It's enough to make you change your Bank

It might not look like much but it's all the money you need keep in your personal account at the Clydesdale Bank to get the service absolutely free.

Unlike other major banks who may add charges if your balance falls below £50 or £100.

And what we're talking about is something that might amount to more than small change. It could be enough to make a big change...

Scottish Catholics, through their agency SCIAF, have brought hope to the lives of people like these Andean Indians from Ecuador.

Through its development programmes covering all aspects of human life—from emergency relief to combating illiteracy, from medical provision to securing basic rights—SCIAF, with your help, is building a better world.

You can help further by forming a SCIAF group in your parish, adopting a project, raising funds for it and then spreading the word about why massive poverty still exists in the space age.

SCIAF—HELPING TO BUILD A BETTER WORLD

SCIAF is the official overseas agency of the Bishops, clergy and laity of Scotland. It exists to help the world's hungry, underprivileged and destitute. It hopes also to make the realities better known and to arouse a lively awareness of the obligations deriving from Christian charity and responsibility.

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND

THE HIERARCHY OF SCOTLAND

I

FROM THE EXTINCTION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1603 TILL ITS RESTORATION IN 1878

The ancient hierarchy ended with the death of James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, at Paris on 24th April, 1603, aged 86.

Rome showed little interest in Scottish affairs in the years following the reformation. From 1598 to 1621 Scottish Catholics were nominally subject to the English archpriests but there is no evidence that they concerned themselves with their Scottish subjects. The appointment of the first English vicar apostolic, William Bishop (1623-1624), was of a different order since his jurisdiction was episcopal and included Scotland. In a petition to Gregory XV, the few Scottish secular priests still on the Continent appealed to the papal bull, Cum universi, dated 13th March 1192, which declared the Scottish Church subject only to the Roman see; and the point was conceded. Nevertheless, the brief in 1625 appointing the second English vicar apostolic, Richard Smith, again included Scotland but on this occasion the issue of jurisdiction does not appear to have been raised. Smith's stay in England, in the event, was short and he had left by 1631. The work of the Irish Franciscan mission in the Highlands and Islands was the main burden of the missionary effort in Scotland during these years; and it was not until 1650 that a group of Scottish seculars met in Paris under the leadership of William Ballantine to consider what should be done.

Dates of events which occurred in Scotland before 1752 are given in Old Style while those which took place in European countries before 1752 are expressed in New Style. Consecrations qualified by the phrase "in secret" are those for which extraordinary measures were taken to conceal both the event and the news that it had taken place. The form of the names of titular sees used follows that adopted by the editors of Conrad Eubel: Hierarchia Catholica, v-viii (Padua: 1952-1979).

Compilation © 1980, 1982, 1984 James Darragh.

Their names should be recorded: William Ballantine, James Crichton, William Leslie, Thomas Lumsden, John Smith and John Walker. They reached two important conclusions: to send William Leslie to Rome as agent for the Scottish secular clergy; and to petition Propaganda for the incorporation of the clergy into a missionary body, adequately subsidised by Rome. This was done by a decree of the Congregation of Propaganda fide, dated 13th October, 1653; and it is to Ballantine that the credit for this first step is due [APF Acta, 13 Oct. 1653, n. 17, ff. 120v-121r].

PREFECTS APOSTOLIC

1. William Ballantine: born 1618, son of Thomas Ballantine (or Bannatine), minister of North Berwick, and Margaret Cockburn; brought up as a Presbyterian in Douglas where his father was incumbent from June 1621; educated University of Edinburgh (matriculated 1635, but left without graduating, presumably in 1636); received into Catholic Church, probably at Paris, date unknown; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 1641, and took the oath, 1st November; "factus ob infirmitatem citius sacerdos," 3rd December 1645; left the College, 15th March 1646; prefect of studies at Scots College, Paris; arrived in Scotland, "immediately before the Hellish Murder of the Best of Kings" [30th January 1649]; returned to Paris, 1650, and arranged meeting of six Scottish priests at which it was agreed that he and John Walker should petition Propaganda for the appointment of a prefect and missionaries with subsidy and that William Leslie should go to Rome as agent for Scottish secular priests; appointed prefect, 13th October 1653; resided at Gordon Castle, Moray; arrested at Rye, Sussex, England, September 1656, imprisoned until July 1658, released on personal order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell, with a gift of £60 to take him to France; returned to Scotland, 18th May 1660; died at Elgin, 2nd September 1661, and is buried in the Huntly aisle, Elgin Cathedral, Moray; author of A preparation for death or, The practice of dying well (2nd edition, 1715).
2. Alexander Winchester: born at Garmouth, Moray, c. 1625 [parents' names unknown]; studied for four years at Rheims and for four further years under the Jesuits at Dijon; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 27th May 1651; ordained priest, 21st May 1656; left College, 1657 [at a meeting of Propaganda, 3rd September 1657, described as a member of Scots College in Rome who had just finished his studies]; returned to Scotland, 1658; resided principally at Gordon Castle, Moray; appointed prefect, 12th June 1662; school with 60 pupils established on Skye, c. 1663, by Ewen McAllister, schoolmaster, but subsequently driven out and re-established with 24 pupils in Glen Garry, 1665; absent in France, 1668-1672, during which period John Walker substituted as prefect but was not formally appointed as such by Propaganda; apostolic visitation of Scotland by Alexander Leslie, 1677-1680, with report submitted to Propaganda, January 1681; proposed by John Leyburne, vicar apostolic of England, to Propaganda as bishop for Scotland, 19th February 1686; Dean of Chapel Royal,

Holyrood, 1687; escaped north to Gordon Castle at the Revolution in 1688; resigned July 1697; died at Banff, 14th January 1708, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Tynet, Moray. [There is little prospect of discovering Winchester's real name. The parish register for Urquhart in the presbytery of Elgin, which includes Garmouth, has nothing earlier than 1647. During his life he was known under many aliases, especially that of Dunbar; there is a Nicholas Dunbar, a merchant of Moray, included in the list of Catholics in Prefect Ballantine's report to Propaganda in 1660. Clapperton, however, says that his father's name was John Gray and implies that he was born in 1629. "Winchester" is a north-east of Scotland name, pronounced "Winster", and it is in the latter form that his name appears in the Scots College register and in the ordination registers of the Roman Vicariate].

In practice the prefecture apostolic covered only the Scots-speaking parts of the country. From 1612 to 1647 Gaelic-speaking Catholics in the Hebrides and Western Highlands of Scotland were ministered to by priests from the Irish Franciscan mission who were formally commissioned in this work by Urban VIII on 4th September 1623. At first they worked from the Irish Franciscan College of St. Anthony, Leuven, Belgium, but in 1626 they were granted as their headquarters the friary at Bonamargy, County Antrim, Ireland, traditional burial place of the MacDonnells of Antrim, descendants of the Lords of the Isles. The Irish spoken by these missionaries was understood by the people of the Highlands and Islands. The most effective period of their work was during the years 1624-1637. Although Patrick Hegarty worked from Bonamargy as prefect of this mission from 1631 to 1647, he did not visit Scotland during this period and the priest who spent the greatest number of years on the mission was Patrick Brady who laboured, chiefly in Sutherland, from 1619 to 1637. The last priest to leave was Cornelius Ward in the summer of 1637. Although the mission was formally re-established on 22nd January 1647 under Edmund McCann, no details of this new enterprise have come down to us and there is no evidence that any missionaries ever reached the Highlands and Islands.

Further attempts to carry on this mission were made by the Vincentians of whom the best known is Francis White, "a truly Apostolic man," who was sent to Scotland by St. Vincent de Paul in 1654 and who worked in the West Highlands until his death on 28th January 1679. On 20th April 1665 and 20th September 1666 Propaganda in Congregation considered requests from the prefect, Alexander Winchester, that Irish-speaking priests should again be sent to the Highlands. It was eventually decided by Propaganda that a separate prefect apostolic for the Highlands and Islands should be provided and, on 17th September 1669, St. Oliver Plunkett, nominated only two months earlier to the archbishopric of Armagh, Ireland, was appointed additionally to this office and continued in it until his martyrdom in 1681. [APF Acta, 17th September 1669, n. 14, pp. 462-463].

THE VICARS APOSTOLIC OF SCOTLAND

The report on the state of the Mission requested in 1677 by Propaganda, prepared by Alexander Leslie and presented by him to the Congregation in January 1681, recommended, inter alia, the appointment of a general superior for Scotland, with authority over both seculars and regulars. At their meeting on 4th March 1681, Propaganda accepted most of Leslie's proposals but took no action on the nomination of a bishop. However, the disarray in which the Church in Scotland found itself after the "Glorious Revolution" of November-December 1688 and the subsequent triumph, by the settlement of 7th June 1690, of presbyterianism over episcopalianism as the form of Church government in Scotland confirmed the need among Catholics for a single episcopal superior towards whom all could look for leadership and support.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XII approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic for Scotland under a titular bishop [APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 37v] and on 27th July 1694 Thomas Nicolson's name was proposed by Propaganda in Congregation for the appointment ["per tale Ministerio D. Tomaso Nicolson, sacerdote scozzese antico e benemerito Missionario il quale ha qualità, dottrina e costumi ecclesiastici com'è stato rappresentato più particolarmente all'Em. Prefetto"] [APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 130v/131r] and confirmed by decree of Propaganda, 17th August, 1694. On 5th September 1694 Innocent XII approved the appointment of Thomas Nicolson as first vicar apostolic.

1. Thomas Nicolson: born at Birkenbog, Banffshire, c. 1645, son of Thomas Nicolson of Pitmedden, Aberdeenshire, and Elizabeth Abercromby of Birkenbog; brought up as an Episcopalian; educated University of Aberdeen (matriculated 1660); regent [i.e. professor], University of Glasgow, 1666-1681; after the Test Act passed by the Parliament of Scotland, 13th August 1681, he "demurred to take the Test appointed by act of Parliament", and was deprived of his regency, presumably in the autumn of 1681, (by inference from an entry in Register of the Privy Council); received into Catholic Church, 1682; visited Scots College, Douai, 3rd July 1682, when he was described in College diary as being 36 years old and formerly professor of Greek, mathematics and philosophy in University of Glasgow; appointed to staff of episcopal seminary at Padua, Italy, and later decided to enter the priesthood; prefect of studies, October 1685 to August 1687; ordained at Padua, 9th March, 1686; returned to Scotland as missionary, December 1687, and stationed at Glasgow where he stayed in the town house of the Baillie family of Castlecary; name proposed by James VII as bishop, July 1688; arrested at the Revolution and imprisoned in Stirling Castle, November, 1688; exiled to France on bond of his brother, Lord Kennay; chaplain to English Benedictine nuns at Dunkirk, 1689-1694; nominated titular bishop of Peristasis and first vicar apostolic of Scotland, 7th September 1694, and consecrated by Jules de Mascaron, Cong. Orat., Bishop of Agen, France, assisted by Henri de Barillon, bishop of Luçon, France, and Martin de Ratabon, bishop of Leper, Belgium, in secret at Paris, 27th February 1695; left Paris for Scotland, 8th April 1695, but for lack of a passport was unable to cross to England and was forced to spend the rest of that year and most of the next in Holland and Germany where, at Würzburg, he received in August 1696 from John Ambrose Cook, O.S.B., abbot of Würzburg, and Thomas Placid Fleming, O.S.B., abbot of Ratisbon, the promise of complete submission to his authority of Benedictine monks while on the mission; arrived in England, November 1696, arrested, and subsequently released, May 1697; arrived in Edinburgh, July 1697, but took up residence at Preshome, Banffshire, which thus became administrative centre of Church in Scotland; divided Scotland into fixed districts to which missionaries were attached and prepared rules for their direction, April 1700, which were approved by Propaganda in 1706 and remained in force until 1780 [Statuta Missionis—see under George Hay (6) below]; received from William Aloysius Leslie, S.J., submission of Jesuit missionaries to his authority at Aberdeen, 7th February 1701; undertook extensive visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; ordained Peter Fraser priest, 11th March 1704, probably at Preshome, the first ordination in Scotland [? British Isles] since the reformation; “a very great man, both in learning and piety, under whom the Mission was always free from intestine embroils”; imprisoned at Fochabers after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715 but obtained his release “by the judicious use of money”; died at Preshome, 12th October 1718, and is buried in St. Ninian’s churchyard, Tynet, Moray.

