hart in June, 1963.

As the years went by, Canon Matthews reluctantly had to withdraw more and more from the scenes of his long pastorate. After twenty-one years he retired from the Clackmannanshire Education Committee in 1961 and from the Dunkeld Chapter in 1975. Increasing infirmity compelled him finally to retire from St. Mungo's in May, 1976 after the long period of thirty-six years as parish priest. He retired at first to Wellburn Cottage, Dundee, and finally to the home of his devoted housekeeper for forty-three years, Miss Margaret Dolan. It was here that he suddenly died in the evening of 1st June, 1978, in his eighty-seventh year.

Canon Matthews was a priest of the old school. Strict with himself, he expected the same almost ascetical standards from other people: at times forgetting that not all had had the same rigorous training or possessed the same toughness of character. Unyielding, if he considered a point of Church teaching or doctrine in danger of being compromised, he willingly ran the risk of all men of his calibre of being often misunderstood or even disliked. At all times his only purpose in life was to be a good holy priest for the Lord and a strong shepherd for the people. With that he was content; without that he would have been nothing.

After Solemn Pontifical Mass in St. John's, Perth, during which Bishop Hart paid eloquent tribute to Canon Matthews' worth as a priest of the diocese, the Canon, at his own request, was conveyed to Alloa and buried in Sunnyside Cemetery among so many of those that he had known, cared for, and buried, during his long years as their spiritual father. May his soul rest in peace among his people.

Reverend Vincent Grace — 23rd May, 1978

Father Vincent Grace died in Gateside Hospital, Greenock, after a short illness, on 23rd May, 1978. The capacity congregation at his Requiem Mass in St. Mary's was a demonstration of the love in which he was held, particularly by the Greenock community.

Father Vincent was born on 11th October, 1907, in the venerable parish of St. Mary's, Glasgow. He studied in St. Mary's College, Blairs, and St. Peter's College, Bearsden. After his ordination to the priesthood in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, in June, 1934, he was appointed to St. Mary's, Paisley. Thereafter his curacy appointments were to St. Mungo's, Greenock, St. Mary's, Greenock and St. Andrew's, Greenock. During this time, he also served as an Army chaplain from 1941-1946, and as an R.A.F. chaplain from 1950-1953.

His pastorates were in Christ the King, Howwood, St. Patrick's, Greenock, St. Thomas', Neilston, and St. Joseph's, Wemyss Bay. Father Vincent gave up his charge in St. Joseph's in 1975 owing to his failing health and retired to the Little Sisters, Greenock, where he remained until his untimely death.

In every place he served, Father Vincent was loved for his great charity and approachability. He had a special affection for the people of Greenock, where he had spent a major part of his ministry. Going through the shopping centre in Greenock with Father Vincent in his latter years was quite an experience. Every few yards he was stopped by people wanting to speak to him; shop assistants waved to him from the shops or ran out for a quick word with him. He was a well-known and well-loved figure. He seemed to have a special apostolate for old people and for children, and they very much returned the affection that he gave them. Throughout his life, Father Vincent displayed a childlike simplicity and total disregard of material things. His greatest pleasure was "in giving".

Bishop McGill was the principal concelebrant of Father Vincent's Requiem Mass on 26th May at St. Mary's, Greenock, with a large number of priests from the Paisley diocese and elsewhere. Bishop Charles Renfrew, Bishop-Auxiliary of Glasgow was present in the sanctuary. Thereafter, Father Vincent was laid to rest in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. May his gentle and humble soul rest in peace.

Very Reverend Hugh Canon Cassidy — 4th June, 1978

Canon Hugh Cassidy was born on 24th August, 1908. He was the eldest of four children and spent the early years of his life in the Kinning Park district of Glasgow.

His preparation for the priesthood began at Blairs College and continued at St. Sulpice in Paris and St. Peter's, Bearsden. He remembered, with fondness, his days as a student and often spoke with humour about some of the more light-hearted moments in the midst of hard work and applied study.

In 1932, his studies completed, he was ordained in St. Peter's College and was appointed to serve as a curate in the parish of St. Mary's, Duntocher.

He met the challenge of this first experience of parish work with immense enthusiasm and his kindness, dedication and sense of commitment won him a very special place in the hearts of the Duntocher people.

He took pride and pleasure in building up a strong youth movement by unflinching devotion to the Boys' and Girls' Guilds. They were a "close-knit" and happy community, many of whom achieved success in different fields later in life. It was remarkable that so often when one mentioned a notable public figure or staunch "pillar of the church", he would comment with a well deserved air of achievement that "he" or "she" was in "the guild of St. Mary's".

Perhaps, though, the people of Duntocher and Clydebank will remember most, the dedicated work he performed during the war. In 1941, the area around Clydebank was badly devastated. Faced with death and danger, and with complete disregard for his own safety, he became a real missionary of mercy, tending the injured, consoling the dying and bringing comfort to troubled hearts.

After eighteen very memorable and happy years in Duntocher, he was appointed to the parish of Holy Cross, Crosshill, for a period of three and a half years.

The sudden death of his brother, Father Thomas Cassidy in June, 1953, came as a hard blow to him. They had always been very close and he missed his companionship greatly.

1954 saw his first appointment as parish priest. He was asked to shoulder the grave and onerous responsibility of founding a new parish—St. Pius X, Drumchapel. Building up a new parish with no tradition, no church and few amenities was no easy task but Father Hugh undertook the assignment with tremendous enthusiasm and courage. Drumchapel was at that time a developing area and so he had also the additional challenge of moulding a congregation, taken from many parts of the city, encouraging them to feel involved and happy in their surroundings.

In 1957, his labour bore fruit. The church completed—Father Cassidy and the parish of St. Pius X, had a place of worship "to call their own". It was a memorable year for him, marked also by the occasion of his silver jubilee in the priesthood. Although the task of building the church was completed, his work was still growing day by day. As the area developed, more people inhabited the district and the pastor's flock increased in number daily.

Baptising the newly born members of his parish always gave him great joy. He used to say with a chuckle, that he could tell the boys from the girls because "the boys always cried when the water was poured over their heads". He dearly loved children and seemed to be able to communicate with them so easily. This was particularly evident when, as religious inspector of schools, he spoke to the children at their own level and long before modern thought on religious education evoked their interest by revolving his teaching around experiences with which they were familiar and including, as was so characteristic of him, a variety of light-hearted anecdotes.

This child-like sense of humour was a quality which endeared him not only to children but to adults too. He truly loved to laugh and had a delightful repertoire of old Scottish sayings which were as his "mother used to say".

There was a serious side to his nature, also. Basically, a shy man, he never sought the limelight, preferring to stay in the background and attend to his work, quietly. Sincere and straightforward in his dealings with people, he may at times have taken some people aback by his refreshing honesty and preference for calling a "spade a spade". To those who were fortunate to have his friendship, he was a loyal and thoughtful friend. To those who came to him for guidance, he was a wise and understanding counsellor. Sensitive to the needs of others, he performed many acts of kindness and generosity in a discreet and unassuming way.

During his stay in Drumchapel, he was appointed dean of the area, taking an interest in the activities of all the parishes in his deanery and supporting, loyally, the new changes brought about by his ecclesiastical superiors. He kept abreast of these by having at hand and studying all available documents and references on the subject. I'm sure he must have been the best customer in the Catholic book shops!

In 1972, his faithful service was rewarded and he was made an honorary canon. This was an honour which he joyfully and humbly accepted. Resplendent in his canonical robes he had a few humorous comments to make about the spectacle of himself in his new attire.

Although he was, at this time, sixty-four years of age, his appearance belied this. He always looked a picture of health and even at this age, sported a mop of blond, wavy hair.

Sadly, though, in 1975, he became ill and was admitted to Canniesburn Hospital to undergo a major operation. His tremendous faith and unflinching devotion to the Blessed Virgin and St. Pius X, sustained him through this difficult time and his courage and good humour was an inspiration to all those with whom he came in contact. The surgeon and entire medical team were astonished by his resilience and rapid recovery and within six weeks, he had returned to parish work.

Sadly, though, as time went on, the strain of the operation began to take its toll and the canon found that he had less energy to tackle the amount of work involved in running a large parish. In the light of this he accepted the offer of an appointment to a smaller rural parish—St. Gildas', Rosneath.

After a lifetime spent in city parishes, it was a traumatic change for a man of his age. However, he undertook his new assignment, enthusiastically. Although a smaller parish, the area which it enfolded was widespread and included two non-denominational schools and a home for mentally handicapped children. His methodical and analytical mind was a valuable asset in organising both the work of his new parish and inter-denominational activities, which were an important part of community life in the area. He enjoyed a good relationship with the other Christian churches and they respected his strong faith and dedication.

His stay at St. Gildas', however, was a short one. His health was declining and he missed also the companionship of his fellow priests. Nevertheless, he had no intention of retiring and so when the archbishop gave him the opportunity to move back to Glasgow and assist Father Michael O'Keeffe in his new parish — St. Dominic's, Bishopbriggs, he was pleased to accept, realising that he was unable to cope with the demands of St. Gildas' singlehanded. He was delighted to renew, too, his old alliance with Father O'Keeffe; they had served together as curates in Holy Cross. Father O'Keeffe was, in turn, pleased to have the help, support and companionship of his friend in his new parish.

It was here at St. Dominic's that Canon Hugh spent his last few months. It was sad to see the once robust and portly man becoming thinner and more frail each day.

At the end of April, he was admitted to the Western Infirmary to undergo a series of tests. The results were conclusive and confirmed what he had in his heart suspected for some time. The specialist who made the diagnosis was filled with admiration by his calm acceptance and courage.

This was to be particularly characteristic of his tremendous spirit during the next few weeks. Despite considerable suffering, he returned to St. Dominic's where he continued with his priestly duties. Indeed, only three weeks before his death, he concelebrated Holy Mass at confirmation in the parish.

As each day passed his health deteriorated and on 24th May, he was admitted to Bon Secours Hospital. Despite considerable weakness, such was his iron determination, that he insisted on celebrating Mass in the church before being taken to the hospital.

Two weeks later, on the evening of Sunday, 4th June, Canon Hugh Cassidy died. His remains were received at St. Dominic's, Bishopbriggs on Tuesday, 6th June, and the following day, prior to his interment at Dalbeth Cemetery, concelebrated Requiem Mass was offered by Archbishop Winning, his two auxiliary bishops and over sixty priests. The large number of people who attended from all the parishes in which he had ministered, was a tribute which revealed the high regard in which he was held by all those who came to know him during his lifetime.

I will always remember his fervent devotion to the Holy Rosary and his daily recital of the little prayer:

“Jesus, Mary and Joseph, I give you my heart and my soul”

“Jesus, Mary and Joseph, assist me in my last agony”

“Jesus, Mary and Joseph, may I breathe forth my soul in peace with you”.

Lord, hear his prayer and grant that he may have everlasting peace.

The Right Reverend Monsignor Hamish Canon Stuart, V.G., J.P., 5th June, 1978

Pray for the repose of the Right Reverend Hamish Canon Stuart, former Vicar-General of the Diocese of Dunkeld, who died suddenly on Monday night, 5th June, 1978, in the sixty-eighth year of his age, and the forty-third year of his priestly life.

Though born in St. Patrick's parish, Dundee, on 20th August, 1910, Mgr. Stuart never forgot, indeed he took immense pride in the fact, that he came from families deeply rooted in Banffshire; families that had kept the faith despite poverty and hardship down to his own time, and to whom he owed, in some measure, his vocation and his life-long devotion to the Church.

He entered Blairs in 1923 and the Scots College, Spain in 1929. During his years at college he impressed his superiors in his quiet efficient way and was appointed Decano of the Scots College during his final years there. Having passed through all the necessary stages of his clerical training he was ordained priest in the ancient cathedral of Valladolid on 31st May, 1936, by Archbishop Remigio Gandasegui y Gorrochategui. He was later to recount this as the happiest day of his life but somewhat marred by the fact that only one member of his family was able to be present, while seminary regimes of the time were such that the ordinands found themselves back at the refectory table for breakfast on what was to be an ordinary working day. In later years, he often used the incident to illustrate to younger clergy the aggiornamento that had taken place in his life-time in ecclesiastical training.

On his return to Scotland he was first appointed to St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dumfries and some time later to St. Margaret's Ayr, under the legendary Mgr. McHardy. There was no vacancy for him in Dunkeld at the time—changed days indeed—and so he was sent “on loan” to the Diocese of Galloway until one occurred.

In 1938, Father Stuart was recalled to his own diocese. After a short curacy at St. Joseph's, Dundee, he was transferred in June, 1940, to St. Patrick's, his native parish. During the years of World War II that he spent there, he was responsible for the Catholic patients of Maryfield Hospital, the aged poor of East House (known euphemistically in the parish as 22 Mains Loan) and his district of visitation was the far-flung area of Mid-Craigie which after the war, in 1950, was to be opened as a separate parish under the patronage of St. Vincent de Paul. He soon became a familiar figure in the parish, going everywhere, even in the black-out, on his bicycle, and ever available to all those for whom the war had brought sadness and heart-break. At the same time as many an old body appreciated his coming to light their fire or wash their floor, young altar boys standing shivering on the doorstep of East House, in their innocence, would wonder why he had chosen the unearthly hour of six o'clock to celebrate Mass. This, with the Sunday school, running youth clubs, hospital and home visitations, sick calls and perhaps especially the instruction of converts and the hearing of confessions, was his priestly life during the eight years he spent in the east-end parish. It was perhaps in the confessional that Father Stuart excelled. He seemed to be able to throw off his natural shyness and diffidence when hearing confessions, placing himself and his deep spirituality at the complete disposal of his penitent. In February, 1948, Father Stuart was given his first charge at St. Anne's, Carnoustie.

Here he modernised both church and presbytery. At the time it was a small and rather poor congregation of some eighty souls and although in these immediate post-war years there was still much hardship and deprivation Father Stuart was happy in Carnoustie; keeping in regular contact with his far-flung parishioners by means of his newly-acquired motor-cycle. During these years, and indeed until 1966, Father Stuart also acted as the diocesan religious inspector of schools within the large and scattered area of Dunkeld. He was at the same time lecturer in Christian doctrine and apologetics to the prospective Catholic teachers of Dundee University and College of Education. In 1955, Father Stuart was transferred to St. John Vianney's, Alva, and in 1957, became the first parish priest of the new parish of St. Leonard's, Dundee.

At St. Leonard's, in the prime of life, Father Stuart, quietly but most effectively, worked to mould this large area of north-west Dundee into a united and vigorous parish. Organisations and groups were formed by him or his curates, but it was really through his local school, St. Margaret's, and its headmistress, Sister Mary Michael, that Father Stuart forged the lasting bonds that make St. Leonard's the fine Dundee parish that it is to-day. Few days there were, indeed, that he did not visit the school, knowing each child by his or her Christian name, thereby building up a personal relationship that was to last for many until the end of his life, and making many future personal or marital problems easier because of his fatherly interest and care in the early years. It was while at St. Leonard's in January, 1965, when Mgr. Foylan was nominated Bishop of Aberdeen, that Father Stuart was appointed Vicar-General of the Dunkeld diocese by Bishop Hart, a post that showed the esteem in which he was held by his bishop, and which greatly pleased his friends and parishioners, but which filled him with dismay and apprehension, a dismay that was only heightened a few months later when he was, in June, 1965, made a domestic prelate to His Holiness the Pope with the title of Monsignor. Truly a humble man, Hamish Stuart only accepted any post of honour or responsibility during his priestly life in priestly obedience to the will of his superiors. In April, 1966, he moved from St. Leonard's to the venerable parish of St. Mary's, Lochee, where he received the sincere and warm welcome of the clergy and people. It was the year of the centenary of the parish, 1966, and though a comparative stranger to Lochee, Mgr. Stuart so carried out the various ceremonies and events of the centenary that he quickly endeared himself to all concerned. St. Mary's gave him its respectful loyalty and support and with his guidance and encouragement for ten years continued to be one of the most flourishing and fruitful parishes of the diocese. In 1965, he had also been appointed a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter.

In 1976, Mgr. Stuart began to feel that after forty years of active apostolic work in the diocese the time had now come for him to give up his important diocesan posts and devote himself to the duties that he now felt himself fitted to carry out. This came as a great shock to those who had known and appreciated his sterling worth over the years and many tried to dissuade him from the course that he had decided. Their advice and protests were in vain. With characteristic humility and self-effacement, he tendered his resignation from St. Mary's, Lochee, and the vicar-generalship of the diocese in May, 1976; resignations that Bishop Hart, with regret, had to accept. In May, 1976, Mgr. Stuart went to St. Stephen's, Blairgowrie, where at first it was thought that he would still give many more years of devoted service to the Church and diocese. But this was not to be. After a few months as parish priest there, Mgr. Stuart came to the decision that because of the many miles connected with the parish and also because of the great need for the catechising of the parish children over the vast area, a much younger man who could drive and be available at all times should be the priest in charge. In December, 1976, he resigned from all diocesan responsibility and came to live in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee, until provision could be made for his remaining years.

During this time at the Cathedral, he continued to give the most eloquent testimony of his dedication to the priesthood. His Masses, his confessions, and his weekly sermons all showed the depth of his spiritual life and his introduction to the Masses, together with his daily Prayers of the Faithful helped all who, during this all too short a time, came to see him and appreciate him as the great priest of God that he was.

In the seven months that he spent in the cathedral, Dundee, he had been planning and preparing a little flat for himself, mostly at his own expense, within the new complex of St. Leonard's that had been blessed and opened by Bishop Hart on 25th April, 1975. It was to St. Leonard's that he finally retired in June, 1977, returning to the parish after an absence of eleven years.

During the last months of his life, Mgr. Stuart was happy and at peace. Having given up all his posts of responsibility he seemed content at being once more an assistant in a parish without having to keep books or make decisions. After a long active parish life this seemed a reasonable ambition but with hindsight it may well be wondered if Mgr. Stuart did not have some inner feeling that very soon he would be called from this life and all he now wished for was time to prepare for his going.

Certainly in the cathedral he had given a little of this impression. Excusing himself from most parish activities on the grounds that "he had his prayers to say" he spent more and more time in the church wrapped up in his black confessional cloak before the Blessed Sacrament even into the small hours of the morning.

On Monday, 5th June, he went out for his evening walk. He seemed in his usual good health but on returning about an hour later he was seen to collapse and fall in Macalpine Road only 100 yards from the church hall that had been his parish church for ten years. Within half an hour, the vicar-general, Mgr. Hanlon, was informed by Ninewells Hospital that, despite all the efforts of the ambulance crew, Mgr. Stuart had died on the way to the hospital.

Thus passed one who had given over forty years of example of a dedicated priest in Dunkeld. All his life he remained a very private person, not given to moving in social circles or giving his friendship easily. He was of a retiring nature, much happier with a book, than taking part in public affairs, and thus he shunned public engagements as much as possible. Through his reading his learning was great and profound, centred on the priestly sciences, but ranging over many wide and diverse subjects. His wit could be, at times, both humorous and clever, at other times somewhat caustic and biting which could be a little off-putting for those who did not know him well. He was, however, unremitting in his priestly duties—correct, regular and punctual at all times, always available in the confessional, devoted to the sick and perhaps, above all, deeply concerned about his own spiritual life. Later in the night of 5th June, his breviary, open at Compline for that day together with his meditation book were seen on a little table at the side of his chair. One likes to think he finished his prayers that day in heaven.

At his family's suggestion, Mgr. Stuart's remains were taken to St. John's, Perth for burial. This was the parish that he had grown up in and in which he begun his training for the priesthood. His conversations with the priests of the diocese often centred round the priests of Perth that he had known in his early years—Joe Cassidy, Alec Kerr and especially the remarkable parish priest of the time, Mgr. John Canon McDaniel—and so it was fitting that his Requiem Mass should be celebrated in that ancient church. His Lordship Bishop Hart and some thirty priests of the diocese gathered there on the morning of 8th June to mourn his passing. During the Mass, Bishop Hart spoke movingly of his own regret and that of the diocese at Mgr.'s death and conveyed to the family the deep sympathy that all felt for them at this time. He would be a great loss to both the family and the diocese but all must take comfort in the knowledge that he had now passed to that life that had been his goal and object during all his priestly life.

After the Requiem Mass, Mgr. Stuart was buried in Wellshill Cemetery, Perth, in the grave of his father, mother and younger sister. In the hope of the resurrection may he there rest in peace.

Reverend Daniel McMahon — 7th June, 1978

Daniel McMahon was born in Paisley on 20th May, 1915. Like most of their contemporaries, his parents had to contend with the burden of an economic depression which brought for them in its train unemployment, sickness, bereavement and an unacceptable level of poverty. The Catholic faith was their one treasure, constantly cherished in devout religious practice. Dan, the second of six children, was a sturdy, cheerful and attractive boy and it was no surprise when he went off to Blairs in August, 1930 after his early education at St. James' Primary School and St. Mirin's Academy. In September, 1934, he entered St. Peter's College, then at Bearsden, and he was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1941. After a short ministry of weeks at St. Alphonsus' he was appointed an assistant priest at St. Anne's, Glasgow. He was extremely zealous in those difficult war years and he displayed a particular gift for preaching.

Six or seven years after his ordination, however, an affliction which was to dominate his life began to manifest itself — alcoholism. The next ten years were punctuated with changes of parish and rest-periods in religious houses which considerate superiors prescribed in the hope that his infirmity would be arrested. In the early summer of 1960, during a sojourn at Stillorgan, Co. Dublin, Father McMahon was prevailed upon to attend a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous. This proved to be a turning point in his life. A chance meeting, shortly afterwards in Dublin, with two Americans — a priest and a layman — active in the rehabilitation of victims of this unfashionable disease led to his engagement as a counsellor with the Mount Carmel Guild in Paterson, New Jersey. After a few months there, Father Dan, by God's favour, found his real vocation. He became associated with Father Frederick Lawrence, S.T. at St. Joseph's Villa, Stirling, New Jersey in a wonderful apostolate among alcoholics, particularly clerical sufferers. At last Father Dan felt that his own adversities were bearing some fruit, because his personal experience gave him valuable insight for the role of spiritual adviser which he discharged with such sympathy. He drove himself unsparingly, as if to make up for lost time. The gift of communicating with others, already referred to, found a new field, for with Father Lawrence he gave retreats in many parts of the United States and Canada in addition to the work at St. Joseph's Villa.

The inevitable happened. In May, 1963, Father McMahon suffered a severe coronary thrombosis which was expected to prove fatal. Surprisingly he survived and still more surprisingly, at least to those who did not know him well, he was back at work before the end of the year. He again undertook a schedule unsuited to his physical condition. Stomach ulcers, peptic and duodenal, were diagnosed and diminished his capacity for the apostolate which he had undertaken. Another coronary attack brought his work at Stirling with Father Fred Lawrence to an end in 1973. No words can adequately describe Father Dan's debt to or the gratitude which he felt towards this noble American priest who was, without doubt, the most formative and salutary influence on Father McMahon's life. His friendship and advice led Father Dan to great fulfilment in the priesthood by encouraging him in that apostolate for which his own hard travail had particularly fitted him. After a couple of years in parish work in Delaware, Father Dan's ill-health forced him to give up and he returned home in 1975. He was unfit for regular parish duty. Some supply work, particularly at Shotts where priests and people showed him exceptional kindness, and a short period as chaplain to a special school in Cork was all that he could cope with. He retired finally to Ireland and received exemplary care from the Brothers of Charity and from the medical and nursing staff of Belmont Park Hospital, Waterford. He died suddenly on the morning of 7th June, 1978 and after the Funeral Mass he was buried there on 9th June.

It is important to express, in his obituary, Father McMahon's appreciation of the support afforded him over the last eighteen years of his life by the fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous and, especially, by the members of the Calix Society. That being said, it is just and right that we record that Father Dan—in his turn—accorded great assistance to many groups in the fellowship and to many individuals in Scotland, Ireland and the United States. No call was unheard, no demand unanswered, no help ever denied despite the cost.

While Father Dan made many new friends through A.A. and Calix, he never lost his old friends. It has been suggested that clerical alcoholics receive little sympathy from their fellow priests. That was quite untrue in his case. On visits home from the U.S.A. he had to make a regular round of certain presbyteries, not solely in the Archdiocese of Glasgow, where his friends welcomed him with a sincere affection which he found so comforting and sustaining. An appealing characteristic, which so charmed and indeed edified his friends, was his humble acceptance of his infirmity. There was no bitterness over his difficult lot, no complaint against God or man.

In common with all who undertake the recovery programme sponsored by Alcoholics Anonymous, Father McMahon trustingly took the "twelve steps" along that road. He again "made the decision to turn his will and his life over to the care of God . . . humbly asked him to remove his shortcomings . . . and sought through prayer and meditation to improve his conscious contact with God". For the gift of perseverance along that path he made daily use, as all A.A. members are so advised, of Reinhold Niebuhr's famous Serenity Prayer. It may now be adapted: "May God, who moved Father Dan to accept the things he could not change and who encouraged him to change the things he could, now grant unto him the serenity of eternal bliss. Amen."