2. James Gordon: born at Glastirum, Enzie, Banffshire, 31st January 1665, son of Patrick Gordon of Glastirum and Margaret Seton; entered Scots College, Paris 1679, sent first to Louvain but returned to Paris, 1683; B.A. (Paris, 1692); ordained at Paris [date unknown]; returned to Scotland, August 1692; missionary in the Enzie, 1692-1702; assistant to Scots agent in Rome, 1702-1706; English agent at Rome, 1703-1706; nominated titular bishop of Nicopolis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, 21st August 1705, and consecrated by Marc’Antonio Barbarigo, cardinal archbishop-bishop of Montefiascone, assisted by Giuseppe Cianti, bishop of Sutri, and Onofrio Elisei, bishop of Bagnoregio, in secret at Montefiascone, Italy, 11th April 1706; arrived in Scotland, July 1706; a great apostolic bishop who during the whole of his long episcopate made heroic visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; founded with seven boys [Hugh MacDonald (see (10) below) being one of them] seminary at Loch Morar, Inverness-shire, 1714; in hiding with rest of clergy during persecutions after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715; re-opened Loch Morar seminary and transferred it to Scalan, Banffshire, 1716; succeeded as vicar apostolic, 12th October 1718; translated on division of vicariate to Lowland District, 23rd July 1727.
3. John Wallace: born at Arbroath, baptised 8th April 1654 [Arbroath Parochial Register in New Register House, Edinburgh], son of Patrick Wallace, merchant [mother’s name unknown]; [the Wallace family played a leading part in the affairs of Arbroath in the 17th and 18th centuries, and many with the name of Patrick Wallace were provost; they were, in religion, Episcopalian; politically, after 1688, Jacobites; in trade, tobacco and linen merchants with a taste for smuggling]; brought up as an Episcopalian and licensed to preach and baptise in Episcopalian ministry; tutor to children of Earl of Perth, "in Lent" 1681; left Scotland for France, 1686, and probably received into Catholic Church there; after Revolution with Jacobite court at St. Germain-en-Laye; private almoner to James VII; retired to live at Scots College, Paris; was persuaded by Bishop James Gordon in July 1706 to return to Scotland and did so in October 1706; ordained at Preshome, 3rd April 1708; missionary at Arbroath; in February 1709 the Presbytery of Arbroath recorded that "popery was prevailing in Arbroath, by the industry of Mr. John Wallace, and by reason of his interest in the place and in the country about" and he was therefore summoned to the justiciary court at Perth, 1709, for apostasy and for trafficking and perverting but, for want of evidence, the diet was deserted; from 1709 lived mainly in Edinburgh where he was chaplain to Duchess of Gordon; nominated titular bishop of Cyrrhus and coadjutor vicar apostolic, 30th April 1720, and consecrated by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic of Scotland, assisted by Alexander Drummond, priest, and James Carnegie, priest, in secret at Edinburgh, 21st September 1720; arrested Edinburgh, 1722, and outlawed; died at Edinburgh, 30th June 1733 [place of burial unknown].

II: 1727-1827

On 23rd July 1727 Scotland was divided into two vicariates, the Lowland and Highland Districts. Alexander John Grant was nominated titular Bishop of Sura, 16th September 1727, and vicar apostolic Highland District, 19th September 1727. He was born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, c. 1693, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid, and elder brother of James Grant (see (5) below); entered Scots College, Rome, 2nd April 1711; ordained priest [sub-deacon, 18th December 1717, but dates of diaconate and priesthood not traced]; left the College, 5th June 1719; at Scots College, Paris, July 1719 to July 1721; arrived in Scotland, August 1721; and was superior at Scalán, 1721-1726. In anticipation of his appointment he went to Paris, November 1726, and to Rome, March 1727. Although he was duly elected by Propaganda on 16th December, 1726, there was, for a number of reasons, a delay of some seven months before this was approved by Benedict XIII on 6th August 1727. In the meantime, Grant left Rome in April 1727 for Loreto and in August eventually reached Genoa where he became ill. He was last heard from in a letter dated 28th December 1727, seriously ill and living in great poverty in Genoa. It is presumed that he died there since no further trace of him has been discovered.

A successor was not appointed until 12th February 1731 when Hugh MacDonald was provided to the Highland District. The brief issued by Clement XII approving this nomination contained a clause empowering Bishops Gordon and MacDonald to define the limits of their respective Districts. This was done at a bishops' meeting in Edinburgh in October 1731 following Bishop MacDonald's consecration and was formally ratified by Propaganda in Congregation on 7th January 1732. The division was made on a basic recognition of the linguistic and cultural differences which separated the two peoples of Scotland at that time. In general terms, the two Districts were divided along a line which may be thought of as running from Dumbarton to Nairn, with the Scots-speaking area to the south and east comprising the Lowland District and the Gaelic-speaking area to the north and west in the Highland District, but with a number of localities where each overlapped the other.

A map showing the division in these terms appears in The Innes Review, xvii (1966), 130.

Lowland District

James Gordon, translated 23rd July 1727 but translation not effective until 18th October 1731; died at Thornhill, Perthshire, 18th February 1746, and is buried at Innerpeffrey, Perthshire.

4. Alexander Smith: born at Fochabers, Moray, "about Peter's Day", 1684, son of [Robert?] Smith, surgeon, and Catherine Wilson; entered Scots College, Paris, 1698; M.A. (Paris), 1703; returned from Paris, 1709, as deacon; ordained at Preshome, 19th April 1712; seriously ill after ordination, living in Aberdeen, but movements uncertain until return to Paris; procurator, Scots College, Paris, 1718-1730; returned to Scotland, July 1730; missionary in Angus, but illness [scrofula] continued and he was allowed to return to Paris, May 1733-August 1735; nominated titular bishop of Mosynopolis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, 19th September 1735, and consecrated by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District and Peter Grant, priest, at Edinburgh, 2nd November 1735; succeeded, 18th February 1746; in exile in England, 1750-1751; published first Scottish Catholic catechism, 1757, reprinted 1760; died at Edinburgh, 21st August 1767 [place of burial unknown].
5. James Grant: born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, July 1706, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid; at Scaln for two years before entering Scots College, Rome, 16th January 1726; ordained at Rome, 4th April 1733; at Sulpician seminary of St. Nicolas du Chardonnet, Paris, 1734-1735; stationed at Lochaber, 1735-1736; missionary on Barra and South Uist, 1736-1746; imprisoned in common jail at Inverness, 1746-1747; missionary at Rathven, 1748-1755; nominated titular bishop of Sinitis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, 21st February 1755, and consecrated by Alexander Smith, titular bishop of Mosynopolis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District, [name of second co-consecrator unknown] in secret at Edinburgh, 13th November 1755; succeeded, 21st August 1767; died at Aberdeen, 3rd December 1778, and is buried in the Snow churchyard, Old Aberdeen.
6. George Hay: born at Edinburgh, 24th August 1729, son of James Hay, writer, and Mary Morrison; brought up as an Episcopalian; apprenticed to George Lauder, surgeon, 1745; impressed with other Edinburgh doctors and medical students to treat wounded after battle of Prestonpans, 21st September 1745, and thereafter followed the Jacobite army to England and on the retreat to Scotland; according to tradition, subsequently imprisoned at Edinburgh and London before being released and returning to Edinburgh in June 1747, but his name is not included by Seton and Arnot in The Prisoners of the '45 (Scottish History Society, 1928-1929, 3 vols.); received into Catholic Church, 21st December 1748; owed vocation to priesthood to Bishop Richard Challoner whom he met in 1750 in London; entered Scots College, Rome, 10th September 1751; ordained at Rome, 2nd April 1758; returned to Scotland, April 1759; missionary at Preshome, 1759-1767; procurator of the vicariate, 1767-1779 and stationed at Edinburgh; nominated titular bishop of Daulia and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, 5th October 1768, and consecrated by James Grant, titular bishop of Sinitis and vicar apostolic, Lowland district, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District, and John MacDonald, coadjutor vicar apostolic, Highland District, in secret at Scalán, 21st May 1769; succeeded, 3rd December 1778; devotional writer, controversialist and administrator of great ability; during period of great stress for the Church in Scotland moved its centre away from Highlands to Aberdeen and Edinburgh; revised in conjunction with Bishops MacDonald and Geddes the Statuta Missionis, dated April 1700, of Bishop Nicolson and secured approval and publication of revised text by Propaganda: Instrukiones ad munera Apostolica rite obeunda perutiles missionibus S. . . [Scotiae] accommodatae [Romae: Typis S. Cong. de Propaganda Fide, 1782]; founded seminary at Aquhorties, Aberdeenshire, to which students transferred from Scalán, 24th July 1799; resigned, 24th August 1805; died at Aquhorties, 15th October 1811, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Fetternear, Aberdeenshire, but the exact site of his grave is unknown and no memorial marks the last resting place of the greatest of the Scottish vicars apostolic; collected edition of writings published as Works . . . a new edition edited under the supervision of Bishop Strain (7 vols., 1871-1873, 2nd edition, 5 vols., 1872); centenary reprintings of The sincere Christian (1911) and Bishop Hay on the priesthood (1911).

THE PROVINCE OF
ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

The Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh consists of the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh and the four Suffragan Sees of Aberdeen, Argyll and the Isles, Dunkeld, and Galloway.

ARCHDIOCESE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

*The bishops associated with Kinrimumb, St. Andrews, had assumed ecclesiastical primacy in Scotland from Dunkeld by the beginning of the tenth century. The last of the Celtic bishops died in 1093; the line of the medieval bishops began in 1109 but the Church and the bishopric were not securely established until 1144. The independence of the Scottish Church from the metropolitan claims of the archbishops of York was established by Celestine III with the Bull Cum universi, 13th March 1192. St. Andrews was erected a Metropolitan See by Sixtus IV, 14th August 1472. The See was vacant from the execution at Stirling on 6th April 1571 of John Hamilton (1547-1571) until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.*

PERSONAL PRELATURE OF THE HOLY CROSS AND OPUS DEI

Personal Prelatures are juridical structures of a secular character governed by a Prelate and erected by the Holy See to carry out specific pastoral or missionary activities. The general norms on personal Prelatures are contained in the Code of Canon Law—canons 294 to 297. Each has its own statutes approved by the Holy See. Opus Dei is a personal Prelature, international in its scope, which aims to spread throughout all sectors of society a deep awareness of the universal call to sanctity and apostolate in the fulfilment of one's ordinary profession or job. It is formed by a Prelate with his own clergy and by lay people, men and women, who in virtue of a divine vocation freely join the Prelature.

OBITUARIES—1983

Very Rev. Peter Provost Kaye—12th November, 1982

The Very Rev. Peter Provost Kaye parish priest of St. John Vianney's, Alva, died in Alva on Friday 12th November, 1982 at the age of seventy-one. He was born in Perth on 21st June, 1911. He received his primary education in Perth and entered Blairs College in August 1925 to begin his studies for the priesthood. He soon became known as the outstanding sportsman of his class and in 1926 at the beginning of his second year his skill as a footballer was recognised when he had the unusual distinction of being promoted at such an early age to what was then known as "the big pitch". That same year he became the youngest member of the first eleven and for the next four years he was an automatic choice for the first team—a much coveted honour in those days. He also distinguished himself on the cricket field and on the tennis court and was recognised by his contemporaries as the best all-rounder on the playing fields of the college.

In October 1930 Peter was one of seven students who went to the Ecole Apostolique at Saint Lô in Normandy. After a year in Saint Lô he proceeded to the Sulpician Seminary at Issy-les-Moulineaux on the outskirts of Paris, and in 1935 after having received the sub-diaconate he went for his final year to the seminary in the Rue du Regard, Paris.

He returned home in June, 1936 and on 21st June of that year—his twenty-fifth birthday—he was ordained priest in St. Mary's, Kinnoull by the late Bishop John Toner, Bishop of Dunkeld.

His first appointment after ordination was to the parish of SS. Peter & Paul, Dundee where his parish priest was Father Joseph McGee who later became Bishop of Galloway. In 1948 he was appointed parish priest of Dunblane where he remained for eight years. In 1956 he was appointed to Arbroath and in 1963 he was transferred to St. Columba's, Dundee. His final appointment was to St. John Vianney's, Alva in 1974 and there he remained until his death in 1982. In 1974 he was installed as a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter and in 1981 he was appointed Provost of the Chapter.