Reverend Thomas Aloysius Kelly — 16th July, 1978

Father Thomas A. Kelly—TAK to his friends—died peacefully at the family home, Dennison Road, Dundee, on Sunday, 16th July, 1978.

Tak Kelly was a priest of the old school, a man who worked tirelessly in the vineyard of the Lord with little thought of reward or preferment. He saw his task quite clearly and he set out to complete that task: preaching the Gospel, celebrating the sacraments, burying the dead in total faithfulness to Christ and his Church.

Ordained in 1926 in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee, after his seminary training at Blairs and in France, Father Kelly served in a number of parishes in the Dunkeld diocese including St. Mary's, Forebank, St. Mary's, Lochee, St. John's, Perth. Later Father Kelly was transferred to the Archdiocese of Glasgow and spent a number of years at St. Peter's, Partick, and then at Our Lady's, Beith, Ayrshire. He was parish priest of Beith in 1947 when the Ayrshire parishes of Glasgow archdiocese were incorporated into Galloway. So Father Tom began a new career—a priest of the Diocese of Galloway. I'm sure that's how he would want to be remembered. Indeed the clergy of Galloway think of Tak as one of their number—parish priest of Beith and for the last twenty-odd years of his life, parish priest of St. Ann's, Annbank.

After twenty-one years at Annbank, a mining area in Ayrshire, continuing ill-health forced Father Kelly to retire and return to his sisters in Dundee.

The priests who followed Tak Kelly in his various parishes would not find splendid houses, lavish churches or even big bank balances, but they would find people with deep faith and high ideals. Surely that is the only testimony a priest needs. May he rest in peace.

Reverend Michael O'Carroll — 21st July, 1978

Michael O'Carroll was born at Seskin South, Ballyragget, Co. Kilkenny, Ireland, on 7th July, 1892, and baptized in St. Brigid's Church, Lisdowney. He received his early education at Lisdowney School and decided to try his vocation as a Christian Brother. Accordingly, he entered the novitiate at Marino, Dublin, and was duly professed, his name in religion being Brother Albert. As a Christian Brother, he taught for a time in the O'Connell Schools in Dublin.

Deciding that his vocation was to the priesthood rather than to the religious life, in 1917 he began his training at the seminary attached to the Cistercian Abbey of Mount Melleray and transferred the following year to St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny. He was ordained priest on 8th June, 1924, by the Most Reverend James Downey, Coadjutor Bishop of Ossory.

Coming to Glasgow that year, he was appointed to St. Mary's, Abercromby Street, where he was to remain until 1928, when he was transferred to St. Mary's, Paisley. In the following year, he returned to the city, where he joined the staff of St. Mark's, Carntyne, which was, at that time, linked with St. Paul's Shettleston, as a united charge, producing its own difficulties. After five years working in the East End of Glasgow, Father O'Carroll was appointed chaplain to St. Mary's Industrial School, Kenmure, Bishopbriggs, which was in those days in the care of the De La Salle Brothers. He was to spend six years in this highly specialized, and at the same time highly rewarding, apostolate. In 1940, he went to St. David's, Whiterigg, Lanarkshire, and two years later returned to Renfrewshire, to St. John's, Barrhead.

After five years, in 1947, he was appointed to West Kilbride as its first parish priest, St. Bride's having been until then a chapel of ease to Saltcoats and Ardrossan. There he was to spend the remaining twenty-seven years of his active priestly life, and it was there that, as a result of the division of the Archdiocese of Glasgow which came into effect in 1948, he became a priest of the Diocese of Galloway. For all those years, he laboured to bring the people entrusted to him to God and God to them. On the occasion of his priestly golden jubilee in 1974, which also marked his retirement to Ireland, his parishioners paid tribute to him for "having given himself wholeheartedly, zealously and unreservedly in the interests of his flock". On the same occasion, Bishop McGee of Galloway endorsed every word in the address. He described Father O'Carroll as a man of great charity who practised what he preached. The diocese was losing a devoted priest, he said, and it was a matter of deep regret that he was leaving West Kilbride. Father O'Carroll was not only one of the priests of his diocese, he went on, but a friend.

Father O'Carroll spent the four years of his retirement at Clonakilty, Co. Cork, where he was devotedly cared for by the sisters at St. Paul's Convent, Bushmount. There on 21st July, 1978, a fortnight after his eighty-sixth birthday, he passed to the Master, whom he had so faithfully served, first as a religious and then, for fifty-four years, as a priest. His mortal remains await the resurrection in the graveyard of the church of St. Brigid, Lisdowney, Co. Kilkenny, where he rose from the waters of baptism to newness of life.

Reverend Anthony Boyle — 23rd July, 1978

Anthony Boyle was born in Chittagong, on 24th May, 1939. At the age of six he was brought to Portstewart, Northern Ireland, where he was educated at the local primary school and at St. Colum's College, Derry. During his final year at school he was recruited for the Diocese of Dunkeld by the late Canon McKinley, who was on holiday in the district. He entered All Hallows College, Dublin, on 11th November, 1956.

Doctor Thomas Lane, Rector of All Hallows, writes: "Anthony was the youngest member of a very large class at the time and he showed a maturity and sense of responsibility which were quite outstanding. He was a devout student who obviously had imbibed a deep and sincere faith in the family setting. He was conscientious in his studies and he was successful in all the college examinations. He was affable and pleasant in his dealing with both staff and students."

From the beginning of his college career, Tony showed that he had an innate respect for authority which was evident in a politeness which was in no way exaggerated. In his various social relations he showed that he could be very firm and determined in following his principles. The college authorities had no hesitation in recommending him for ordination in 1962.

That summer he arrived in Dundee and was appointed to St. Joseph's, under the late Canon Malloy. As well as performing his work in the parish, in the school and in the hospitals under his care, he turned his attention to the young people of the district. In characteristic fashion, he took an intensive course in youth leadership. Afterwards he set up a youth club and, with the aid of some of the young people, he founded St. Joseph's Community Centre. In 1970, in recognition of his work for young people, he was named Dundee's "Citizen of the Year"—the first Catholic priest to receive this honour.

In 1971, he was appointed pastor of St. James', Kinross. Here he continued his energetic work for the Church and the kingdom of God. Although it was not recognised at the time, Father Boyle reached the climax of his work for the kingdom in Kinross. St. James' Parish Council came into being through his initiative, as well as the Union of Catholic Mothers. He was a regular and welcome visitor to his parishioners, and undertook to say the rosary in every home in the parish. He also played a leading role in the community at large and helped to twin Kinross with the Normandy town of Gace.

In 1976, he was transferred from Kinross to St. Ninian's Church in Menzieshill, a new suburb of Dundee. Here he found himself chaplain to the new Ninewells hospital, a task to which he applied himself with his usual vigour and enthusiasm. In his two years as chaplain to the hospital he was to make himself known and loved by all, irrespective of creed and class. Above all, however, it was to the patients that he brought his warmth and courage and there were few who did not appreciate a visit from him. Nor did he neglect his work in the parish, hoping to establish the same warm bond of respect and friendship that he had enjoyed in St. Joseph's and in Kinross. To this end, though frequently fatigued by his efforts in the hospital, he proceeded to visit all the parishioners in Menzieshill. But he was not to be spared. He died of cancer on Sunday, 23rd July, 1978, in the presence of his father. On Wednesday, 26th July, Bishop Hart of Dunkeld concelebrated a Requiem Mass for him with sixty-two of his fellow priests, in the presence of a large representation from Tayside Regional Council and Dundee District Council, officials from Ninewells Hospital and a congregation that overflowed into the church grounds. On Friday, 28th July, Tony was laid to rest in his beloved Portstewart. May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend William Canon McGhee — 4th September, 1978

William McGhee was born in Glasgow in 1900; baptised in St. Mary's, Abercromby Street, and moved with his family to Rutherglen while still a boy. From there he entered St. Mary's College, Blairs and upon completion of his course of studies was called up to the army during the First World War. For a time he was stationed in the south of Ireland, and used to wryly recall an incident there: seeing a large crowd gathering for an open air meeting, he joined them to listen to the speaker. Late in the proceedings it dawned on him that he was present at a Sinn Fein meeting, and wearing a British uniform. Fortunately nobody bothered with him. He was then, and was to remain throughout his life "an innocent abroad". After demobilisation, he completed his studies at St. Peter's, Bearsden and was ordained in 1924.

He was appointed as an assistant in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Clyde Street, where he had seventeen years of intensive formation which fostered in him a great reverence for obedience and loyalty to the Church. After his very fruitful career in the cathedral and in his ministry to the Royal Maternity Hospital, Rottenrow, he was sent as parish priest to Newmains in Lanarkshire and, from thence, to Christ the King, King's Park. Possibly it was there that his interest in Catholic education was aroused, when he was instrumental in the founding of a much needed school in the area. This interest was given every opportunity to develop when he joined the board of religious examiners for schools, and eventually became the last chief inspector before the advent of the modern approach to catechetics. His next move was to Shettleston as parish priest of St. Mark's. His uncle, Canon Tennant, parish priest of the Holy Family and St. Ninian's, Kirkintilloch, died. Father Willie became his successor. This was a tremendous challenge, for he had a lot of esteem for his late uncle, regarding him as the priest par excellence, and now felt he had a very high standard to come up to.

During his charge of Kirkintilloch, in 1965, he was appointed a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter. He also had the great joy of seeing the church consecrated, seizing the opportunity to remove the altar from the back wall of the sanctuary, and erecting a beautiful marble altar in the centre of that sanctuary in preparation for the imminent introduction of the New Rite of Mass. In the wake of the Second Vatican Council the canon wilted at what seemed a maelstrom of changes, but characteristically he implemented those that emanated from the Holy Father or the archbishop.

Canon McGhee was the soul of honour, and expected every priest to have as a natural characteristic the principle of duty as implied in the very nature of the priesthood. He possessed accomplishments little suspected till closer acquaintance with him brought them out. His shyness and humility made him diffident of himself and of his opinions to a degree that was sometimes embarrassing. A scrupulous and prudent person, it pained him to be pressed for an immediate answer to a problem—such a happening would cause him days of anxiety. Without guile, and gentle, he could display a surprising firmness in matters of faith and morals. Under his unpretending exterior there lay an intense thinker, a lover of the priesthood and the Church; a man with an impish sense of humour, but never at home in social gatherings. He was a pattern of obedience to the Church, universal and local. Above all he was a priest of prayer with deep devotion to Our Lady and St. John Vianney. The beautifying and the cleanliness of the church were matters of great concern to him.

Age and deteriorating health brought him to the decision to retire in June, 1977, after much prayer and thought. He continued to live in the presbytery. Much of his time was spent in reading and writing about catechetics. During the first six months of 1978 he seemed to have a new lease of life, but was noticeably losing weight. On Tuesday, 29th August, he returned to Kirkintilloch after a sojourn in Balloch, and immediately required medical assistance. Late on Sunday, 3rd September, there was such a rapid deterioration in his condition that, after receiving the sacraments he had to be rushed to hospital. One hour later, at 12.30 a.m., Monday, 4th September, he gave up his soul. Seventy priests concelebrated the Requiem with Archbishop Winning and Canon McGhee was laid to rest, with his brothers in the priesthood who had preceded him, in St. Kentigern's, Lambhill.

"Such are the men, O Lord, who seek your face."

Reverend James Bede O'Donnell — 5th October, 1978

The ordination to the priesthood of James Bede O'Donnell on 24th June, 1930, took place in his native city of Glasgow rather than elsewhere because of a promise made by the then Abbot of Fort Augustus, Andrew Joseph McDonald, O.S.B. by now Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. The promise had been made to Father Bede's mother when he, with several other members of the Fort Augustus community, left Scotland to found the new Priory of St. Anselm's, Washington, U.S.A. America, in the early 'twenties, seemed like the end of the earth and his mother felt that was the last she would see of her son. It was the days of prohibition and bootlegging and Father Bede in later years was to draw forth many a chuckle when he recounted those early days in America and how the community at the outset lived in what was a converted sausage factory.

James O'Donnell was born in Glasgow in 1905 and was educated at St. Mungo's Academy. He entered the Abbey of St. Benedict at Fort Augustus as a novice in 1922 receiving the name in religion of Dom Bede.

Events were to conspire to keep Father Bede, as he was always affectionately called, away from the abbey. His studies in philosophy and theology were at the Catholic University of Washington. Back home, after his ordination in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, by the late Archbishop Mackintosh, and his first Mass in his native parish of St. Aloysius', Garnethill, he became parish priest of Fort Augustus parish. Throughout the war years, 1940-45, he served as an army chaplain in Palestine, Syria and Egypt before being transferred, after Montgomery's push at El Alamein, to the hospital ship Liandover Castle in the Mediterranean. On his return to Fort Augustus after army service he was appointed procurator to the abbey and supplied frequently in neighbouring parishes.

It came as no great surprise when, with the blessing of his superiors, he offered his services to the Aberdeen Diocese. After temporary appointments in 1952-53 to the cathedral, Aberdeen, and to Marydale, he became parish priest of Our Lady, Star of the Sea, Fraserburgh. Then, in 1959, he was appointed parish priest of the Sacred Heart, Torry, and finally in 1961 of Our Lady and St. Bean, Marydale, Cannich, the longest serving priest in the history of the parish.

All the places to which Father Bede was appointed witness to his zeal for the house of God; he ensured that all Church property committed to his charge was carefully maintained and, if possible, improved upon. His artistic taste and liturgical knowledge were everywhere evident. A few months before he died he launched a special fund for the pointing of the walls and the painting of the church at Cannich, a work that had last been carried out under his direction on the occasion of the centenary celebrations of Marydale parish in 1966.

For Father Bede proper maintenance meant periodic inspection and decoration and not just once-in-a-lifetime effort. This attitude was seen in effect from his early days in Fraserburgh where his first major task was the installation of electricity in the church which, until 1953, had been lit by gas. At Torry, he had correspondence and interviews with local government officials to obtain a grant for his modernisation programme thereby successfully easing the financial burden on the diocese.

It was there also that he received his first warning of ill-health as a heart condition put him on the side-lines for some weeks. Bishop Walsh, anxious for his future well-being offered him the quieter country parish of Marydale and so Father Bede returned to the parish he had served for four months in 1953 on the death of Father Colin Macdonald. He took over on the demise of Father George Kerr.

Of a quiet and gentle disposition Father Bede always found it difficult to turn down any appeal for help and although each year found him that bit more frail he answered Bishop Foylan's call to help out at Invergordon. Although he was now approaching seventy years of age, the summer Sundays saw Father Bede making the round trip of eighty miles to say Mass at Invergordon, until this was undertaken by the priest at Dingwall. In February of 1976, his health again gave cause for concern and, on the doctor's orders, he reluctantly gave up Eskdale which had temporarily been put in his charge also.

From a varied life, Father Bede was able to draw on a wealth of experiences, something others were quick to realise as they made him their confidant, sure of a sympathetic ear, kind, understanding and wise counsel.

He was a much sought-after speaker on his war experiences, particularly by the Rotary clubs. A noted author-acquaintance paid his own little tribute when exclaiming that he was angry with Father Bede for dying on him. He had hoped to draw material from Father Bede's own exploits and anecdotes for his forthcoming book on the Second World War.

When the long creaking tree does finally fall it still comes as a surprise. In the early hours of Thursday, 5th October, the anniversary of the dedication of Aberdeen Cathedral to which he had received his first appointment, Father Bede failed to recover from a massive coronary thrombosis. On 9th October, for the Requiem Mass with some twenty concelebrants, led by Bishop Conti, there was an overcrowded church. His lordship fittingly took, as his homily text, the Beatitudes; everyone present could have applied much of them to this well-loved, gentle priest.

This obituary started with the fulfilment of a promise and concludes with the fulfilment of a wish, Father Bede's desire to be buried at the abbey, Fort Augustus. As the cortège entered the monastery grounds, it was met by the monks, led by Abbot Nicholas Holman, chanting the Office of the Dead.

The curtain gently closed on the scene where it began years ago.
To his gentle soul, God grant eternal rest.

Very Reverend John Charles Provost Battel — 13th October, 1978

On the 30th May, 1926, in the Irish College in Paris, the Right Rev. Edward Mulhearn, Bishop of Dromore, laid this charge on a young ordinand for the priesthood, John Charles Battel, whose life span at that moment in time was twenty-three years and two months; "Let your teaching be a spiritual remedy for God's people; let the fragrance of your life be a delight to the Church of Christ, that both by teaching and example you may build up that house which is the family of God." For fifty-two years and four months, John Charles Battel faithfully and diligently fulfilled this charge until on the 13th October, 1978, God called him to his eternal reward.

He was born at Stonepark Aclare, Co. Sligo, on 9th March, 1903, and was educated at St. Nathy's College, Ballaghadreen. He entered the Irish College in Paris on the 24th September, 1920, was raised to the diaconate on 5th November, 1925, and ordained priest on 30th May, 1926, for service in the Archdiocese of Glasgow.

The first twenty years of his pastoral ministry were spent as an assistant priest at St. Anthony's in Govan amidst the tenements and shipyards. These were the bleak days of the economic depression of the late 'twenties and early 'thirties that knew real poverty, suffering and hardships. There was always, however, a deep bond of affection and respect between the priests and the people and Father Battel was renowned both for his compassion and leadership in uplifting the hearts of the people, inspiring their minds and instilling in them a deep sense of pride in themselves and that most precious heritage their Catholic faith while directing all his youthful energy in many varied fields of the apostolate. These days heralded in the Second World War and the German blitz on the Clydeside is now a part of history. During one of the nights of heavy bombing, Father Battel narrowly escaped death when a land mine destroyed a block of tenements as he made his way to the Southern General Hospital.

In 1946, he was given his first charge as parish priest of St. Bride's, East Kilbride, which in 1947 became part of the newly formed Diocese of Motherwell. In those days, East Kilbride was a quiet rural village with a Catholic population of some 500 people who had never experienced the joy of a priest of their own. Here for him began the arduous work of building a new parish with all the difficulties and restrictions attendant on the aftermath of the war with a small Catholic community hardly financially viable but with a tremendous generosity of heart and purse that responded wholeheartedly to his leadership. It was at East Kilbride that Father Battel attained his silver jubilee in the priesthood but such are the strange ways of providence that the simple parochial celebration of the event had to be postponed until his recovery from a severe pneumonia that had brought him very near death's door.

In that rhythm of change which is in the nature of things, he was appointed parish priest at St. Patrick's, Coatbridge, and later at St. Joseph's, Blantyre. These were days of heavy diocesan responsibility alongside his immediate parochial commitment in large demanding parishes. His seventeen years as the bishop's representative on the Lanarkshire Education Authority must rank as his outstanding individual contribution to the well-being of the Church in the County of Lanark, where today in this Diocese of Motherwell there are fourteen secondary schools and seventy-four primary schools. Appointed to the Cathedral Chapter by the late Archbishop Scanlan, he was made Provost of the Chapter by Bishop Thomson. The last nine years of his priestly life were spent as parish priest at St. Aloysius, Chapelhall—an appointment he willingly accepted as a new challenge with a relish, energy, vitality and good humour that belied his advancing years. It was at Chapelhall that he reached the golden jubilee of his priesthood. This joyous occasion was marked for him by the parish with the interior decoration of his lovely church for like the psalmist all his life, it would be said of him, "I have loved the beauty of thy house and the place where thy glory dwelleth".

How can one assess the excellent qualities of one so richly endowed by God and so ready to share those gifts with others? He prayed hard, worked hard, played hard. There were always occasions for laughter, the company of friends and light-hearted conversation around his table. One learned to appreciate something of the compassionate interest and concern of a priest for his brother priests; experienced the warm hospitality, friendship and affection of those who ministered to their material well-being that made the house not so much a presbytery as a home—a sentiment oft re-echoed down the years by those privileged to live under his roof. Goodness in a person diffuses itself and attracts others. All his life the canon, as he was affectionately referred to, has had people seeking his counsel, help, guidance and instruction in the faith. The finest facet to his noble and gentle character must surely be his compassionate understanding for those in sickness and broken in health especially where it touched a brother priest. Having experienced in his own life, sickness, break-down in health and, at times, a certain disillusionment, which, by God's grace and his own single-minded determination, he overcame, he could the more easily recognise like symptoms in others, willingly became involved in their problems and the therapy of their rehabilitation.

For fifty-two years, like his divine model and master, he spent his life in the service of others. The words of Paul in the sixth chapter of his first letter to Timothy mirror his whole attitude and outlook on life; "As a man dedicated to God, you must aim to be saintly and religious, filled with faith and love, patient and gentle. Fight the good fight of the faith and win for yourself the eternal life to which you were called when you made your profession and spoke up for the truth."

His Lordship, Bishop Thomson was the principal concelebrant at the Solemn Mass of Requiem in St. Aloysius', Chapelhall, along with Monsignor Conroy, V.G., the Canons of the Chapter, Monsignor Murphy, Glasgow, and some sixty priests. Many other priests and religious as well as dignitaries from civic and public life were among the huge congregation which also included his sole surviving sister, nephews, nieces and cousins. His mortal remains were laid to rest in the priests' plot at St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston. May he who in life made the celebration of the earthly banquet of the eucharist, the source of his own life of union with God and the centre and source for the building up of the Christian life of the flock entrusted to his pastoral care, now take his seat at the eternal banquet promised by Christ to the "good and faithful servant". May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend John Joseph Canon Wilson — 8th November, 1978

John Wilson was born in St. Charles' Parish, Glasgow, on 29th September, 1910. After attending school in St. Charles' and St. Aloysius', Garnethill, he went to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and was ordained priest in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1933.

His first appointment was to St. Mary's, Whifflet, but after only about a year there, he was sent to St. Teresa's, Possilpark. The new priest was soon deeply involved in the spiritual and social life of the parish. He began to acquire a reputation as a first-rate preacher, and the things of God were his constant care. At a time of grim depression, his quiet manner and deep interest in them endeared him to the young people. Although no longer young, very many there still remember him with affection.

The spiritual and social life of the parish: this was to be the pattern of his life as a priest. To him, the spiritual care of people by the Church was all-important, and he believed that the best way to show people that the Church was a caring Church, involved in their lives, was to make the Church a natural, normal part of their lives. To achieve this end, he strongly held that there should be a good, constantly active, social life in the parish for all age groups: young, old and in-between.

His reputation had come to the attention of the saintly, old parish priest of Carfin, Canon Thomas Taylor and, in 1943, Father Wilson was asked by Archbishop Mackintosh to go to assist the canon. There, he found scope for his talents to work on, although sometimes to the bewilderment of Canon Taylor.

In the meantime, the war had broken out and, in 1944, Father John answered a call from the archbishop for chaplains, and enlisted in the Royal Navy. In the Navy, he served most of his time in the Far East. His considerable ability to make friends and shrug off unpleasantness endeared him to many, Catholics and non-Catholics alike, and when the war was over he was a frequent visitor to the Carrick Club, where many of his navy friends were always glad to see him.

At the end of the war, in 1946, he returned to parochial duties and was appointed to Our Lady and St. Margaret's, Kinning Park. From there, in 1947, he was again on the move—this time to Helensburgh on the River Clyde where, with his naval experience, he could administer to the needs of the naval personnel in the area as well as fulfil his normal duties as a priest in a parish, where he was to remain until 1949. In Helensburgh, occurred the incident that nearly led to him losing his life. It was his strong love for the things of God and the saving of souls that made him persuade a Catholic girl to give up marrying a non-Catholic outside the Church, and the enraged man attacked Father John with a knife. Only a tiny fraction of an inch to one side saved him from being fatally injured. Cut in the hand in defending himself, he was never quite able to hold his finger and thumb together again.

After weeks of devoted care in hospital, he came out to an appointment in Sacred Heart Parish, Bridgeton. His ability in organising the social life of the parish was soon in full swing, with concerts, dances, even pantomimes.

Never one to suffer bigotry over much, he used to take delight in telling the story that one day, as he walked past Bridgeton Cross, a group of youths—for his benefit—started singing a song about an item of clothing one of their parents wore. Nothing daunted, over he went to them to tell them they weren't singing the tune properly, and proceeded to give the abashed young men a singing lesson!

His nature being fundamentally gentle and spiritual, he felt attracted to the gentle little saint, Francis, and he joined the Third Order of St. Francis. He never urged, or even suggested, that other priests should follow his example, but he did organise many an enjoyable and rewarding Day of Recollection in Merrylee Convent for them.

In 1955, he at last got a parish of his own, albeit the proverbial "green field", in Merrylee. He was a constant source of encouragement and inspiration to his new people, and in two years he opened the lovely little church of St. Gabriel. Master of his own house and table, he could now entertain his many friends according to the way he wished, and a meal there was always a great delight.