Although he never sought the limelight Canon Peter was loved and respected by his parishioners in every parish in which he served, as a conscientious and zealous priest whose first concern was always the welfare of his parishioners. The first sign that all was not well was a slight heart attack which he suffered while on a golfing holiday in Troon. Fortunately he recovered completely and was able to lead a normal life for quite a number of years. In fact as recently as 1980 while visiting some of his old classmates in America he took part in a golf tournament.

It was towards the end of 1981 that his health showed serious signs of deterioration and he was never again to be fully fit. In the Spring of 1982 he was admitted to Stirling Infirmary for an operation and later transferred for treatment to the Western Infirmary in Glasgow. After some weeks there he was sent back to Stirling where he suffered a slight stroke. Once more he rallied and was able to go for a few weeks convalescence before returning home early in September. On the afternoon of 12th November, he went to Stirling Infirmary for examination under a general anaesthetic and on returning home he went straight to bed. About 9 p.m. he had another heart attack and died very peacefully half an hour later.

The Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. John Vianney's, Alva on Tuesday at 11 a.m. In the unavoidable absence of Bishop Logan the Principal Celebrant was Bishop Hart who had been Canon Kaye's Bishop for a number of years.

The funeral took place in Perth and Canon Peter was laid to rest beside his parents and his only sister Rita. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Michael Canon Teehan—4th December, 1982

The death took place on 4th December, 1982 at Aut Even Hospital, Kilkenny, of Canon Michael Teehan, retired parish priest of St. John's, Barrhead.

Ill health compelled him to retire in 1976 from Barrhead after a pastorate of almost twenty years at St. John's to his native Kilkenny. Born 11th August, 1903, at Tullaroan, Co. Kilkenny, he completed his theology studies at St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny, and was ordained priest in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kilkenny, on 10th June 1928, for the Archdiocese of Glasgow. He held curacy appointments at St. Mary's, Hamilton, Lanarkshire, from August to December 1928; St. Joseph's, Helensburgh, from 1928 to 1930 and St. Mirin's, Paisley, from 1930 to 1949.

On leaving St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley, after a curacy of nineteen years, to assume his first charge at St. Conval's, Linwood, on 17th June, 1949, the Glasgow Observer of 25th November, 1949, commented on a presentation by St. Mirin's parishioners:

"The qualities that had distinguished Father Teehan during his (St. Kieran's) College days and later in the priesthood (were his) gentleman, transparent sincerity and simplicity. He had been an example and inspiration to his colleagues . . . Father Teehan had always proved to be a soothing influence at all times, calm and unruffled. He possessed the gift of true and sincere friendship . . . carried his priesthood with dignity and in close imitation of his Master . . ."

On 21st September, 1956, he succeeded Canon James Troy at St. John's, Barrhead. His first major task was building the new St. John's Church, to replace the old St. John's destroyed by fire in July, 1941. On 21st October, 1961, Bishop James Black dedicated the new church and by the late 1960s Canon Teehan, with the wholehearted support and generosity of his parishioners, had the parish debt completely cleared.

St. John's parishioners presented their pastor with his canonical robes on his elevation to the Paisley Cathedral Chapter in 1966 and were associated with him when he attained his golden jubilee in the priesthood in 1978 although then living in retirement in Kilkenny.

The bell was tolling over the hillside of Tullaroan, Co. Kilkenny, on 7th December, 1982, as the mortal remains of Canon Teehan, were borne from the Church of the Assumption, where he was baptised almost eighty years previously, where he had received his first communion, was confirmed and said his first Mass in 1928. He was laid to rest in the adjoining churchyard beside the priests who served the area from the early 19th century.

The church, opened in 1826, three years before Catholic Emancipation, was packed to capacity for the Requiem Mass offered by Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley with about twenty concelebrants including Mgr. Matthew Provost Kinsella, Vicar-General of Paisley, and eight other Paisley priests. Bishop Laurence Forristal of Ossory presided in the sanctuary and in the pews were about another fifty priests and several nuns mainly from Aut Even Hospital, Kilkenny, where Canon Teehan spent the last years of his priesthood as chaplain after retiring from the active ministry in Scotland.

The parish school choir led the music and rendered several pieces in Irish. The cantor was Rev. Seamus McEvoy, headmaster of St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny.

In his homily, Bishop McGill spoke of the qualities that distinguished Canon Teehan—his transparent sincerity and simplicity, his sense and appreciation of the priesthood, his soothing influence at all times, calm and unruffled. He possessed the gift of true and sincere friendship and not only carried his priesthood with dignity but lived it in close imitation of his Divine Master for the benefit of the souls entrusted to his care.

The Bishop recalled the remarkable coincidences in the life of Canon Teehan and another Kilkenny priest, Rev. James Purcell. Father Purcell was associated with the building of the first St. John's Church, Barrhead, in 1841, while Canon Teehan replaced it 120 years later with the new St. John's dedicated in 1961. Both had previously served in St. Mary's, Hamilton, and St. Mirin's, Paisley. Canon Teehan and Father Purcell were but two of the 140 priests given to Scotland by St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny and, said the Bishop, he was pleased to avail himself of the opportunity of publicly expressing thanks for all those priests and St. Kieran's College had done for the Church in Scotland.

Lasting impressions of Canon Teehan come from his solid piety, his quiet sense of dignity of the priesthood which was never supercilious or affected. He was a priest who visited the church every evening to recite his Rosary. If one suddenly entered his room, he would be found on his knees beside his chair, with Rosary in his hands. He could be shy, unassuming and sometimes awkward in company except in the company of other priests. He loved the company of his fellow priests.

His priority of work as a priest was not his preaching—on his own admission preaching never came easy to him—but his assiduous home-to-home visitation. He knew his flock because he visited his flock, street by street—even in his 70's.

St. John's new church stands as a memorial to the man who built it. He had insisted on a bell tower being part of the architectural feature of the church to preserve the continuity between the old church destroyed by fire and the new one. He was able to use the original bell of old St. John's (cast in the 19th century) which calls the people of Barrhead to church today, as it did over a hundred years ago. It also rings the Angelus at noon and 6 o'clock in the evening, another indication of the Canon's devotion to the Mother of God.

He was a very caring priest of the old mould, but could adapt to modern ideas. He was one of the first to establish a youth conference of St. Vincent de Paul Society in Paisley diocese. He could relate to his time. He was kind mannered. He retained a great interest in games particularly football and hurling.

He was a good manager and popular with his people. He was a priest of regular habits with a special time for everything. He was an excellent host especially to his fellow priests and always even tempered and gentle and blessed with a placid disposition.

He was predeceased a few years ago by his brother, Rev. Francis Teehan, parish priest of Piltown, Co. Kilkenny.

May the soil of his native Tullaroan lie lightly on him as he awaits the glorious resurrection and may his soul rest in peace.

Rev. John Charles Brady—8th December, 1982

"The Church in its pilgrim members, from the very earliest days of the Christian religion, has honoured with great respect the memory of the dead . . . to look on the life of those who have faithfully followed Christ is to be inspired with a new reason for seeking the city which is to come." Lumen Gentium, n. 50.

The pilgrimage of John (or Jack) Brady was a journey made in faith, with many changes of direction which were unexpected, but which, to the man of faith, showed the guiding hand of God.

Jack was born in Carfin on 19th October, 1930, one of five children of John and Isobel Brady. He grew up in the era of Canon Taylor, when the Grotto was at its most famous as a centre of faith and devotion for the West of Scotland. John's parents were totally committed to that faith, and deeply involved in the life of their parish. His mother was present each morning at Mass in the parish church of St. Francis Xavier. His father led the family rosary at home each evening. And in the Grotto every Sunday his voice boomed out, carrying clearly across the length of the grounds without the aid of modern inventions like the public address system, as he led the pilgrims in their devotions, reciting the rosary and meditating on the journey through this world of our Saviour. Jack served as an altar boy at Mass, and with the rest of his family helped to look after the many pilgrims in the parish hall. He learned through experience the meaning of being part of a living parish, a community of faith.

Jack completed his studies at Our Lady's High School in Motherwell in 1949. It was the suggestion of Father John Boyle which led to his applying to go on to College to study for the priesthood. He went out to the Scots College in Rome and settled in quickly, delighting in the company of staff and students and all the history of Rome. The next stage of the journey should have meant six years in Rome till ordination. But events took an unexpected turn. He became the victim of rheumatic fever and for a time was very ill. A long period of convalescence became necessary and he was advised to return to Scotland.

By September 1950, he was able to continue his preparation, this time at St. Peter's College, Cardross. Darleith House, on the edge of the moors in Dunbartonshire, was a bleak contrast to Rome. But it brought him back to the Scottish countryside, and helped to develop the love for his native land which lasted throughout his life, and perhaps influenced important decisions he was to make much later in life. During his time in College, he delighted in walking on the moors and hillside in the area. Another leisure pursuit was the historical novels of Scotland. He amused fellow students with his skill as a cartoonist, reflecting on the trials of College life. His poetic gems were unique, influenced neither by Burns nor McGonagall. His public recitation of a piece on the shortcomings of the College laundry, while vastly entertaining to the students, proved less appealing to the Rector. The literary world lost a poet but the Church gained a priest. During those years, the faith nurtured within his family grew and expressed itself in prayer, devotion to the Mass and the Rosary. He was popular among students, generous, friendly, always ready with a story made all the more entertaining by his habit of exaggeration.

He was ordained in Motherwell Cathedral by Bishop Scanlan on 29th June, 1956, and after a brief period in St. Mary's, Hamilton, he settled in to St. Mary's, Larkhall. His five years' work left memories of devoted care of the sick, friendly, informal approach to everyone, and spontaneous reaction to situations. He amused the congregation, but not the mother of a young child wandering around the front of the sanctuary while he tried to preach, by announcing, "We want him to be a roamin' Catholic, but not just now."

He was in St. Joseph's, Blantyre, with Canon Battel during the years of the Second Vatican Council. The Church began its renewal and it felt as if everything was changing. When Jack had been in St. Peter's College, the Vernacular Society was regarded by the students as a fringe group, extremists trying to introduce the unthinkable—Mass in English. Twelve years later it was now the official rite of the Church. It seemed that Bible services were in and the Rosary was on the way out. What felt like a different Church with a new theology was developing. These were difficult times when many felt adrift and faith was tested.

What was to prove his final spell of full-time parish work in Motherwell diocese was spent in St. Benedict's, Easterhouse. In October, 1970, he was appointed full-time chaplain to the newly opened Trinity High School, Rutherglen.

His enthusiastic approach to everything he did found full scope for expression in this new apostolate, as the school roll grew from 600 to 1,500.

His was not the with-it, guitar-playing approach, but a more traditional style in which Mass was the cornerstone of daily life, and its celebration the distinguishing feature of the Catholic school. He was chaplain to both staff and pupils, and achieved a good relationship with all. While not regarding himself as a teacher, he used a very effective teaching technique in his down-to-earth form of preaching. Anything that involved the school received his support—parents' meetings in the evening, football on Saturday morning, hostelling and hill-climbing at the weekend.

In October, 1978, another great change took place in his life and work as a priest. He was asked to go on loan to Aberdeen diocese. He loved the Scottish countryside, and this challenge to live, work and travel in this area proved attractive. The parish of Our Lady and St. Michael, Tomintoul, became his responsibility. Travelling was a major element in his pastoral work of looking after this scattered community of 160 people. The danger that this might entail was brought home to him one Sunday in winter, when, while motoring back after saying Mass in Tombae, Glenlivet, he was trapped in a snowdrift for two hours.

A year later, he moved further north to the remote parish of St. Lawrence's, Dingwall, in Ross and Cromarty. This involved even more travelling—at the weekend 200 miles, going to Cromarty for Mass on Saturday evening, then back to Dingwall for Mass on Sunday morning, then to Ullapool and finally to Gairloch. These efforts brought the support of the faith and the sense of belonging to the community of the Church to the Catholics of these beautiful areas. In all these areas, his outgoing cheerful manner won friends from every section of the community. He carried this responsibility for three years, and despite the difficulties, he enjoyed his work as a priest and the frequent opportunity to be out of doors in spectacular scenery, and was able to tolerate the loneliness at times involved.