Father Wilson celebrated his silver jubilee of ordination in 1958, and the huge numbers that packed the Couper Institute that Sunday night for his presentation, came not only from his own parish, but also from all the parishes he had been in. A concert was given by many of the talented people whose friendship he had acquired over the years. Everyone in the hall gave an outstanding testimony of the affection in which they held him.

In 1960, he was on the move again, this time his last—to the parish of St. Conval's, Pollok. It was an established parish, with a recently opened church, but in his eyes one essential was missing: a hall. This he proceeded to build and, in 1965, it was opened, a really splendid place in which he took great pride.

So the years passed, as they do, all too swiftly and uneventfully. Then his friends began to notice a change in his appearance and were worried about his health, but he never complained and was always his cheerful, gentle self.

In 1977, Archbishop Winning brought his Cathedral Chapter up to full strength, and among the new canons was Father Wilson. The installation ceremony took place in the cathedral on St. Andrew's Day, 30th November, a very foggy day—the one and only really foggy day of the winter. And Canon Wilson didn't get there, to the concern of his family and friends who weren't too happy about his health. But everything was all right, the bus taking him and the parishioners just couldn't get through. He eventually took his canon's stall in the new year.

Sadness came more and more into his life as his brothers and sisters died one by one until in the summer of 1978, with the death of his sister, he was the last survivor of his immediate family.

The liver trouble that had been bothering him for some time now flared up more seriously than ever, and he had to go to hospital. His strong heart battled with the illness, and he would not admit he was as bad as was thought. He came back from hospital, and tried to live his normal life. When holiday time came round, he insisted on going away. His illness, however, became an agony for him and he had to come home. Finally, he went into hospital again, preferring, through his gregarious nature, the hustle and bustle and friendliness of a public ward in a public hospital to the loneliness of a private ward in a private hospital.

He died peacefully just before midnight on the 8th November—the month the Church prays especially for the Holy Souls. The esteem in which Canon Wilson was held, by both clergy and people, was evident from the large numbers who came from all over to St. Conval's for his Funeral Mass. Non-Catholic clergymen were there, too, to honour a man who always showed them great courtesy, and welcomed them into his home.

As in life, so in death, it is our consolation that a good man has many to pray for him. May the good, kind, and gentle God in his mercy welcome to paradise one of his priests who was likewise good, kind and gentle. May he rest in peace.

Reverend Robert Louis Stuart, M.A., Barrister-at-Law
— 14th November, 1978

A descendant of Lt. Gen. Sir James Stuart of Rait, Father Stuart was born in Calcutta on 5th October, 1903, the only son of Dr. Louis and Mrs. Stuart. His father was a judge and one sensed that the world of the British Raj had left its mark on him. He had an abiding respect for authority and law, moved easily in higher circles and readily assumed a role of benevolent paternalism. He was a man of deep culture, being educated in the style of his class at Radley College, Abingdon, before entering Corpus Christi College, Oxford, in 1921. The Anglican Church was also part of his patrimony. Therein his preference was towards Anglo-Catholicism. In Oxford, he met and became very friendly with many Catholics. In 1921, the Dominicans re-opened Blackfriars and Robert Stuart was friendly with the priests and students who lived there, but his chief Catholic friends were to be found among the Ampleforth Benedictines who had, at that time, a small house of studies in Oxford called St. Benet's. Robert Stuart's great love was music and he founded the Oxford University Opera Club whilst there, and on graduating M.A. it was to London and the music world that he went. He became a Catholic in 1927. To earn a living he became a barrister, belonging to Lincoln's Inn, and practised law in the Far East, especially China, from 1933 to 1947. During the war, he was interned by the Japanese in Shanghai. Father Stuart used to maintain that it was not the Japanese in his camp that were a problem but the evil living of some of the internees. During these months and years of imprisonment, the idea that God wanted him to do something about the evils he saw around him gradually formed and, on release, he decided to become a priest. Having studied at the Beda and St. Sulpice, Father Stuart was ordained priest for Aberdeen Diocese at Blairs College on 29th June, 1953, at the age of just short of fifty.

His first curacy was at Bathgate in 1953, where he is still remembered for his immense kindness and the patience he showed, particularly with young people. He founded a scout troop in the parish, and was always available for counselling the young teenagers. Recalled to Aberdeen, he became parish priest in Strathdon, where again he founded and ran a scout troop then, in 1962, he moved to Fraserburgh.

Talking of this period in Father Stuart's life, in the panegyric, Father Doyle (Peterhead) said: "Imagine how difficult it was for this elderly and very sensitive, cultured English gentleman to come to a north-east Scottish fishing port. He found the people unmannerly at first, but this was where the bishop had put him, and he persevered in his charge. He used to worry about his effect on the parish and the image he was giving of the Church. The first time I met him was on retreat at Fort Augustus and, in his humility, he confided to me, a much younger man, how worried he was that he was not able to do as much as he would have liked for his people in Fraserburgh. He was already suffering from lameness and his eyesight was beginning to fail. Because of these infirmities, he was unable to visit and this worried him."

An outstanding virtue was his loyalty to Rome. The reforms of the Vatican Council, especially in the liturgy, were not entirely to his liking and, still the barrister, he was prepared to state his case, but at the end of the day, he accepted authority's ruling. Roma locuta est, and on this matter whilst sympathising with Archbishop Lefebvre's views, he felt the archbishop wrong to threaten a schism, and wrote to tell him so!

He had strong views on the influence of Communism in the West and particularly in the emerging states of Africa. He subscribed to the view of a world conspiracy involving Communism, finance and various secret societies. It was not a view widely shared by his contemporaries, particularly his priestly colleagues who were nevertheless ready to give him a polite hearing and to ascribe his views to an eccentricity that most found endearing. However, in typical forthright fashion he obtained permission from his bishop to go to Rhodesia and proclaim his message there. His intervention was undoubtedly controversial and the Church there must have sighed with relief when the Church here welcomed him back, and he returned to his parish of Fraserburgh. However, he lived to see wider recognition of at least some of his prognostications about Rhodesia. On his last journey, despite his frailty, he was vigorously stating his case at his old college at Radley and elsewhere and receiving the warm appreciation of those who recognised his patent sincerity.

In another sphere also he latterly received an acclaim that perhaps was his due earlier in life. His Mass Orbis Factor was performed in his own church to mark his silver jubilee of ordination and he was due to be present at a performance on 19th November in St. Patrick's, Soho.

He died on the way at his beloved Oxford. He took ill at St. Benet's where the master, Father James Forbes, O.S.B., a relative of the Ogilvie-Forbes, of his parish at Fraserburgh, gave him the last sacraments. Thus fortified, he died on 14th November.

Back in Fraserburgh, a local garage attendant, reading his obituary, summed up the feeling of all by saying: "He was an awfy clever man, and we didna ken!" The Requiem Mass in Our Lady Star of the Sea was celebrated by twenty priests led by Bishop Mario Conti. The priests formed the schola for the Latin chants of the requiem which Father Stuart loved so much. His body was laid to rest in the priests' mortuary chapel at St. Ninian's, Tynet, where the singing of the Salve Regina brought his day to a close.

The diocese, his chief beneficiary, acknowledges gratefully his service in life and his generosity in death.

May he rest in peace.

The Right Reverend Monsignor David Canon McRoberts, D.Litt.,
S.T.L., F.S.A., F.S.A.Scot. — 25th November, 1978

It is with regret that we record the death, in Edinburgh on 25th November, 1978, after a short final illness, of Monsignor David McRoberts, our predecessor as editor of this publication from 1950 to 1974, and of The Western Catholic Calendar from 1948 to 1974. The news came at such a time as to render it impossible to pay adequate tribute in this issue to a priest who was so eminent a servant of the Church in Scotland in so many fields of her work for God. It is hoped that next year's issue will record fully the debt which is owed to Monsignor McRoberts, not least by The Western Catholic Calendar and by The Catholic Directory for Scotland. May he rest in peace.

DIARY OF EVENTS

"Concert Praise" Praised in Glasgow — Sunday, 29th May, 1977

The first in a series of six concerts under the title "Concert Praise" took place tonight in St. Joseph's Church, North Woodside Road. The project aims at the development of the interest of the people of the Glasgow Archdiocese in the best of sacred and secular music.

At this first concert, the audience of more than 100 heard John Doig (violin), the choir of Christ the King parish with soprano soloists Joyce Regan and Teresa M. Hoare under their conductor Paul McNeill and Joseph Cullen (organ).

Two Auxiliary Bishops Ordained for Glasgow — Tuesday, 31st May

St. Francis' Church, Cumberland Street, was filled to capacity when the Scottish Hierarchy, together with many of their priests, gathered to celebrate the episcopal ordinations of Mgr. Charles Renfrew and Father Joseph Devine. The occasion was the first in Scotland in ninety-nine years at which two bishops had been ordained together.

Many ecclesiastical and civic leaders joined the archdiocese for the event, including the Moderator of the Glasgow Presbytery of the Church of Scotland, Reverend David Johnstone; Bishop Frederick Goldie, Episcopal Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway; Under Secretary of State for Scotland, Mr. Frank McElhone; Councillor Geoffrey Shaw, Convener of Strathclyde Region; Lord Provost David Hodge of Glasgow District and Chief Constable of Strathclyde, Mr. Patrick Hamill.

Mr. Paul Romano (Glasgow University Student), Sister Anthony Bernard (Bon Secours) and Rev. Hugh J. McGinlay proclaimed the readings. The offertory procession was composed of Bishop Devine's parents, young relatives of the new bishops, Mr. Philip McIntosh and Miss Margaret Airlie of the Glasgow Lay Council.

After the reading of the Letter of Appointment which had been sent from Rome, Archbishop Winning was assisted at the ordination by Bishop Thomson and Bishop McGill. Throughout the Mass, Father P. G. Fitzpatrick led choirs and people in the music of the liturgy.

The ordination Mass was followed by a reception in the parish and school halls.

Just for the record—at the last double ordination in 1878, Archbishop Charles Eyre, newly appointed Archbishop of Glasgow, ordained Right Reverend Angus MacDonald as Bishop of Argyll and the Isles and Right Reverend John McLachlan as Bishop of Galloway, as the Scottish Hierarchy was restored. Tonight, Bishops Renfrew and Devine were each presented with croziers and episcopal rings which had belonged to Archbishop Eyre.

St. Margaret Pilgrimage at Carfin — Sunday, 5th June

The National Pilgrimage in honour of St. Margaret of Scotland drew several thousand people to Carfin Grotto. Cardinal Gray was principal concelebrant at the new open-air altar.

Bishop Thomson, welcoming "this wonderful congregation, representing every diocese and every part of Scotland", alluded to the jubilee celebrations of our own Queen, and recommended her to their prayers. Later, members of the Union of Catholic Mothers laid a floral tribute at St. Margaret's shrine at the same time as a wreath was laid on her tomb in Dunfermline Abbey, for so long the centre for this pilgrimage.

Praying together at Cambuslang — Sunday, 5th June

Almost 2,000 people of all denominations gathered at the "Preaching Braes" in Cambuslang's public park—once the scene of eighteenth-century revivalist meetings—for an ecumenical service to mark the Queen's jubilee. Father John Breslin, parish priest of St. Bride's, Cambuslang, and St. Charles', Newton, spoke of the ecumenical progress made in the last quarter-century, and this theme was taken up by the Reverend Ian Davidson of Cambuslang Old Church of Scotland. Reverend Philip Noble of St. Cuthbert's Episcopal Church led the final prayers of the service, during which Mr. Gregor McKenzie, M.P., Minister of State at the Scottish Office, gave a reading.

Paisley Letter on Abortion — Sunday, 12th June

In an appeal to clergy, laity and diocesan organisations to write to their M.P.s, in support of the anti-abortion campaign, Bishop Stephen McGill complained that efforts were being made to kill Mr. Bill Benyon's Private Member's Bill in Parliament for amendments to the present Abortion Act, which had already had a second reading.

St. Joseph's, Blantyre Centenary — Wednesday, 15th June

Bishop Thomson was principal concelebrant at a Mass of Thanksgiving for the centenary of St. Joseph's parish in Blantyre. Miners' lamps and dyed cloth, symbols of traditional employments, were carried in the offertory procession. The historical roots of the Blantyre community was also the theme of the sermon preached by Father Charles Pridgeon, S.J., to a congregation which included Dr. Maurice Miller, M.P., and ministers of several local churches.

In a message printed in the handsome centenary brochure, Father Anthony McGurk, parish priest of St. Joseph's, recalled the dedication of the parish's first priest, Father Frawley, who had founded a school-chapel within a year of his appointment: the priests and people of past ages were indeed the "glory of their times".

Sisters' Centenary Celebrated — Friday, 17th June

A Mass concelebrated by the three Glasgow bishops, the Abbot of Nunraw and many priests in St. Peter's Church, Partick, marked the centenary of the Franciscan Missionaries of Mary. The sisters have a convent in Partickhill and one in Moodiesburn Street, Blackhill.

Closing of Elmwood Convent School — Sunday, 19th June

A Mass celebrated by Bishop Thomson, and a function on Friday of this week at which he was principal guest, marked the closing stages of the life of the girls' school run by the Franciscan Sisters of the Immaculate Conception. The sisters first undertook this work in Bothwell in 1878; their contribution to the education and well-being of the Lanarkshire Catholic community during their century of service is incalculable and much misgiving has been expressed in recent years about the policies which dictated the termination of the school's existence.

Glasgow Priest Makes Hazardous Journey to Oil Rig — Tuesday, 21st June

A Glasgow priest, Father John McAuley, presently on the teaching staff at Blairs College, Aberdeen, flew to Sumburgh (Shetland) by 'plane, and from there to an oil rig 100 miles off-shore by helicopter to celebrate Mass in Spanish and to perform the funeral rites for a Spanish worker who had been killed in an accident on the rig.

Glasgow Laity Honoured — Friday, 24th June

Former Lord Provost of Glasgow, Peter McCann, has received a C.B.E. in the Queen's Silver Jubilee Birthday Honours' List. He has also been appointed a Knight of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Meanwhile at a ceremony in St. Anthony's Church, Govan. Mr. Thomas Drummond, who has served the parish for nearly sixty years as altar boy, passkeeper and S.V.D.P. member, was presented with the Bene Merenti medal by Bishop Renfrew.

John Berry Memorial Goes to St. Bonaventure's — June

St. Bonaventure's Primary School this month became the first winners of the John Berry Memorial Trophy when the pupils won a competition open to all Gorbals schools to produce a project on "Glasgow—Past and Present".

The award, instituted by the local school council, is a tribute to the late John Berry, headmaster of John Bosco Secondary School. The trophy was presented to St. Bonaventure's by Mrs. Berry.

End of Religious Certificate at Hamilton — June

The team of four priests who have been giving religious instruction at Hamilton College of Education have been withdrawn; students there will no longer be able to gain certificates of fitness to teach in Catholic schools. The reason for this is that the need has ended: no longer are mature students, unable to travel far from home, encouraged to enter teaching, and no hardship is involved for candidates who come straight from school in attending Bearsden or Craiglockhart.

New Parish at High Blantyre — Friday, 1st July

Increase and spread of population in the area have led to the opening of a new parish in High Blantyre. It is dedicated to Scotland's recently canonised martyr, St. John Ogilvie, and Father Patrick O'Sullivan, former assistant at St. Mary's, Whifflet, is its first pastor.

Paisley Clash Over Abortion — Tuesday, 5th July

An exchange of letters between Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley and Mr. Michael Foot, Lord President of the Council was published. The exchange was a sequel to last month's letter of Bishop McGill to his clergy and laity complaining of refusal of parliamentary time for debate on Mr. William Benyon's Private Member's Bill to amend the 1967 Abortion Act.

Mr. Foot counter-complained that the bishop's letter was "inaccurate and misleading". In reply, the bishop said: "With respect, it appears to me that responsibility for any inaccurate or misleading statements there may have been on this issue does not lie at my door . . ."

In stating that Mr. Foot had refused time to Mr. Benyon's Private Member's Bill, Bishop McGill said he should have added the word "extra" to "time" as "due to the small amount of parliamentary time allocated for this purpose, few Private Members' Bills become law nowadays unless given extra time by the Government".

The bishop's letter continued: "I also believe it to be the case that between 1964 and 1970 previous Governments—of which you were a member—gave assistance and time to no less than twenty-eight Private Members' Bills to enable them to reach the Statute book. These included the Abortion Act, the Divorce Act and the Sexual Offences Act—Acts which have become associated in the minds of most people in this country with the permissive society. On two occasions in the last two years, Parliament by substantial majorities has voted second readings to Abortion Amendment Bills, thus showing the desire of the democratically elected representatives of the people to curb the abuses arising out of the 1967 Act.

“I am told by those who are well versed in parliamentary procedure that there was no reason why, if the Government so desired, this extra time could not have been given . . .” B. J. C.

Edinburgh Pilgrimage to Lourdes — Thursday, 7th-Friday, 15th July

The 1977 archdiocesan pilgrimage to Lourdes was led by Bishop Monaghan. Two plane loads of pilgrims left Glasgow Airport and were joined in Lourdes by two groups who went overland: twenty-five people from St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, went by jumbulance and fifteen from St. Ninian's, Edinburgh went by minibus. In all about 300 people—among them, forty sick pilgrims—took part in the week long pilgrimage. R. H.

Lanarkshire M.P. Protests — Friday, 5th August

Mr. James Dempsey, M.P. for Airdrie and Coatbridge, wrote to Mr. Michael Foot to ask him to think again on his decision not to allow extra time for the discussion by the House of Commons of the Abortion (Amendment) Bill sponsored by Bill Benyon, M.P. He pointed out that a Labour Government had provided extra time for the Report and Third Reading stages of the David Steel 1967 Abortion Bill, and asked why similar treatment could not be accorded to the Benyon Bill. J. McI.

Acre House Changes Hands — Saturday, 20th August

Father James Giblin, S.J. today handed over the keys of Acre House, Maryhill, to Father Brian Fahy, C.S.S.R., the new superior of the popular Glasgow retreat house. The Redemptorists will continue the work previously done by the Jesuits, at least for a trial period of three years. D. H.

Motherwell Priest for Glasgow Chaplaincy — Monday, 22nd August

Father Michael J. Conway, B.A., M.Sc., assistant at St. Monica's, Coatbridge, has been appointed assistant to the Chaplain to Catholic Students at Glasgow University, Father Kenneth Nugent, S.J., in succession to the Right Reverend Joseph Devine, now auxiliary Bishop of Glasgow. J. McI.

Bishop Monaghan Visits St. Augustine's School, Edinburgh — Friday, 26th August

Bishop Monaghan spent the first half of the morning going round the school, seeing different classes at work and the array of facilities offered by a modern school. After the morning break, the 1,400 pupils, Miss Murdoch the headmistress, Mr. Henderson, Assistant Divisional Education Officer for Edinburgh, and the staff of St. Augustine's gathered in the gym hall for Mass, which was concelebrated by Bishop Monaghan, Father E. Gallagher the school chaplain, Mgr. Barry, Father McAllister, Father McQuade, S.J., Father Rooney and Father Holuka.

National Conference at Newmains Convent — Friday, 26th August

Twenty-three Sisters of the British Province of the Society of Helpers met at their house in Newmains to discuss the main areas of their life and work. During a week of intense prayer and debate, with Father Lachlan Hughes, S.J., advising on theology and Canon Law, all aspects of the sisters' life were scrutinised. Conclusions will be finalised at a later meeting in Langside, and will form the contribution of the British Province to the international conference of the society to take place in Paris next year.

Pilgrimage to Whithorn — Sunday, 28th August

The pilgrimage to St. Ninian's Cave at Whithorn, on the Galloway coast, goes from strength to strength each year. It is difficult to estimate numbers because of the rough terrain along the sea shore but at least 3,000 people gathered to join in the celebration of the Mass of St. Ninian at the cave mouth.

Bad weather traditionally marks the pilgrimage but this year the rain held off as Bishop McGee, Whithorn parish priest Father Denis Quinlan, and Bishop Joseph Devine, auxiliary Bishop in Glasgow, concelebrated the Mass. Bishop Devine was this year's preacher and he reminded the congregation—some of whom were perched in the most precarious places—of the sacredness of this spot and its place in the history of Christianity in Scotland. Ninian's faith was strengthened by his prayer in this cave and he took the faith of Jesus Christ to the surrounding countryside.

Perhaps the most hopeful sign of this last traditional pilgrimage in Scotland is its appeal to the young. It is no "holy picnic" but a long, rough trek to the cave and our young Catholics come in ever increasing numbers.

Polish Day at Carfin — Sunday, 28th August

Hundreds of Polish exiles gathered in Carfin on Sunday to celebrate the sixth centenary of the miraculous appearance of Our Lady of Czestochowa. This assembly, addressed by Mgr. Staniszewski, Polish Catholic leader in England and Wales, also celebrated two other occasions: the centenary of the apparition of Our Lady at Gietrzwald, and the fiftieth anniversary of Niepokalanow, the Franciscan Friary founded by Blessed Maximilian Kolbe.

Glasgow Priest Goes West — Wednesday, 31st August

Father Felix Beattie, formerly of the staffs of Blairs College, Aberdeen, and Notre Dame College of Education, Bearsden, has left Glasgow to begin a five year period of mission work in South America. He will be working with the St. James' Missionary Society of Boston, which has stations in Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador.

Church Acquired for New Dalmuir Parish — August

Parishioners of the new parish of Our Lady of Loreto, Dalmuir, now have a church of their own. They have moved into a former Church of Scotland building which has two halls adjacent to the church. Parish priest Father Gerald McCallion intends to have a house built beside the church. D. H.

Staff Changes at Cardross — September

Father Martin Drysdale, S.T.L., from Dunkeld Diocese joins the staff at St. Peter's College, Cardross, this session. Father Drysdale, who has a degree in moral theology, will replace Father James Foley as professor of dogmatic theology.

Also joining the staff will be Doctor John Durkan, a Research Fellow in Scottish medieval history at Glasgow University. Doctor Durkan succeeds as professor of sacred history Father James Walsh, who died during the summer holidays. D. H.

Pilot List "D" School Care Scheme Begun in Glasgow — September

The Glasgow Archdiocesan Social Services Commission under episcopal vicar Father Desmond Maguire is to ask lay people in Glasgow to volunteer to befriend a boy in a List "D" school, meeting him when he comes home and providing an after-care service when the boy is finally released. The project is aimed at continuing the help which is given to boys at these schools and at providing a comprehensive service of care for young people in trouble. D. H.

Cambuslang Secondary School Gets New Building — September

The new Trinity High School building in Cambuslang, erected at a cost of over £1 million, will have an extended use for community leisure purposes after school hours. Rededication of Motherwell War Memorial Chapel —
Thursday, 2nd February

Archbishop Thomas Winning, a former pupil of the school, preached at the dedication of the new War Memorial Chapel in the modern building of Our Lady's High School, Motherwell. The chapel originally dedicated in the Airbles Road building, had contributed its fine Lady statue, the red sandstone altar, and the roll of honour itself to the new shrine. Mr. A. Tulley, rector, Reverend Geoffrey Shaw, convener of Strathclyde Regional Council, members of staff and pupils of the school were present at the ceremony performed by Bishop Thomson. The archbishop prayed that the spirit of those commemorated—many of whom he remembered—should live on in the school community, and developed the idea that our society had come to accept "under pseudonyms" some of the very evils our soldiers had died to resist. In phrases which excited comment in the national press, he declared: "We wage war against deprivation and want and disease, not by showing care and love to those who are their victims, but by a subtle process of elimination before they become victims . . . We are becoming a nation of spiritual dwarfs"

Visit to St. Modan's High School, Stirling — Friday, 3rd February

Cardinal Gray spoke of the life of St. Modan and the zeal with which he had brought the message of Christ to so many areas, including Stirlingshire. It was in this example that we could find our roots and the strength to proclaim Christ in our own times.

For this occasion, Mrs. McKenna of the music department, had composed a Common of the Mass which was sung by the senior choir. The other hymns were accompanied by the school's brass band.

Mass for Vocations at Motherwell — Monday, 13th February

There was a very good attendance at a concelebrated Mass in Our Lady of Good Aid Cathedral, Motherwell, which was followed by an interesting and lively vocations evening organized by the Serra Club of Motherwell Diocese. Mr. James Boyle chaired the meeting on behalf of the Serrans, and Father James McMahon, rector of St. Peter's College, Cardross, and Sister Maria Goretti of the Society of Helpers were among those who spoke and answered questions. Bishop Thomson, principal concelebrant at the Mass, had previously issued a Pastoral Letter largely concerned with the need for prayer and work for vocations. In particular, the letter stressed that not only those men engaged in academic careers should consider the possibility of a priestly vocation: others could follow the call to the priesthood and would find in the modern seminary every help in overcoming incidental difficulties.