His final mission was in St. Aidan's, Aviemore, where he moved in September, 1982. This centre for outdoor activities included a ministry to a continually changing community. He settled in, and through taking a full share in the religious and social life of the town he quickly became a welcome figure, respected by all. On 8th December, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of Our Lady, he failed to appear for Mass—God had called him on the final part of his journey to the eternal city. The news of his sudden death was received with a sense of profound shock by all those who knew him.

His remains were brought to St. Mary's, Inverness, where Mass was celebrated by Bishop Conti and the priests and people of the Aberdeen diocese. Then home to his own diocese of Motherwell, where a final tribute was paid to him in St. Teresa's Church, Newarthill. The large congregation was led in prayer by Bishop Thomson and testified to the great esteem and affection which all felt for him. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Thomas Canon Brady—7th January, 1983

On 7th January 1983, the Very Rev. Thomas Canon Brady died: may he rest in peace. Those of us who knew him well were surprised. We frequently told him that he would live until he was a hundred. He always gave that impression. Whether he himself had reason to believe otherwise I do not know, but I remember one evening in Malta when some of us were standing with him on a balcony which skirted the Capuchin Church on the hill above St. Paul's Bay, he said to us: "one of these days you will be surprised: I am not going to live much longer". And he was right.

He was born on 6th March, 1906, in the parish of Our Lady and St. Margaret's, Kinning Park. His early schooling was in St. Margaret's Primary, from which he went to St. Mungo's Academy in 1918, in which he acquired not only the usual knowledge of humanities, but a deep and lasting admiration for the Marist Brothers to whom he always showed a manly loyalty. He transferred to the Junior Seminary at Blairs in 1921, and in September 1926 he began his more proximate preparation for the priesthood in St. Peter's Senior Seminary in Bearsden. He was ordained to the priesthood on 19th June 1932 in St. Peter's College itself, and not, as might have been expected on 29th June in St. Andrew's Cathedral. Memories come back that the reason for this change was the International Eucharistic Congress in Dublin in that year, and that the ordinations were early to allow the newly ordained priests to take part in that wonderful display of Faith and Love for the Holy Mass and the Most Blessed Sacrament: a Faith and Love which was to be found in Canon Tom until the end.

He began his priestly life with a short stay in St. Aloysius', Chapelhall, from August 1932 to December of that same year, and during those few months he experienced the death of his parish priest, Father Donald MacPherson, a Highland gentleman about whom Canon Tom would speak with respect and whose priestly example was from time to time the subject of Canon Brady's reminiscences. From Chapelhall he was sent to All Saints', Coatdyke, where he stayed for fifteen years until 1947. From there in February 1947 he was transferred to the Parish of the Immaculate Conception, Maryhill, and finally in October 1953 he was appointed to Milton, to be the first parish priest of one of the new housing schemes which in those post-war years were being built all round the city of Glasgow. As was normal for a newly appointed parish priest in those days, there was no church, no house, no school, and, of course, no money. There were, of course, some thousands of good, solid, Catholic people. From those people under the guidance and driving energy of their new pastor there emerged St. Augustine's Parish, which has since given birth to its daughter parish St. Monica's, thus reversing nature itself.

Canon Brady's extra-parochial activities were many, among them being the Secretary and Treasurer of the Glasgow Pilgrimage Committee (1950), Chaplain to the Catholic Nurses (1951), Chaplain to the Glasgow Lourdes Hospitalité (1966). He became an honorary Canon of the Archdiocese in 1972, and was appointed a member of the Cathedral Chapter on St. Andrew's Day in November 1977. He attained his Golden Jubilee in the Priesthood in June 1982, and it was then brought home to him how much he was appreciated and had been appreciated for fifty years. He may have been parish priest of St. Augustine's at the time of his Jubilee, but the parishioners of the parishes where he had been curate since 1932 vied with each other in showing their gratitude and love for their priest. So too did the members of the Lourdes Hospitalité, the Catholic Nurses' Guild, and all connected with Lourdes.

This short appreciation of Canon Tom Brady must stress Canon Tom's dearest love after his priesthood, namely Lourdes and Our Blessed Lady. He was not a man who showed his feelings, but those of us who knew him well were very conscious of what Lourdes meant in his life. A rough calculation has shown me that somewhere in the last years of his life he had privately celebrated his Golden Jubilee of visits to Lourdes. He started going to Lourdes in the early thirties, and except for the war years, he did not, to my knowledge miss his annual pilgrimage, and frequently he was in Lourdes twice in the one year. It was before the war, in the thirties, that Canon Tom was fashioned into the servant of Lourdes and Our Lady's sick that he later became. He had the example of the great men of those days: priests who had pioneered the great Glasgow Pilgrimages of former years, and he carried on their work, strongly, quietly, and in a completely self-effacing manner. It was after his last pilgrimage in October 1982, three months before his death that he admitted to me privately that he never suffered so much pain in his life as he had done going to and from the Grotto during that October visit. He may have guessed, but it was the beginning of the end of a great priestly life. Before Christmas the true nature of his illness was discovered. Blood transfusions brought about some relief from pain and restored him for a time to reasonable activity. But it could not last. On his return to hospital after a visit home at Christmas and New Year, the doctors realised that the inevitable end was near, and to the surprise of us all Canon Tom died next morning, on 7th January 1983.

I make no apology for what follows. In the days before the ecumenical movement, when blunt honesty was more in evidence, Hilaire Belloc records that an Anglican Vicar placed in his church.

"An image filled with majesty
To represent the undefiled,
The universal Mother—She—

In those days his Anglican Bishop did not agree, and wrote off to the incumbent: "Remove them instantly!

A Female Figure with a Child".

At the end of the Ballade Belloc gives this little prayer:

"Prince Jesus, in mine agony,
Permit me, broken and defiled,
Through blurred and glazing eyes to see
A Female Figure with a Child".

Theologians may express things differently, but I quite simply believe that when Canon Tom's eyes opened on eternity, the Lady whom he had loved and served was there to greet him. May he rest in peace.

Rev. Denis McKillop—8th January, 1983

Father Denis McKillop was born in Coatbridge on 16th July, 1921. Divine Providence willed he should be a member of a large family—five brothers and five sisters. His father and mother were to mould and shape that family in a truly Catholic atmosphere, where charity, kindness, thoughtfulness and courtesy were the outward expression of a sincere love of God and His Blessed Mother. That Catholic upbringing was to characterize Denis all his years.

He received his primary schooling in St. Patrick's, Coatbridge, before transferring to St. Mary's, Whifflet, and Our Lady's High, Motherwell. Having completed his secondary education, he went to work on the assembly line of Rolls Royce, firstly in Bathgate and then in Hillington. As a teenager and young man he was very involved with the Boys' Guild, particularly in football—a fact that is being recognised and commemorated by the introduction of the McKillop Trophy for Boys' Guild football in the Diocese of Motherwell.

In 1943 he was called up for War Service in the R.A.F., and did a spell of duty in Aden. Demobbed in 1945 he decided to follow his three sisters and two brothers in the teaching profession and so entered Jordanhill Training College. He was to join the teaching staff of St. Joseph's, Motherwell, in 1948. Two years later, life for Denis took another turn. He would, like his twin brother Father Henry, M.H.M., spend the rest of his life serving God in the priesthood. In 1950 he began studying philosophy and theology in St. Sulpice, Paris.

Ordained by Bishop Black in St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley, on 29th June, 1956, he was to share his priesthood with the people of the following parishes:

St. Ninian's, Gourrock	1956-1968;
St. James', Paisley	1968-1969;
St. Thomas', Neilston	1969-1971;
St. Joseph's, Clarkston	1971-1973;
St. Mirin's, Paisley	1973-1976;
St. Conval's, Linwood	1976-1983.

On Friday, 8th January, 1983, his earthly priesthood ended and Father Denis was called to his reward. His passing allows us to pay tribute to a fine and humble priest. He had those qualities most people look for in their priest. Everyone meant the same to him—everyone ranked equal—he had time for all. His readiness to serve, his availability, his generosity of heart, endeared him to many for he could make you feel you were important, that he really cared and whatever your problem, he had the time and the patience to share it. He was a gifted public relations expert—always tolerant but with the strength of character to resist anyone who sought to push him or his cause. He represented Catholic interests for many years on the Renfrew Education Committee, where his genuineness of character was acclaimed in his appointment for a term as Vice-Chairman.

He wasn't a trendy, "with it" priest, but he carried a priestly dignity. He was a good priest but there was nothing ostentatious about his goodness. He was blessed with a delightful sense of humour, an infectious laugh and was a great raconteur.

The overflow congregation that attended his Requiem in St. Conval's, reflected the affection in which he was held.

Que le Seigneur reçoive son âme.

Right Reverend Joseph McGee, Bishop Emeritus of Galloway—5th March, 1983

Late in the afternoon of 4th March, 1983, Bishop Joseph McGee suffered a stroke and he never recovered consciousness. A second fatal attack followed in the early hours of the following morning, and this great and good man gave back his soul to God.

He had resigned his bishopric two years before but he had not left us. He had retired to a little house in Prestwick but was always well enough to take part in diocesan events. Indeed, he delighted in "supplying" in neighbouring parishes whenever he could help. The result was that he was still considered to be very much round and about, which fact meant that the news of his sudden death came as a very great shock to the thousands who had come to love and respect him.

Joseph McGee was born in the parish of Monzievaird and Strowan, Perthshire, on 13th December, 1904. After primary school he went to Blairs College for his secondary schooling. Among his contemporaries—though a little younger—was a Michael Foylan, also a student for the diocese of Dunkeld. Their families were close neighbours, and the boys had practically grown up together. Little did they then think that they would both be called to high office in the Church, Joseph to be Bishop of Galloway, Michael to be Bishop of Aberdeen.

In the autumn of 1923 Joseph McGee was sent to the Scots College in Valladolid, Spain to pursue his philosophy. This venerable College, so rich in tradition, so justly proud of its superb contribution to the Church in Scotland, became one of the great loves in the life of the young priest, and for the rest of his life a return to Spain on business or on holiday was an event he cherished. His student years in Spain were Spartan ones; Monsignor Humble was not one to pamper his charges. The present writer has often heard Bishop McGee discuss his own college days with the venerable Monsignor McHardy, his Vicar General, and I was left with the impression that little had changed between 1893 and 1923. The rector who welcomed Joseph McGee and his classmates was not one who thought change desirable, or even possible. But it was, in its day, a splendid regime, and it produced remarkable priests, but it was not for the faint-hearted.

He was ordained priest in the cathedral at Valladolid on 25th May, 1929, and returned home to begin his priestly labours the following month.

He served for three years as assistant in the parish of St. Peter and Paul's, Dundee. Then sadly, for he loved parish work, he complied with the will of Bishop Toner, his Ordinary, and joined the staff of St. Mary's College, Blairs. Boys who studied in Blairs between 1931 and 1940 recall with pleasure and gratitude his carefully prepared classes, his gentle manner and his patience with the slowest among us. His English classes were a joy, and he nearly succeeded in making Greek enjoyable. Above all he was admired for the quiet and unobtrusive example of the priesthood he gave at all times. When he had to reprimand us, it was done in such a kindly way without an angry word, that the correction was all the more memorable and salutary.

After nine years on the Blairs staff, he returned to his diocese and to the parish he had loved in his curate days. He left St. Peter and Paul's in 1948 for the larger charge of St. Joseph's, Dundee where he remained till he was appointed Bishop of Galloway. For the last three years of his ministry in Dundee, he was Vicar General to Bishop Scanlan, a man he came to admire greatly and from whom he learned much about the administration of a diocese.

On the Feast of the Purification, 1952, Bishop William Mellon, Bishop of Galloway, died. Five months later, Monsignor McGee was informed that he had been chosen to succeed to the vacant bishopric, and was given the date when the appointment would be made public. It was a shock to this quiet retiring man to have to face the limelight for the rest of his days; at least he could have a few quiet days with his own thoughts, so he slipped over to Ireland, and would return after the appointment had been announced. The Irish papers carried the news, so the new bishop was surprised when an Irish priest, at whose home he called to arrange to say Mass, said to him. "Father McGee, eh? From Dundee, right? There's a Father McGee from Dundee just been appointed a Scottish bishop. Is it your brother, by any chance?". "No, Father, he's not my brother". And he left it at that!