Caring Church Week, St. Modan's High School, Stirling — Monday, 13th - Friday, 17th February

Six priests and six sisters from different religious orders plus two students from Drygrange spent a week in St. Modan's High School, Stirling, taking the religious periods, providing exhibitions of their different kinds of work and celebrating the liturgy with the pupils. The aim of the programme was to show the pupils the wide range of activities that is undertaken in the name of the Church for the good of all.

Each day, there was a morning assembly for one of the years in the school. During the day, the theme of the religious periods was the work of the Church and this was illustrated by an exhibition set up in the hall. At lunch time Mass was celebrated. In the morning before school began and at the end of the day, morning and evening prayer from the Liturgy of Hours was said. All the liturgical functions were on a voluntary basis and were very well attended by the pupils.

On Wednesday evening, Bishop Monaghan celebrated Mass for the parents—about 500 people attended.

On Friday, there was a final Mass at which all the local priests concelebrated with the priests on the team. At this Mass, Mr. O'Carroll, the rector, led the school in a Renewal of Baptismal Promises.

Commissioning of Lay Ministers for Communion —
Sunday, 19th February

In several parishes of Motherwell Diocese it has now been considered expedient to appoint lay people as "extraordinary ministers" of holy communion. At a ceremony in St. John the Baptist's, Uddingston, at which four parishioners were commissioned for this duty, Bishop Thomson outlined the changes in eucharistic practice since the beginning of the century and explained that the Pope had permitted this development because of the undue delay for large congregations when numbers of priests or deacons are limited.

Pope Receives Scottish Hierarchy on Centenary Day — Saturday, 4th March

On Monday, 4th March, 1878, the day after his coronation, Pope Leo XIII put an end to a period of the history of the Church in Scotland which had lasted just over seven weeks short of two and three quarter centuries by issuing the Apostolic Letters Ex supremo apostolatus apice in which he revived seven of the thirteen pre-Reformation dioceses, uniting two of them in one, giving Scotland a metropolitan see, four suffragan sees and one archbishopric without suffragans, thus restoring to this country the ordinary system of Church government.

On Saturday, 4th March, 1978, Pope Paul VI received the Scottish Hierarchy, now increased to eight by the division of the Archdiocese of Glasgow in 1948, together with the three auxiliary bishops, and at their head the first resident Scottish cardinal since before the Reformation. This, the five-yearly ad limina visit, was due to take place in 1977, but its postponement had been explicitly arranged so that the bishops could be received by the Pope on the very day of the centenary itself.

After hearing an address of homage from Cardinal Gray, the Holy Father spoke formally to the bishops. He rejoiced in the centenary and recalled the links between Rome and Scotland, beginning with St. Ninian, who was the first to preach the Gospel in the country. He referred to his happiness at having been able to canonize St. John Ogilvie, that "glorious champion of your people, an ideal exemplar of your past history, a magnificent inspiration for your happy future". While sending his good wishes to the faithful of Scotland, especially those far from diocesan centres, such as those who live in the Hebrides, the Orkneys and the Shetlands, he took the opportunity of speaking a word about the role of the laity in the Church. The Holy Father went on to commend the great progress which had been made in promoting the lay apostolate, but stressed the need for bishops to keep reminding their people that the lay apostolate is a sharing in the Church's very mission of salvation.

Among the gifts presented to the Holy Father on this occasion was a specially bound copy of the 1978 Catholic Directory for Scotland, which readers will remember to have been commemorative of both the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy and the 150th year of uninterrupted publication of the Directory.

After the Pope had addressed the bishops, the staff and students of the Pontifical Scots College in Rome, led by the rector, Mgr. Sean O'Kelly, were admitted to his presence. The Holy Father greeted them, and through them their fellow seminarians at home and in Valladolid. He reminded them that the life of a priest is directed to proclaiming the paschal mystery; that their sacramental ministry would be the fulfilment and perfection of their activities; that the very purpose of their vocation is to perpetuate the mediation of Christ the priest; qualities needed by them as priests were prayer, discipline and fidelity, fidelity especially to the magisterium of the Church.

The audience concluded with the Apostolic Blessing, which the Holy Father also sent to the people of Scotland.

The liturgical conclusion of the centenary day itself was a Solemn Mass of Thanksgiving in the chapel of the Scots College, concelebrated by the Cardinal Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, the Archbishop of Glasgow, their suffragan and auxiliary bishops, and Scots priests resident in Rome.

The next day was marked by the bishops' attendance at the Papal Mass in St. Peter's, commemorating the centenary of the death, on 7th February, 1878, of Pope Pius IX, the cause for whose beatification is proceeding. It was remembered that it was Pius IX who earnestly desired to restore normal Church government to Scotland. Indeed, negotiations for this had been brought to a conclusion and the documents drawn up, ready for signature, when the Pope died, leaving it to Pope Leo XIII to re-establish the Hierarchy of Scotland as his first pontifical act.

On the Monday, the liturgical celebrations continued with the Archbishop of Glasgow being the principal celebrant at Mass in the crypt of St. Peter's, at the altar of Christ the King. On the Tuesday, Mass was celebrated in the venerable Church of S. Andrea degli Scozzesi in the Via delle Quattro Fontane, which had been for nearly 320 years the principal church of the Scots College when it was situated next door. The principal celebrant on this occasion was the Bishop of Galloway, the oldest diocese in Scotland, and himself the senior suffragan bishop of the hierarchy.

The Rome celebrations of the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy concluded on the Tuesday when the bishops were hosts at a reception, in the Scots College, for people living in Rome connected with the Church in Scotland.

Hierarchy Centenary Celebrations in Dunkeld — Exhibition Monday, 13th - Saturday, 18th March

Although several events of the past year in the Diocese of Dunkeld would merit national recognition and inclusion in The Catholic Directory for Scotland space only allows for the recording of the events that marked the diocesan celebrations of the Centenary of the Restoration of the Scottish Hierarchy. Although 1878 appeared far-off and with little relevance to 1978 it was most gratifying to see how this great centenary was held in the diocese and the consequent enthusiasm of the people.

An exhibition, Dunkeld 1878/1978, was held in the Bonar Hall of Dundee University from 13th to 18th March. Originally the idea of the vicar general, this exhibition quickly became the interest of Father David F. Ward, chaplain to Dundee University, and his university colleagues. A main feature of the exhibition was the photographic record of the eight bishops of the diocese in the past 100 years and all available objects connected with them—papal documents, mitres, croziers, pectoral crosses, rings and personal possessions were on view. Also included were historical items from other Scottish dioceses generously lent by the Scottish bishops. Among the many items on view greatly admired by the viewers were the cardinal's scarlet biretta and skull-cap, given to him personally in 1968 by Pope Paul VI, lent by Cardinal Gordon Gray, and the pectoral cross and ring worn by Archbishop Charles Eyre of Glasgow lent by the present Archbishop Thomas J. Winning. During the six days of the exhibition, 4,000 people visited it and signed the visitors' book including many teachers and pupils of the far-flung Catholic schools of the diocese.

The highlight of the exhibition was, without doubt, the visit of nine members of the Scottish Hierarchy on Wednesday, 15th March. Cardinal Gray, Archbishop Winning, Bishop Hart, Bishop Renfrew, Bishop Conti, Bishop Thomson, Bishop MacPherson, Bishop Monaghan and Bishop McGee all broke their journey from the bishops' meeting in Blairs to attend the exhibition. When Bishop Hart made his speech of welcome to the members of the hierarchy, he was surrounded by over 200 people who were presented to the cardinal and the bishops at the official reception which followed the visit to the exhibition.

The dinner party guests for the evening of the 15th March included Principal James Drever; Mgr. Hanlon, V.G.; Rev. H. N. Boyle, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Glasgow; Mgr. M. Fitzpatrick, Vicar-General of Aberdeen; Very Rev. C. McGregor, St. Mary's Cathedral, Aberdeen; Right Rev. Mgr. Maurice Taylor; Sheriff and Mrs. John Christie; Drs. Alex and Doreen Macqueen; Dr. Ethnie O'Sharkie; Rev. and Mrs. Malcolm Richardson, chaplain; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. J. Ryan and many others from the city and university.

The second part of this celebration for the bishops was a visit to the annual concert in the Caird Hall arranged as usual by the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the feast of St. Patrick and this year sustained by the school children of the city. That night, 3,500 people heard Cardinal Gray give an account of the recent visit of the bishops to Rome and their audience with the Holy Father. He conveyed the Pope's blessing to all present and spoke of the high regard held by the Pope and himself for the Catholics of Scotland. Archbishop Winning of Glasgow said how much he had been delighted by the welcome from Dunkeld that he and the other bishops had received and that it was his great wish to meet every Catholic in Scotland and not be confined quite so much to the west coast. Canon McKearney, Chaplain to the S.V.D.P., thanked all concerned and spoke of the honour done to Dundee on this historic occasion in having such a distinguished platform party. J. B. H.

Centenary Performance of Handel's Messiah in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee — Monday, 27th March

Before an audience of some 600 people, his Lordship Bishop Hart of Dunkeld presided at a presentation of Handel's Messiah in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee, on Easter Monday, 27th March, 1978. A treat for music lovers, and believed to be the first time that the Messiah had been performed in the cathedral, this performance marked the contribution of the Cecilian Choir to the Centenary Year of the Restoration of the Scottish Hierarchy.

Celebrating its own silver jubilee this year, the Cecilian Choir was augmented for the occasion by members of the Dundee Choral Union, the Dundee Lyric Singers and various other local artistes. The principals for this historic occasion were: Moira Gibson, soprano; Susan Mottashaw, contralto; Grant McGeoghie, tenor and James Grieve, bass. William Boyle was the sole trumpeter and the conductor was George Mottashaw. At the organ was Kevin A. Veal, musical director and conductor of the Cecilian Choir.

Welcomed to the cathedral by the administrator, Mgr. Hanlon, the singers were warmly thanked by Bishop Hart at the end of the evening. Truly an ecumenical occasion, his Lordship praised the very high quality of the singers, much appreciated by the audience, and expressed his gratitude to every one who had given freely of their time and talents that night to assure the success of the occasion.

In reply, Mr. Veal, while congratulating the hierarchy in the person of Bishop Hart, assured his Lordship of the very great joy and satisfaction all had experienced in the performance. Bishop Hart was then given a standing ovation at the conclusion of a most enjoyable and happy event. J. B. H.

Newcastle Visitor at Adoption Society A.G.M. — Friday, 31st March

Canon Thomas Gaughan, administrator of Newcastle Children's Rescue Society, tonight addressed the Annual General Meeting of the St. Margaret of Scotland Adoption Society at Our Lady of

He told his audience, which included Archbishop Winning and Bishops Thomson and McGill, that the concept of the Caring Church, with a lively concern for the whole spectrum of social work, must be made a reality today if we are to be true and faithful to the message of Jesus Christ.

Also present at the meeting were the Chairman for Social Work in Strathclyde Region, Mr. Fred Edwards; Father Thomas Gibbons, administrator of the Catholic Child Care Office and Mgr. Brendan Murphy, chairman of the St. Margaret Society.

Sadly, this was to be Canon Gaughan's last visit to Glasgow, as his sudden death was announced only a few weeks later. R.I.P.

Cardinal Gray celebrated the silver jubilee by saying Mass in the parish church. Present at the Mass were Canon Donati, Canon Mohan, parish priest of St. David's, Father Doherty, parish priest of St. Margaret's, and a congregation of more than 300.

Dedication of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh — Tuesday, 18th April

Bus loads of people from all over the archdiocese gathered for the dedication of the cathedral by Cardinal Gray. Eighty concelebrants, including Bishop Monaghan, Mgr. Grady, V.G., and Mgr. Quille the administrator of the cathedral, and 1,000 of a congregation took great pleasure and joy in the evening's celebration. The cathedral choir conducted by Mr. George Farmer showed their excellence both in the choral works and the lead they gave to the singing of the congregation.

In his sermon, Cardinal Gray said that in many ways the cathedral had been consecrated by over 150 years of prayer and the celebration of Mass. The dedication marked a new stage. It was not only the consecration of a building for sacred use; it was the consecration of the people of the parish and the diocese in their service of Christ. The people of the parish had been prepared for this consecration by their participation in the recent mission given by Father Gordon Clifford, O.F.M., and Father Philip Keyes, O.F.M.

Some weeks after the dedication, Bishop Fox of Menevia, Wales, led a day of renewal on the Vigil of Pentecost and again stressed the dedicated service to Christ.