The Feast of Saint Martin of Tours was chosen for the consecration of the new bishop. An old tradition tells that Ninian visited Martin in Tours as he returned to Scotland from Rome, and the old link was remembered. The principal consecrating bishop was Archbishop William Godfrey, the apostolic delegate to Great Britain who was assisted by Bishop Scanlan and Bishop Edward Douglas who had served on the Blairs staff with the new bishop.

He took over a diocese that had been greatly enlarged four years previously when ten Ayrshire parishes were absorbed by Galloway as a result of the creation of the new dioceses of Motherwell and Paisley. It soon became obvious that Dumfries, the cathedral town and the residence of the bishops since the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878, was too far removed from the main population of the diocese. So, realistically if reluctantly, Bishop McGee moved his residence to Ayr, while retaining St. Andrew's, Dumfries as his cathedral. But on the eve of the Ascension, 1961, a disastrous fire destroyed the noble cathedral and it was decided, after much heart-searching, that one of the Ayrshire churches would be designated as being nearer the new episcopal residence in Ayr. The church of the Good Shepherd, Ayr, built four years before, thus became the Cathedral of the Good Shepherd.

The episcopate of Joseph McGee was a rich one in development and in church-building. He established sixteen new parishes, and very closely supervised the planning and the style of every new church. Architects up and down the diocese soon came to respect his expertise and appreciated his informed interest in all they were called on to provide. In addition to the new parishes, hardly a church in the diocese did not enjoy careful and tasteful renovation.

When the Second Vatican Council was called, the bishop could not foresee just what an eventful, even revolutionary, experience it would prove to be.

While he was sorry to have to be away from his people for long periods, he nevertheless saw the coming council as a useful and interesting interchange of views at the highest level. That was how most people viewed the council as it opened in 1962. But as the council went on, we saw him warming to the very honesty of the debate. He saw what was developing as a tremendous challenge to the Church, a rich opportunity offered to all Catholics. Never a revolutionary, never a hothead, he welcomed the wider vision that had led Pope John to call the council, and encouraged his priests and people to see the Holy Spirit at work in the Church.

He proved to be a very balanced and wise President of the Liturgy and Church Music Commissions. Prior to that he had been chairman of the committee that produced the Saint Andrew Hymnal in 1962. It was, inevitably, published too soon to introduce us to the adventurous new styles and borrowings that are commonplace nowadays. However in its day it served a need in Scotland, and it only happened because Bishop McGee saw that need and took steps to supply it.

For about twenty years he was Ecclesiastical Adviser to the Guild of Catholic Nurses. This he took very seriously, and he found inspiration in the dedication of the nurses to their nursing work and to their Catholic faith. The medico-moral problems that beset Christian nurses in our days are most grave and worrying. Bishop McGee sought to keep abreast with the authentic teaching of the Church and to transmit it to guild members. The many books on medical problems that sat in his bookshelves bore testimony to the fact that his work as adviser to the nurses was more than an honorary title.

Then there was the constant, daily, routine work of the running of his diocese; most days uninteresting and ordinary, yet all totalling up to a rich and abundant dedication to God through work for the Church.

In May, 1979 he celebrated the Golden Jubilee of his priesthood, and the clergy and people packed the cathedral in Ayr to share his Jubilee Mass and to show their affection and respect.

With the approach of his seventy-fifth year, he began to think of retirement, and offered his resignation to the Holy Father; this was accepted on 4th April, 1981.

When his successor Bishop Maurice Taylor was appointed to succeed him he went to live in a delightful little house in Prestwick provided for him by the diocese. He was always available to the new bishop for advice and guidance while keeping discreetly in the background. The choice of his successor was to him a matter of great delight and he settled into a quiet and happy retirement that would allow him more time for prayer and reading.

He was extremely happy in his retirement and never happier than when the priests of the diocese called to see him. His mental capacities remained clear and unclouded, his health generally good. And while the suddenness of his death came as a shock to his host of friends, one can be grateful that he was spared a slow and incapacitating illness. He would have accepted it had it been God's will, but he would have hated being a burden to others. He would have had all the care in the world from Miss Dailly, who had been his devoted housekeeper for over thirty years; but it was not to be.

His Requiem Mass in his Cathedral of the Good Shepherd, was attended by the Scottish Hierarchy, more than a hundred priests, representatives of civic life, and a great crowd of laity from all over the diocese. Bishop Taylor preached a very moving homily, thanking God for the integrity, scholarship and the leadership of his illustrious predecessor. Cardinal Gray prefaced the Mass with a personal tribute.

He was buried in the public cemetery in Ayr.

When elected bishop he had chosen a simple yet telling motto for his coat-of-arms. "In Nomine Christi". All his life his one aim was to work for Christ, to make his master better known and better loved. He now enjoys in peace the reward promised to those who serve their master faithfully to the end. May his gentle soul rest in peace.

Rev. Patrick J. McGovern—18th March, 1983

As I put pen to paper, I see in my mind's eye a sadness, a sadness ever ready to make way for a smile, a smile which on occasion grows into wholesome laughter. Edward and Margaret McGovern had five sons and two daughters, the second eldest of these seven being Patrick Joseph, born at Gortgeesh, Kinawley, Co. Fermanagh, on 14th March, 1919. He attended Slieve Russell National School, where his aunt, Mrs. Parker, was a member of staff, as indeed his grandmother, Margaret McGauran, had also been.

A bright young lad, Patrick, at the age of twelve, had an early introduction to clerical surroundings, coming under the tutelage of his uncle, Very Rev. John Canon McGauran, Parish Priest of Corlough. A year and a half might seem a short time to older persons, but to a boy of tender years, asked to work hard, it is a long time: a time well spent however, with fruitful results. Under the wing of his uncle, who, for eight years had been president of Saint Patrick's College, Cavan, the youngster progressed so well that when he entered the College he was straightway placed in Second Year. "Patrick" loomed large in his life: having obtained his Leaving Certificate at Saint Patrick's, Cavan, he proceeded to Saint Patrick's, Carlow, in September, 1940, to wrestle with philosophy and theology. He always spoke kindly of the Colleges, where he had a good academic record and a reputation in athletic and sporting activities. With the others, the big lad experienced the challenges and problems, the joys and sorrows, of seminary life, and established friendships with fellow students, which in the event, would prove life-long.

Throughout Pat's life sadness was ever lurking in the wings, nay, centre stage, as when his mother died, aged 56, just three months prior to his ordination, on June 1st, 1947.

In October of that year he was called to serve in the Archdiocese of Glasgow. He started with a short stay (1947-1949) at Saint Aloysius, Springburn, followed by a posting, again for a short time (1949-1951) to a contiguous Parish, The Immaculate Heart of Mary, Balornock. He moved once more, again within this area to Saint Roch's, Garngad, but for a longer spell (1951-1957), which may be the reason that here he made a notable impact.

The writer got to know Pat when he came to Saint Peter's, Partick, in October, 1957, when again sadness in the wings moved to centre stage, as he had scarce unpacked his bags when his father died.

True to his clerical background he was at home, glad and happy, in the company of fellow priests; acting always with restraint and reticence, never posing as an intellectual, yet he was unable to conceal his scholarly accomplishments or his natural adequacy. These characteristics resulted in such equanimity that anyone would require to work hard to pick a quarrel with him.

As a minister he presented a priestly presence in the sanctuary, and in preaching, a persuasive power in the pulpit, where, perhaps, the very softness of his approach was the main element of his strength. His devotion and dedication to the confessional continued throughout his life, and was clearly underlined in his later difficult years when he was such a faithful confessor to the Carmelites in Kirkintilloch. He was not only a friend to priests, but confidant as well; to the laity, not only a minister, but also an understanding friend.

During the first of his stints as a parish priest, in Saint John of the Cross, Twechar (June 1973-1978), the news of the death of his great friend, Father Edward Budds, brought sadness once more to the forefront. After a couple of years in Twechar his health began to fail markedly: being alone, he became more and more pre-occupied about his ability to manage all the sacerdotal duties, especially the weekend services. He began to appear sick, and indeed the appearance gave way to the grim reality of a collapsed lung.

His courage and determination drove him on, and he recovered sufficiently to assume charge of Saint Aloysius', Springburn, (1978-1981). Again he was visibly moved by the death of a dear friend, Monsignor John Dennehy. Struggle as he might, his illness became acute, and he spent a considerable time in Bon Secours Hospital, where, finally realising that he would be unable to continue the work he had heretofore performed so well, and loved so much, he handed in his sick retirement notice.

Patrick loved his native Ireland, but was very attached to his adopted Scotland, and elected to remain here, living in his "lovely little house" in Bishopbriggs. All through his life he was almost fastidious about being presentable, and so appeared always neat and well-groomed, even during all his illnesses. Again his own severe and trying ill health was not his greatest sorrow; grief and sadness visited him once more when his much beloved young brother Kevin died. Sick and frail, almost broken by grief, he travelled to London to conduct the Requiem and the funeral. When he returned to his "lovely little house" there was little doubt that there would not be sufficient time for the healing of this final and greatest sadness of all.

His simple piety and deep devotion were the evidence of a firm and unshakeable Faith which grew stronger as, with failing lungs, his fragile body grew weaker. Was it a happy and holy augury that he died on 18th March, 1983, the day sandwiched between the feasts of two his most revered saints, after whom he was named, Patrick and Joseph. May he rest in the eternal peace of God.

Right Rev. Mgr. Joseph Gutauskas—10th April, 1983

The history of Lithuania has not been a happy one. A little country between two powerful neighbours, Russia to the east and Poland to the west, invasion and occupation was a regular occurrence and even in times of peace there was little prospect of prosperity and always the threat that times would get worse rather than better. This, of course, was before Russia took complete control and permitted no-one to leave.

As a result of the uncertainty and with so few opportunities, many Lithuanians, seeking peace and opportunities to improve their condition, emigrated to the west. This was at first a trickle, but with the beginning of this century opportunities of work became plentiful in many parts of the world, especially in the United States, England and Scotland and the trickle became a flood.

A great many of them came to Scotland and as was to be expected, settled down in the areas where workers were needed for the steel mills, the mines and shipyards. This brought most of them to the Lanarkshire area (Mossend, Motherwell, Bellshill, Coatbridge) and to Glasgow. Being strangers in a new land, many of them with little knowledge of English, they automatically kept as much as possible together, establishing in these areas Lithuanian communities. They were anxious to maintain their native tongue and customs. Their Catholic Faith was their greatest comfort and strength, especially the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. In church they felt at home, the Latin Mass was exactly the same as in Lithuania and they made contact with other Catholics. As time passed they felt the need for greater spiritual help and appealed for a Chaplain, a Lithuanian, who spoke their tongue and was aware of their national customs. Father Petrauskas responded to their appeal and for many years, until the early thirties, gave them faithful service and great consolation. As their numbers increased and Father Petrauskas grew old they sometimes wondered what they could do once he had died. They need not have worried. Divine providence was already preparing for them a priest who would exceed their greatest expectations.

On 1st November, 1896, in a little village near Vilnius Joseph Gutauskas was born. He was the first child of the family and was succeeded by three brothers and a sister. Even as a boy it was evident that he had many talents and as a youth he was exceptional for his linguistic ability, speaking both Russian and Polish. He now felt called to the priesthood and applied for entrance to the seminary at Vilnius and was accepted. During his training there, he became conversant with Latin and Greek as part of his studies but also acquired French, and though it was not in the curriculum he became acquainted with English. He was ordained priest in the Cathedral of Vilnius on 6th July, 1920. Although he was given experience of parochial work, he was also given a teaching post. By this time two of his brothers had emigrated, one to Venezuela where he completed his studies as a doctor, the other to Canada. On the death of Father Petrauskas, an appeal was made by the Scottish Lithuanian community to the Bishop in Lithuania for a young priest to take his place. Father Joseph Gutauskas was chosen and on 21st September, 1934, he arrived in Scotland to begin a career which would make him a legend with the Lithuanian community and to the priests in Scotland.