After the Mass, Jason Allan (10) presented Cardinal Gray with a £550 cheque for Bauchi.

Celebrations Marking the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy in Scotland, Edinburgh — Sunday, 23rd April

St. Mary's Cathedral was packed to overflowing for the celebrations of the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy in Scotland. Cardinal Gray, Archbishop Winning—it was the anniversary of Archbishop Winning's translation to the See of Glasgow, 23rd April, 1974—all the Scottish bishops, the three abbots of monasteries in Scotland, Mgr. Grady, V.G., Mgr. Quille, Canon Murnin and Father O'Brien all concelebrated.

There were many links with the past; a relic of St. Andrew, a gift from Pope Paul to Cardinal Gray when he was appointed to the College of Cardinals, was placed in the sanctuary. The cardinal wore the mitre given to Archbishop Strain by the Marquess of Bute in 1878. The cardinal also wore the pectoral cross and ring which were given to Archbishop Strain when he was ordained titular Bishop of Abila by Pope Pius IX and appointed Vicar Apostolic, Eastern District, in September, 1864. One of the chalices used at Mass was brought across to this country in 1681 by Father Abercromby, O.S.B., from the Benedictine Monastery in Wurzburg, Germany. This chalice was used throughout Scotland during penal times and bears the crest of Abbot Bernard (1679-1685) on the base.

In his sermon, Cardinal Gray spoke of the Christian home as the foundation of a wholesome society; because the family is under attack from many quarters it is important that we realise this, and face up to the challenge. Only by living out the ideals of a Christian life can we show society the direction it is so desperately needing to take.

After the Mass, a letter was sent to Pope Paul signed by all the Scottish bishops and abbots expressing the loyalty of the Church in Scotland to the See of Peter.

In May, Pope Paul replied by a letter signed in his own hand, thanking the bishops and abbots for their greetings on behalf of the Church in Scotland and bestowing his blessing on all. R. H.

The foundation stone was laid by Cardinal Gray in 1952 and he returned to dedicate St. Margaret's and to celebrate its silver jubilee. Cardinal Gray was joined in the concelebrated Mass by Mgr. Grady, V.G., Mgr. Quille, the administrator of the cathedral, Father Gordon a former parish priest of St. Margaret's, and Father Donoghue the present parish priest.

St. Catherine's School, Paisley Centenary — Friday, 28th April

Bishop Stephen McGill offered a special Mass of thanksgiving in St. Catherine's School, Paisley, to mark the centenary of the school's establishment. He spoke of the debt of gratitude owed to the work of education done by the school in the past 100 years. He recalled the early days of the school and the sacrifices and efforts made by parents to provide an education for their children and to pay for it by their own hard work. He encouraged the children to make use of the great education facilities provided by the modern St. Catherine's and to pray for the school's welfare in the years ahead.

An excellent 34-page history titled St. Catherine's Schools 1878-1978 was produced by the school, dealing with the school's development from the old St. Catherine's in Canal Street to the modern structure in Gallowhill.

There was a large representation of the Sisters Faithful Companions of Jesus (St. Margaret's Convent, Paisley) who for many years taught in the school.

Hierarchy Centenary Celebrations in Glasgow — Sunday, 30th April

The venerable Metropolitan Cathedral Church of St. Andrew in Glasgow was the location of one of the most splendid occasions in its 162-year history, when the bishops of Scotland gathered there on Sunday, 30th April, to celebrate Mass on the occasion of the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy, having already done the same in Edinburgh's cathedral the previous Sunday. The principal celebrant was the archbishop, who was accompanied by all the other bishops, led by Cardinal Gray of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. In addition, other concelebrants were Mgr. John Gillespie, V.G., Canon Michael Connolly (deputising for Provost Joseph Daniel, who was ill), Father Luke Faupel, O.F.M. (representing the regular clergy in the diocese), Father Thomas Murray (chairman of the Archdiocesan Priests' Council) and Father Robert Hill (the most recently ordained priest of the diocese). Deacons at the Mass were Reverend John McNamara and Alan Love, from St. Peter's College, Cardross. The serving of the Mass was carried out by students from Cardross, together with the cathedral altar staff. The lay readers at the Mass were the Lord Provost, Mr. David Hodge, and Sister Mary Andrea of the Convent of Mercy, while the Offertory Procession was provided by representatives of the Archdiocesan Lay Council. The cathedral choir was conducted by its choirmaster, Mr. James Dourish, and accompanied by Mr. Joseph Cullen, organist of St. Aloysius', Garnet-hill, who also composed the special fanfare played by the Croy Parish Silver Band at the elevation of the Mass. The ceremonies were guided by the archdiocesan masters of ceremonies, Father J. Noel Woods and Father David Brown, while the assistant masters of ceremonies, Father John J. Burns and Father James Cosker, took care of seating arrangements in the church.

In his sermon, Mgr. David McRoberts, Keeper of the Scottish Catholic Archives, making his first and, as it turned out, only appearance in the cathedral as an honorary member of the cathedral chapter, described the state of the Catholic Church in Scotland from the time of the Reformation to the Restoration of the Hierarchy, explaining where the great debt was owed for the survival of the Faith in Scotland.

Guests invited to the Mass included representatives of other Churches and religious bodies, civic, academic and legal leaders, Papal Knights, representatives of the clergy (diocesan and regular) of the diocese, of the parishes, the religious and the organisations of the diocese.

After the Mass, a reception was held at the City Chambers, when the bishops had the opportunity to meet so many of the faithful of the diocese. During the reception, selections were played by the Croy Parish Silver Band.

Throughout the day, the bishops were escorted from place to place by a detachment of Strathclyde Police, and their motorcade was welcomed on arrival at the cathedral by St. Francis' Parish Pipe Band, and by a Guard of Honour provided by representatives of the Scout and Guide movements in the archdiocese.

This main diocesan celebration was followed by continuing celebrations throughout the diocese, deanery by deanery, in the course of the autumn and winter, when the archbishop and his auxiliary bishops celebrated Mass in a selected church in each locality and had the opportunity of meeting the people.

Fund-Raising Efforts in Motherwell Diocese — April

Members of the Catholic Men's Society attending the diocesan A.G.M. were gratified to hear that their fund-raising efforts for the Native Priest Fund and for S.C.I.A.F. had produced sums of £616 and £365 respectively. Another notable effort was the £700 collected through sponsored silences, raffles and other activities for the St. Margaret Adoption Society by the pupils of St. Peter's Primary School, Hamilton. And Father Patrick Brosnan, of St. Bernard's Church, Coatbridge, found it only took a week for local people to subscribe the £500 needed to provide a young disabled parishioner with a battery-operated invalid "buggy".

Visit to St. Joseph's Home, Edinburgh — Monday, 1st May

On the feast of St. Joseph the Worker, Cardinal Gray concelebrated Mass with Father Fitzpatrick, O.M.I., Father Fleming, S.J. and Father Kerr—the new chaplain to St. Joseph's.

After Mass, Cardinal Gray went round the home and gave a present to each of the old people.

Craiglockhart Success — Monday, 1st May

Out of the 123 students who graduated from Craiglockhart College of Education in June, 1977, 105 have, to date, found employment. Of the remaining 18, the college has lost contact with 4 and does not know if they have managed to obtain employment.

The figures of those in employment are as follows:

1. Of the 22 Graduates of the Post-Graduate Secondary Course, 21 have teaching posts.
2. Of the 84 Graduates of the Diploma Course, 66 have teaching posts, 5 are in non-teaching posts and 13 are unemployed.
3. Of the Graduates of the Post-Graduate Primary Course, 10 have teaching posts and the college has lost contact with 3.
4. From the output of 7 Graduates of the Associateship Early Education, 6 have teaching posts and the college has lost contact with 1.

These figures are important because the Secretary of State said that the 1978-79 intake would depend, to some measure, on the success of graduates obtaining employment.

In the result, the Secretary of State subsequently announced the level of intakes for 1978-79. The Diploma Course, the Post-Graduate Primary Course and the Associateship Early Education Course all maintain last year's quotas. The quota for the Post-Graduate Secondary Course was increased from 22 to 60.

Conference of Religious in Glasgow — Saturday, 6th-Sunday, 7th May

About 200 members of religious organisations from most of the Scottish dioceses gathered in Glasgow for a weekend conference. They heard Father Simon Tugwell, O.P., suggest that the apparently static nature of religious orders was one reason why young people were not attracted to them as they should be. "Faith today is seeking, exploring, recapturing. There is nothing easy about it. The bible itself is far from easy to understand. In fact, it is hideously difficult and full of contradictions. The seeker after truth has to fight with it. Be dissatisfied with the slogans and easy answers to the modern world. Truth and wisdom are far too big to be fitted into little boxes."

At the conference, Father Robert Carty, S.J., presented Bishop Charles Renfrew with a presentation cheque to mark the silver jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood, accompanied by the thanks and appreciation of the religious for the bishop's work for them.

Bishop at Catholic Mothers' A.G.M. — Monday, 8th May

At the A.G.M. of the Union of Catholic Mothers (Motherwell Diocese), Bishop Thomson praised the apostolic spirit shown by the U.C.M. in the present permissive age. Thanking them for a £350 donation, he took the opportunity to speak of the financial difficulties facing the seminaries at present, and said that the target in the Lenten appeal for the Junior Seminary was £28,000.

Charismatic Renewal Day, Edinburgh — Saturday, 13th May

Over 1,000 people from all over Scotland gathered in Edinburgh Cathedral for a day of prayer in preparation for Pentecost. The theme of the day was "Come, Holy Spirit" and the prayer sessions and talks were led by Bishop Langton Fox of Menevia.

In his introduction of Bishop Fox, Cardinal Gray stressed the centrality of the eucharist in all the efforts of charismatic renewal. This dimension of renewal was taken up as the day progressed towards its high point—a concelebrated Mass at 5 p.m.

During his talks, Bishop Fox gave an account of his own association with the charismatic movement and stressed the important contribution this kind of renewal could make in the ecumenical field.

Glasgow Pastoral Letter Explains the Position of the "Tridentine" Church — Sunday, 21st May

Archbishop Thomas Winning today sent a letter to every parish in the archdiocese explaining the position of a church which has opened in John Street and whose congregation takes up the attitudes of the French Archbishop Lefebvre.

Archbishop Winning described the ways in which the group were a divisive factor in the Church. Quoting Pope Paul, he wrote that the group "by its presence, draws the faithful away from the bonds of obedience to the See of Peter and to their rightful bishops".

Diocesan Liturgical Celebration, Wellburn Convent — Sunday, 18th June

"A day out of this world" was how Cardinal Gray described the glorious Sunday he spent in Dundee on 18th June, 1978, to mark the liturgical celebration of the Centenary of the Scottish Hierarchy, the consecration of the Dunkeld Diocese to the Sacred Heart and the anointing of the sick of the diocese.

As the sun shone out from a cloudless sky, upwards of 4,000 people, in hired buses, private cars and on foot, converged on the beautiful grounds of Wellburn Convent, Lochee, Tayside Police doing an excellent job in directing the traffic but unable to avoid the consequent long delays.

Before the Mass, the bishops of Scotland, the abbots, the clergy and the religious preceded His Eminence the Cardinal who was accompanied by the canons of the Dunkeld chapter. The Hospitalité de Notre Dame de Lourdes supervised the area reserved for the sick in front of the magnificent open-air altar.

Concelebrants at the centenary Mass were the Bishops of Dunkeld, Motherwell, Aberdeen, and Argyll and the Isles, Abbot McGlynn of Nunraw and Abbot Holman of Fort Augustus with some thirty diocesan priests. Father Hugh Campbell, St. Mary's, Lochee, acted as master of ceremonies.

The preacher at the centenary Mass was Father David F. Ward, chaplain to Dundee University, who gave a vivid history of the Church in Scotland from the time of Saints Columba and Ninian, the Celtic period, the regeneration of Catholicism under St. Margaret, the sad years of the Reformation, down to the appointment of the vicars apostolic and the renewal of the Scottish Church by the Restoration of the Hierarchy by Leo XIII on 4th March, 1878.

The music of the Mass was beautifully sustained by the massed choirs of schoolchildren and the Cecilian Choir under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Balbirnie, headteacher of St. Vincent's Primary School, and accompanied by the St. John's High School Brass Band.

His Eminence Cardinal Gray distributed Holy Communion to the sick as Canon Peter McKearney led the Lourdes invocations. The Cardinal also recited the prayers to the Sacred Heart during the consecration of the diocese.

Thus ended the most memorable day in the life of Dunkeld in 1978.