He took up residence in the Holy Family Presbytery in Mossend. This was in the centre of the area where the majority of Lithuanians lived and worked, with easy access to the industrial towns in Lanarkshire, and to Glasgow, where there was a growing Lithuanian community. He spent seven fruitful years there before being transferred to St. Columba's, Maryhill, in 1941. From there for the next forty years he continued to serve the whole Lithuanian communities in Scotland. These had now spread to Edinburgh and Dalkeith in the east and there were small groups in Ayrshire and as far north as Aberdeen. His routine was simple but varied. On the first Sunday of the month he celebrated Mass in St. Luke's, Glasgow, and spent the afternoon with the Glasgow community; on the second Sunday the same programme was used in Holy Family Church, Mossend. These were the two centres on which he concentrated his efforts. He made use of these occasions and of Christmas and Easter to keep alive the spirit of Lithuania and was prepared to give classes to revive their native tongue. He was also available, on call, to all Lithuanians in other parts of Scotland. This sometimes involved travelling as far as Aberdeen. He was also on call to those who were in hospital and needed his consolation either because of their difficulty with English or because of their longing to hear their native tongue. He was also busy as the Editor of the Lithuanian paper, the "Emigrant's Friend" which kept him in touch with communities in London and in the north of England. St. Columba's became a home for him. His ever cheery personality endeared him to the people and he never missed joining them on social occasions. Although his singing ability was not on a par with his other talents he was always prepared to give a Lithuanian song and adopted almost as his signature tune the air of Poor Old Joe. From that centre he also acquired a host of priest friends who even enticed him into learning to play golf which became his favourite pastime and in fact almost an obsession.

In recognition of his services to the Scottish Lithuanian Community, His Grace, Archbishop Campbell, in 1962 asked that he might be given the honour and title of Monsignore, an honour which he accepted with great joy. Eight years later in 1970 he celebrated the Golden Jubilee of his ordination with special Masses in St. Columba's and in Motherwell Cathedral. Bishop Antony Deksnys, the Lithuanian Bishop for Europe and Mgr. Ladislaus Tulaba, Rector of the Lithuanian College, both great friends, came from Rome to join him in these celebrations. Shortly afterwards he was given a Civic Reception in Glasgow City Chambers by the Lord Provost.

There was still more to come. Although he was now 74 years old he was still able to continue faithfully, thanks to the assistance of Miss Joan Sarafin who had always acted as his secretary and messenger and was now prepared to accept the increased burden caused by his advancing years. He was still the same cheery person and spoke quite often of making the century. In 1980 he had the joy of celebrating his Diamond Jubilee and as before this was celebrated in both St. Columba's and in Motherwell Cathedral. His two greatest friends from Rome were again with him and were joined by Bishop Francis Thomson of Motherwell. Despite the fact that he thoroughly enjoyed company and social gatherings and especially conversation he had an unusual reserve which prevented him from talking about himself so that many interesting details of his life were a closed book even to his most intimate friends; this explains the paucity of detail in this short tribute.

By 1981 his years were beginning to take their toll and there were many things he could no longer do. By the end of 1982 his memory had almost completely gone and because of his difficulty with English he reverted to his native Lithuanian tongue which caused many difficulties as his health deteriorated. He was admitted to Nazareth House, Cardonald, where he was tenderly cared for by the Sisters and had the company of two priest friends, Father Thomas Glen and Father James Quinn. There on Sunday, 10th April, 1983, he passed away peacefully, his pilgrimage was over.

During his time in Scotland he had guided the Lithuanian community through the years when such help was essential, not just in the early years but in the years after Russia had severed relations between Lithuania and the free world; this had broken ties with home, family, relations and friends and consolation was needed. He always answered their needs. Now that he has gone, he takes with him the prayers of all these people and of all the people who knew him. He was a legend in his life-time and no-one can replace him—he was unique.

The Requiem Mass for the repose of his soul was celebrated in St. Columba's and was a fitting testimonial to the esteem and love he had won. His Grace, the Archbishop of Glasgow was the principal Celebrant at the Mass assisted by Bishop Deksnys and Mgr. Tulaba from Rome and by a host of priests from all parts of Scotland and England. The choir was provided by the Lithuanian Choir and the congregation contained Lithuanians from all areas and they were joined by the people of St. Columba's who had known him for so many years. The Archbishop and Bishop Deksnys both paid tribute to the magnificent work he had done.

He was laid to rest in Dalbeth Cemetery where many of his priest friends already lay. Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord; may he rest in peace now that his labours are over.

Rev. Philip O'Reilly—18th April, 1983

Born in Virginia, Co. Cavan, on 17th October, 1915, died in St. Margaret's Hospice, Clydebank, 18th April, 1983. Sadly, for many people, there was little more to say about Philip O'Reilly. He was ordained priest in St. Patrick's College, Carlow on 8th June, 1941, after entering the Seminary from St. Patrick's College, Cavan, in September of 1935.

His first appointment in Scotland was to Our Holy Redeemer's in Clydebank—strange coincidence that he should almost literally spend the last five days of his life in the shadow of that fine church. Clydebank held for him nothing but happy memories, hard work, for it was then an extensive parish, and within it many beloved friends. His rich baritone voice and his emotive preaching style are still talked about, even by those who have never seen him since he left that parish in 1949.

He moved on to St. Anthony's in Govan where he continued his unassuming priestly office. While there, his dedication to Our Lady was allowed to manifest itself, not in any pointed way, but in his obvious belief that Mary, the Virgin, was his friend and confidante. Not only his parishioners, but also the many visitors to St. Anthony's weekly Novena were left in no doubt about his personal affection for the Mother of his God. Even today, 25 years later, those faithful Govanites will quickly recall his tearful and prayerful Novena sermons. His priestly ministry in Govan revolved around the celebration of the sacraments and pastoral visitations. In the homes of the sick and in the demanding wards of the Southern General Hospital he was a loved and much sought-after visitor, bringing with him a gentle calmness that remained with him until the end of his days.

In 1963 he was appointed to the parish of St. Alphonsus, and there he lived and worked until the end of his life. A new type of apostolate beckoned him in "The 'Barras' Church"; while there he spent many hours in the confessional where he was an enlightened and sympathetic counsellor for the many city dwellers and workers.

He was never a priest for meetings, nor a believer in bureaucracy; if he did have unkind thoughts or feelings towards colleagues or others they were never expressed; he was a treasured friend as was witnessed by those few who called on him from time to time. He recognised his own human failings and needs, and as a result was most tolerant of the eccentricities and assumed importance of others.

On many an occasion he was much maligned, unjustly so, but never sought retribution. His greatest disappointment, however, lay in the lack of support he had hoped for but never received from his superiors, and only a close confidant could have recognised the hurt that existed deep in his heart.

During his last years at St. Alphonsus' there was radiant evidence of his dependability; for confessions he was never late nor hurried; his Mass was punctual and prayerful; novena devotions, care of the sick, and meticulous dedication to his priestly office were of the utmost importance to him. While others chased extraneous tasks, he had time for his rosary; by his example he could jolt a colleague back to priorities.

The last few years of his life were wrecked with poor health; climbing stairs became an impossibility, his gait was slow and ponderous, but his speech, mind and wit were sharp as broken glass. His delight was obvious when a priest friend called on him, but he didn't have many visitors. A few years ago he got his first car—it was his one and only sign of material possessions and it was his great joy; without it he could never have strayed far from the fog and smog of Glasgow's Calton. As a priest his example will never be forgotten—could one ever hope to achieve more?

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Robert G. O'Kane—5th May, 1983

"Of priests we can offer a charmin' variety": so begins the well-loved ballad, "Father O'Flynn, and its author, A.P. Graves, might have had in mind such a personality as Father Bobby.

Robert G.—he was so insistent on the G. It recalled for him his first days in St. Columb's, Derry, where Father Joe "B." McCauley asked his first name and he replied, "Bobby O'Kane"—an answer which obviously did not please "J.B." and a further question elicited that his name was Robert G. From then on he was Robert G., although, affectionately, to one and all he was Bobby or Father Bobby. After that diversion here are the facts. Robert G. was born in Kilrea, Co. Derry, 1916. His early education was at the local school from which he graduated to St. Columb's where at once he became a great favourite with everyone. How proud he was on occasion to let us all know how talented he was with the violin and of his prowess as a speedy "right winger". After that he went on to St. Malachy's and from there, 1936, to St. Kieran's, Kilkenny. Again Bobby became a favourite with the students and was regularly found in the midst of a group of "boys" where hilarity was ever the resounding note. In 1942 he was ordained priest in St. Columb's College, Derry, by the late Bishop of Derry, Bishop Farren.

He arrived in Glasgow in '42 and his first permanent appointment was to St. Anne's where he spent seven years in a very fruitful and satisfying ministry. From there he went to St. Luke's where his "stay", although short, was happy under the guidance of Canon Gilmartin with whom he formed a firm friendship: even when the Canon retired it was a "must" for Bobby to call at Manorhamilton to exchange greetings with his former P.P. From St. Luke's he went off to St. Conval's and there he entered a "pioneering" effort in a newly established parish. In 1952 he arrived at St. Margaret's, Kinning Park, and was received rather coldly by Canon McCarthy, but that coldness was soon to develop into a friendship that knew no bounds. It was an education in St. Margaret's when at table one would meet the team, "McCarthy, Kelly, Rawlings and O'Kane"—how they could and would slate one another, yet their friendship was deep and lasting. His stay at Stanley Street was long and happy; and his devotion to duty was ever evident: his Sacred Heart meetings, for example, were so important that when they were due, Parkhead had to take second place. After fifteen years he got his first charge, St. Joseph's, Woodside. Here he had the problems of a large Church, Halls and House, faced with fewer and fewer people, yet he maintained his enthusiasm and concern to facilitate the changes for his congregation.

In 1972 he was transferred to the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Again his truly generous character was immediately evident as the former P.P., Canon Torley, was to be accommodated in the Presbytery. Bobby was magnanimous in his attitude to, and reverence for, the "old man"—many others would perhaps have been less happy. Until his death—also sudden—the Canon was referred to as "boss" in the Chapel House. What an unselfish attitude—one that would put many of us to shame. Father Bobby was very happy in Maryhill and so proud of his Church and people—a fact that was to be reciprocated in the wonderful "turn-out" at his funeral. On a similar occasion, the sudden death of another priest, the late Archbishop Scanlan prefaced his few words with—"Your presence says it all"—the priest beloved by his people. And yet, Father Bobby was no easy-oasy "gaffer"; again the words of the ballad come to mind: "you've your flock in the grandest control; checking the crazy ones, coaxing on aisy ones lifting the lazy ones on. . ."—one hesitates these days to add "with the stick". If things were not right he let it be known; if things were good he thanked and praised the people.

On 5th May, the Archbishop of Glasgow lost an outstanding, loyal, unassuming priest—all of us lost a real friend. On 9th May, His Grace, Archbishop Winning and one hundred and eighty priests said their farewell to Bobby with an overflowing congregation in the Immaculate Conception Church. He was laid to rest in his beloved Kilrea where Mgr. Gillespie and about thirty priests offered the Requiem Mass for Bobby's eternal rest on 10th May and now we feel he has heard the welcome words, "well done, good and faithful servant; come and possess the kingdom prepared for you". To his family, John, his brother, Theresa, his sister-in-law, Bobby and Declan, his nephews and his loyal and caring housekeeper, Bridget, we offer our sincerest sympathy.

God rest his soul.

Rev. Philip I. Boyce, D.D.—14th May, 1983

Father Philip Ignatius Boyce was born in Glasgow on 9th September, 1905. Both his parents were Irish by birth, his mother from County Tyrone, his father County Donegal. Donegal was to play a large part in his formation and figured largely in his life and conversation.

He attended school at St. Patrick's, Anderston, St. Mungo's Academy and Blairs College. From Blairs he went to St. Peter's, Bearsden, and then to Scots College, Rome, where he was ordained in 1931. As a student he is particularly remembered because of his mischievous intelligence and sense of humour. Some of his limericks are still quoted, some of his pranks still remembered, some of his waspish cartoons still chuckled over. Unfortunately towards the end of his period in Rome he exhibited signs of the delicacy of health and physique which was to stay with him for the rest of his life and prevent him from making the impact on Church life and the impression on people that his many talents and lovable personality would have allowed. His smallness also militated against him for he lived in the age when big men were fashionable and small men were expendable.

After ordination he served in the Immaculate Conception, Maryhill; St. Roch's; St. Martin's, Renton; St. Mary's, Hamilton; St. Columba's, Viewpark; Bellview Refuge; St. Catherine's, Harthill; St. Kevin's, Bargeddie; St. John's, Uddingston, from which he retired to St. Monica's, Coatbridge where he died on 14th May, 1983.

Such a catalogue of names and places give no picture of the personality of the man and the variety of his gifts. He was intelligent but, more importantly, wise. No one ever heard him say anything stupid. The great pity was that his wisdom was never to grace a larger canvas for his contribution to the development of Church thinking and practice would have been of great value. His learning he wore lightly. He never used it to be smart or score debating points but to illumine and develop conversation. He was widely read and could quote extensively from all branches of literature. His recall of poetry, the classics, was quite extraordinary; even a few months before he died he gave a brilliant critique of "Bleak House" which he had last read at Blairs. His natural inquisitiveness never allowed his intelligence to stagnate and when his failing eyesight made reading difficult he turned to the Open University and through it mastered the "New Maths" and Home Computers. His copy of the Radio Times was better thumbed than most priests' breviaries.

He was pious not in any sentimental way but deeply and strongly and orderly. His Mass, breviary, rosary, visits to the Blessed Sacrament were his daily land-marks never to be missed. Weekly Confession, Bible Study, Spiritual Reading—his life resembled a manual of recommended living for priests. Despite his age he took to the new devotional expression of prayer in the Charismatic Movement. At first he had viewed it with a certain amount of suspicion but on examination was quickly converted and became the movement's staunch advocate. The charismatic groups, for their part, found his knowledge of scripture a well for their use and development.

His piety made him detached from worldly goods. He never had much time or use for money or possessions. At first he even refused to take the Old Age Pension but was prevailed upon to accept it so that he could dispense it to charity. Every quarter, therefore, a string of cheques went out from him to different causes—Mother Teresa, The Talbot, Indian Missions, Converts' Aid Society must now be missing their regular gift made by courtesy of the National Insurance. At the end of his life all his worldly goods were easily gathered up into one suitcase.

People will remember him as a gentleman, in the old fashioned sense of the word, for this concept conveys much of his charm and personality. He was a gentleman in dress—always hat, coat and gloves: in language always courteous, quiet; in behaviour, always gentle and withdrawn. In these days of equality of the sexes he still put women on a pedestal and treated them with great courtesy and respect. He moved gently and unobtrusively through life but his influence was considerable and his friends' lives are emptier by his absence. It was fitting that the last 1½ years of his life should be so happy. In St. Monica's, released from responsibility, he relaxed and enjoyed the parish and people. He heard confessions every day, visited the homes and took great delight in his new freedom and peace.

He had harboured a malignancy since 1968. This illness he bore with great courage and fortitude and lived with it with great quietude and spirit. His deep knowledge of matters pertaining to health and medicine meant that he was under no delusion regarding his death sentence. When death eventually arrived he faced it with great happiness and tranquillity for he realised that true peace was now his.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Peter Foylan—18th May, 1983

Born in Glasgow in January 1915, Father Peter Foylan lived (by nature and by choice) in the shadow of his elder brother Bishop Michael Foylan. But the shadow was not such as to eclipse the man.

Educated at St. Dominic's, Crieff, then Blairs College, Scots College, Valladolid and finally at St. Sulpice, Issy, Father Peter was ordained for the diocese of Dunkeld on 8th June, 1939, by Bishop Toner, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee. His first appointment was to St. Patrick's, Edinburgh, for one year and returning to Dundee he was curate in St. Mary's, Forebank, for the next two years and then for a time, in 1942, to the cathedral before moving to Alloa for another year. In 1943 he was appointed curate in St. John's, Perth, where he remained until 1947, returning to the cathedral and then to St. Joseph's until 1951 when he was given charge of St. Fillan's, Crieff, his home parish, a post he held for nearly eleven years, until 1962. For the next nine years, Father Foylan served as parish priest in Our Lady of Good Counsel, Broughty Ferry, before being appointed to the new parish, as first parish priest, of St. Matthew's, Whitfield, where he laboured for five years in this large estate before being appointed parish priest of St. Thomas's, Arbroath in 1976, the parish in which, after nearly seven years of devoted service, he died, on 18th May, 1983.

All were deeply saddened at his passing yet none was surprised that he should have met death alone and in the solitude of his own house for that was how he had lived the greater part of his priestly life. While a most friendly and hospitable man, Father Peter chose to live as a priest without the social company of his fellow priests. He was completely dedicated to his priestly ministry and to the care of his flock through his constant and conscientious visiting, so much so that no merely social gathering could take him away from his parish. He had an ardent love of the Church and the Pope—almost to the point of bigotry in its better sense—and would never neglect any meeting or any directive which would further the cause of the Faith in Scotland. He would talk with visiting clergy long and earnestly about the evils besetting the Church in modern times and all possible means of combating them. In public, he practised an unflinching, if extraordinary and vehement, method of preaching the Gospel. He was not always serious, however, but could enjoy a good joke and had a real sense of humour. His relaxation was either to run around the nearest training-ground or to listen at home to his favourite music for he had a huge and wide library of records. His attention to the fabric of churches and presbyteries under his care was noteworthy and in executing repairs, improvements or, after Vatican II, alterations, he possessed a remarkable gift of by-passing red-tape to see the work completed!

It is ironical that a man so obsessed with physical fitness should be afflicted with serious trouble in his feet and legs so that he could not walk the length even of the church, in St. Thomas's, without acute pain. This did not deter him from the responsibility of caring for his people, whom he looked after faithfully to the end. His great devotion to the Blessed Sacrament showed itself in the way he beautified the sanctuary of St. Thomas's and his devotion to the real presence marked by his long hours of prayer before the tabernacle.

Peter Foylan was a man of God who shunned all show and all clerical honours, who must surely by now have heard the welcoming words of his master: "Well done, Peter". May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Michael Provost Connolly—22nd May, 1983

"He hid his light under a bushel." These words were used by Archbishop Winning at Canon Connolly's installation as Provost of the Cathedral Chapter, and repeated at his funeral. He was right. Michael Connolly was a man of high intelligence. He was full of ideas, indeed bubbling over with them. His expression of them however, due to a peculiarly attractive personal mannerism, including a searching stumbling for words, did him less than justice. His ideas often outpaced his utterance; his concepts outraced his speech.

He obtained the degrees of Doctor of Philosophy (1932) and Doctor of Theology (1949) at the Gregorian University in Rome. It may come as a surprise to many that during the period from 1929 to 1967—a good span of well nigh forty years—his overall examination marks at the Gregorian, over the whole of his course, were extraordinarily high; indeed they were surpassed by no other Scozzese during the period in question.

Michael always had his priorities right. Despite, or rather because of, his academic distinctions, what mattered most in his priestly life, a deep faith, a rare humility, a simple piety, the homely virtues, devotion to the Mass and Blessed Sacrament and to Our Lady of the Rosary; these animated his heart and soul, and permeated the activities of his apostolate. The circumstances and events of each unrepeatable day, joy or trial, he turned into opportunities for his own sanctification, and that of others, whether in Colleges or parishes, committed to his care. It would seem that he succeeded, almost equally well, in concealing a high measure of personal holiness, as he hid his learning.

Good as he was at soft-pedalling his sanctity and knowledge, his charming ways, magnetic personality and witticisms, these he could not, and did not, suppress.

One of his endearing features, especially in clerical gatherings was his facility to join, with abandon, in telling jokes and amusing stories. These were often against himself to the immense enjoyment of his company. With a twinkling glint in his smiling eyes, he would begin to tell a joke, and then completely forget how it finished. Uproarious laughter invariably followed. In this atmosphere, he was frequently the target of taunting and teasing, which he always took in good part. The scene of one true story he used to tell his friends, against himself of course, the end of which he did remember, was the "cricket turf in the playing fields" of Blairs. It was a lovely June day in 1927. Michael, tall for his age, a handsome strapping young fellow, splendidly attired in newly laundered white flannels, with pads to boot, came to the wicket to bat. Placing it, with exquisite precision, on the umpire's instructions, before the middle stump, he was all set to meet the first ball. He made a good stroke, but an agile fielder at silly mid-on, who still gleefully recalls the incident, made a brilliant catch. Michael was out for a duck. With all the grace he could muster, back he walked to the "mythical pavilion". How typical of him to tell the tale!

Not a few of Canon Connolly's contemporaries were mistaken in their belief that Clydebank was his native place. In fact, he was born in Wishaw, Lanarkshire (30/1/1912). He attended St. Athanasius' Primary School, Carluke from 1914 until 1921, when his family moved to Clydebank. There he was a pupil of Our Holy Redeemer's School until 1926. Now at fourteen years of age, the first seedlings of his vocation to the priesthood began to grow. The "glorious" 12th of August, 1926, saw him enrolled at Blairs College, whose spartan discipline, for three years, he readily accepted. The apparent ease of his well-above average performance in his studies there, was ample evidence of an intellectual ability that later was to blossom so successfully in Rome.

The old Scots College in the Via Quattro Fontane, which he entered in 1929, was with interruptions to be his home for twenty-two years. Every college has its own charisma "Alma Mater". What a heart-enchaining feeling in the phrase!! But any Roman student, past or present, will readily testify that education, in its widest sense, develops and flowers in this strange merging of pagan and Christian culture. That indefinable, all pervading, yet elusive thing called "Romanità" soon made Michael its willing prisoner. He imbibed it. He savoured it. To the end of his days, he loved it.

His years of study, comparatively easy to his active mind, glided swiftly by; about the middle of his course, however, he lost a year through ill-health and joined "a class beneath him". Student life, of its nature humdrum and routine, was never boring to him. The attractions of the Eternal City, the varied interests in the college itself, the daily trek to the Greg. where he rubbed shoulders with men of many nations, the long pleasant summer vacations at the lovely villa in Marino, this milieu enfolded his mind, and held him in its fascination, which grew even stronger with the passage of time.

Michael Connolly was ordained by Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggianni in the Basilica of St. John Lateran on December 19th, 1936. It is a sobering thought to recall now, that the ceremony began at 6 a.m. As many hundreds of candidates to the priesthood received orders, major or minor, it did not end until about noon. The Canon Law of the Eucharistic fast, in all its rigorous severity, was sacrosanct. Not a bite or a sup until 1 p.m. O Tempora! O Mores!

Not unexpectedly, he was appointed "Ripetitore" to the Scots College students, a position he held until October, 1939.

The scene changes. Back to Scotland he comes, as a curate, for two years, in St. Mary's, Saltcoats, to get his first taste of pastoral work. First parishes, after ordination, are best loved and best remembered. This was especially true in Michael's case; he would often speak, and at length, of his days in St. Mary's as his happiest days, giving the impression that his stay there was a long one. On the move again, he becomes a member of the staff at Blairs College, teaching classics for five years—"a man o' many pairs". The war was on. It was a time of austerity and food rationing; yet he was always carefree and content. His wit and humour did not desert him. He was the most popular member of a happy staff. But Rome would not let him be. In 1946, the tedious but rewarding task of "Ripetitore" was to be "repeated": another stint, again of five years duration.

Now a mature man of thirty-four years, ideally equipped for further advance in sacred science, he begins to study for his Doctorate of Divinity. The thesis he chose was Newman's Philosophy of Religion and his approach to the problem of faith and reason, so subtly and scholarly delineated in the "Grammar of Assent". It is in this monumental work that Newman draws his famous distinction between "real and notional" apprehension and assent, in the pursuit of secular and religious truth. For four years, bending his mind with unwearied zeal and vigour to his arduous task, Michael immersed himself in this abstruse and recondite subject. Newman himself confesses that this "composition" (i.e. Grammar of Assent) was "peculiarly difficult". Difficult or not Michael succeeded in getting his doctorate—"magna cum laude".

Now he has left Rome for good. While curate in St. Joseph's, North Woodside Road (1951 to 1956), Administrator and Parish Priest of St. Joseph's, Helensburgh (1956 to 1958) and Parish Priest of St. Ninian's, Knightswood (1958 to 1963), where he opened the present fine church, he held an uniquely high number of Archdiocesan offices, which were, numerically, quite staggering. With his specialist background, his superiors were quick to utilise, for the benefit of the Archdiocese, his well-trained and sharpened mind. In addition to his normal parochial duties, he somehow found time to engage in a "litany" of posts, which impinged on the practical field of moral and dogmatic theology. Nor were these appointments mere sinecures; on the contrary, the faith itself in all its doctrinal purity, was at stake. As extra-mural examiner for St. Peter's College, Cardross, and for the junior clergy, his it was to ensure that the gospel, in all its integrity, would be presented to the faithful. He taught medical ethics to the Pharmaceutical Guild of Glasgow and the West of Scotland. He was Chaplain to the Newman Association—how appropriate! Member (Notary, Vice-Officialis) of the Glasgow Diocesan Tribunal; the National Commission of Doctrine; the Archdiocesan Ecumenical Discussion Group; representative of the Archdiocese on the Scottish Institute of Missionary Studies, as well as "Censor Librorum". All these highly sensitive and vital areas, involving sound doctrine and its proper development were, along with other "periti", allotted to him, by the Archdiocesan Authorities.

In 1963 Michael Connolly was made Rector of St. Peter's College, Cardross, and Canon of the Cathedral Chapter. Unfortunately for him, from the very outset, his appointment as Rector was not without controversy, which was altogether outside his control. Hitherto, his priestly life, though busy, was comparatively serene, and continued to be so in the early years, despite this new responsibility imposed on him by the Bishops of the Province. One immediate matter however, and a source of anxiety, financial and otherwise, was the supervision of the building of the new College, a task which he inherited, and remained with him. In his latter years at Cardross, a period of transition in the wake of Vatican II set in, and created new problems. Entrenched as he was, in the "Ancien Régime", with an old-style approach to training candidates for the priesthood, did he fully recognise the influence of the winds of change? Moulded in the traditional way, was he readily amenable to the new thinking? Were the sudden implications of "aggiornamento" properly accepted and understood in theological Colleges at that time? At local level then was a conflict of views surprising? Crisis point has come. In 1972, Canon Connolly, Rector of the College was relieved of his post. His departure caused quite a stir in the diocese, and beyond. In the light of hindsight, the College staff and students of those days, are, perhaps, best fitted to give an impartial assessment of the situation.

The evidence of his personal ordeal, and of the scars it left, did not go unnoticed. A tinge of melancholy, alien to his buoyant nature, now became apparent to his contemporaries and friends. Michael was the least vindictive of men. Despite the trauma through which he passed, he was never bitter or resentful; as was his wont through life, no unkind word passed his lips. Indeed he was heroically charitable. The unwitting victim of the hour, did his achievements fall short of early promise? Was the man brimful of talents and rich in academic distinctions ever fully appreciated?

His next appointment, which proved to be his last, was that of parish priest of St. Stephen's, Dalmuir. The friendly people of St. Stephen's, and of St. Mary's Deanery, of which he was Dean, whose loyalty to their priests is outstanding, soon restored his old resilience. With enthusiastic zeal, he threw himself into his parish work, in which, at once, he felt at home and happy. As a man, they loved him; as a fine churchman, they respected him; as a pastor, they revered him. In the Clydebank area, about this time, the spectre of unemployment raised its ugly head. Singer's, on whom many of his parishioners depended for their livelihood, shut its gates; the dole queues lengthened. Appeals for support from the local community were never made in vain; the material, as well as the spiritual welfare of all, was the unfailing concern of St. Stephen's parish priest. (Conveniently situated is "Connolly's Bar" in which a weary hour can be whiled away.) After some eight years, he was installed as provost of the Chapter of Canons of the Archdiocese of Glasgow. This honour, confirmed in recognition of long and devoted service to the Church, was a source of pride and joy at parish and deanery level.

But joy was tempered when it became known that his health was declining; from now on he required almost constant medical attention, and was forced, against his will, to curtail many of his usual duties. Though his illness was now serious, he kept up to the end, what to him was never a facade: witticisms at his infirmities, and belittling of his life of prayer. To one who visited him a week before he died, he said: "except for the old heart and the loss of an eye, I am not too bad"; and, in a rare moment of confidence: "I can't 'do' much now, but, I thank God that I have less distractions and more time for my own devotions". Selfless to the last, he added "my curates are wonderful, they do everything for me. I am sorry to be such a bother to them".

The end came suddenly. Canon Connolly died on Pentecost Sunday, May 22nd, 1983. His two devoted assistants and his parishioners were grief-stricken. Archbishop Winning was the Chief Concelebrant at Pontifical Requiem Mass in St. Stephen's Church. Concelebrating with him were the Canon's brother, Father Kieran, his nephew, Father McNamara, Bishop Renfrew, Bishop Devine, Bishop Thomson, Bishop McGill and many hundreds of priests, in a full church. During his homily, at an impressive and edifying ceremony, Archbishop Winning paid a glowing tribute to him, whose immediate family, including Doctor Dan of the Mayo Clinic in New York, expressed appreciation at the warmth of His Grace's sympathy to them. He welcomed the Provost of Clydebank, Mr. James McKendrick, and his wife, as well as representatives of other Churches in the District.

Deeply mourned by all who knew and loved him Michael Connolly lies buried in a new priests' plot in the cemetery in Dalnottar, on the hill above his home. A gifted man, but a humble man, he "hid his light", but he hid it in "the hidden God, the saviour". In his diligent search for God, through a labyrinth of speculation and inquiry, he realised, more than most, in the words of his great mentor Cardinal Newman, the modern Augustine, that "the path of thought leading us to find Him is rugged and circuitous above other investigations".

His quest is over. He hears no more the busy beat of time. Our prayer is that he has found Him, whom he sought and loved, that he is among those "who see the Lord face to face, and need not lamplight or sunlight, because the Lord God will be shining on them".

May this Light Divine illumine him in all its timeless radiance.

Rev. Patrick Joseph McNamara—8th June, 1983

The years in a Trappist monastery, terminated only by poor health, did not a little to prepare Father Patrick McNamara for his wonderful life as a parish priest in the Diocese of Dunkeld. Born in County Clare in 1916, Father Patrick McNamara was educated at the local primary and secondary schools until in 1932 he entered the Cistercian Abbey of Mount Melleray where he was accepted as a novice. Ordained to the priesthood as a Cistercian in 1940, Father McNamara was appointed to teach theology in the Abbey, an appointment he held until 1948 when he was given the post of Guest Master in the Abbey. He continued as Guest Master until 1951 but the effects on his health of a heart attack made themselves felt and the next two years were spent recuperating in the quiet and peace of the Abbey. Meanwhile, it was clear that the life of a Cistercian monk could no longer be his as his health called for a different way of life. After much reflection and prayer, Father McNamara sought permission to apply for acceptance to do diocesan work: he applied to Bishop Scanlan who accepted him for work in the Diocese of Dunkeld, in 1953.

After years of silence, he still managed to adapt himself readily to public life and parish activities. He was appointed curate in the Cathedral, Dundee, for eleven years, until 1964. He will always be remembered for his classes for non-Catholics in the Cathedral where, by his erudite lectures on the Faith, he made numerous converts and caused no little stir when he received a leading member of the Church of Scotland into the Church!

He enjoyed life in the Cathedral parish, then a thriving parish before the demolition squads moved in! His immaculate figure was well known by all in the slums of the old Overgate, Hawkhill, Thorter Row and Long Wynd, to mention but a few. He led the U.C.M., the Legion of Mary, the S.V.D.P., and the youth, in the '50s, and '60s. He was a tireless and fearless seeker-out of the lapsed and careless of his flock and his persistence brought many strays back.

He was undaunted when, although unable to drive a car because of an eye defect, he was appointed to take charge as parish priest of Blairgowrie in 1964, an area covering 400 square miles! While there, he negotiated the sale of a cinema in Coupar Angus and converted it into a beautiful chapel-of-ease served from Blairgowrie. Five years later, he was transferred to take charge of the parish of St. James's, Kinross, a growing parish, where he worked for two and a half years before his health again forced him to seek rest. For the next year he went to live with his brother in Australia. On his return in 1972, Bishop Hart appointed him to be parish priest of St. Anne's, Carnoustie, where he served for the next four years, until his retirement through ill-health, in 1976. Despite his ill-health, Father 'Mac' was always active and showed a keen interest in all that concerned both the priests and the parishes of the diocese. Even in retirement, he would come over to help fellow-priests and the bishop if required. Staying in the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Dublin 'Mac' acted as envoy for them when once more he set out for Australia and warmer climes, visiting many of their houses in Australia. It was on one of these visits that he passed quietly away in their company, on 8th June, 1983. May he rest in peace.

Rev. John Fox—17th June, 1983

John Fox, one of a family of four, was born on 14th April, 1925, in the parish of St. Mary's, Star of the Sea, Leith. His parents were sturdy and devout "Leith folk", who, like John, received their early and ongoing Christian formation under the influence of the Oblate Fathers and the Holy Family Sisters who have served the Catholics of the Port for over a hundred and thirty years.

John attended St. Mary's Parish School, then moved up the hill to St. Anthony's for his senior education. He was one of six priests who since the war attended this Junior Secondary School and later went on to the priesthood. On leaving school he worked for four years with a bacon-curing company, then at the age of eighteen was called-up and served for two years in the Royal Navy. On returning to civilian life he entered the building trade, training as a bricklayer, a trade he practised for the next six years. In later years this was to be put to good use around the Osterley and Drygrange estates.

At the age of 26 John, decided to offer himself for the priesthood in the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. He embarked on two years of studies at Campion House, Osterley. These two years of steady application to studies and community life successfully completed, he entered St. Andrew's College, Drygrange in September of 1954. As a late vocation he demonstrated a maturity in his approach to prayer, study and community living, being as much at home in himself as with others. He was ordained in St. Mary's Cathedral on the 3rd April, 1960 and on completion of his course in June of that year was appointed temporarily to St. Patrick's in the Cowgate. Two months later he was appointed to St. Margaret's, Dunfermline, where he served for the next six years. John, by nature no initiator, warmed to the traditional priestly apostolate of home visitation, particularly the elderly and housebound, and was assiduous in his chaplaincy work in the local General Hospital. He was always happy in the company of his fellow priests, West Fife having a long tradition of clerical contact and get-togethers.

In September of 1966 he was appointed to St. Ninian's, Restalrig, where he was to serve for the next ten years. The early 'seventies were years of change, and for some, confusion. John with his basic common sense was able to adapt to changes in liturgy and attitudes with a certain calmness which helped greatly in the parish's acceptance and putting into practice of the various renewals in the sacramental life of the Church. His apostolate in St. Ninian's was again that of home visitation and hospital chaplaincy. He was never happier than when in the company of groups of senior citizens, playing cards and singing.

In this simple apostolate many an old person rediscovered the sense of belonging to the parish and many a lapsed Catholic returned to the sacraments. He had a natural way with young children and communicated easily with teenagers and young adults. He was sympathetic to and supportive of other priests more heavily involved in this particularly difficult area of priestly apostolate. John had a great capacity for friendship and putting people at their ease. Many individuals and families benefited from his natural ability to project calmness into situations. His preaching was simple and direct and full of that common sense which was the hallmark of his priestly apostolate.

In September of 1976, John was appointed to St. Mary's, Stirling where he served as assistant for three years. During this period the Catholic Men's Society and the Corntonvale Prison were added to the normal parish apostolate to which he had been so accustomed.

In April, 1979, he was appointed parish priest of St. Joseph's, Burntisland. His surprise and joy at being appointed to this particular parish was evident. This surprise was typical of the diffidence and humility that was so much part of his character. John shunned the limelight, but the parishioners of those parishes in which he ministered remember him with affection as a quiet and kindly pastor, and the priests who shared in his work remember him as a brother priest, companionable, hospitable and supportive. A shy and retiring nature, which made him seek always to avoid the limelight, hid a keen mind, a sympathetic understanding of people's problems and a capacity for spending himself in his run-of-the mill priestly duties.

Tragedy struck on 15th June, 1983. In a car accident John sustained serious injuries from which he died on 17th June. His remains were received into St. Joseph's, Burntisland, on the evening of Wednesday 22nd, the parish grieving the loss of a pastor they had come to love and esteem over the previous three years. On Thursday, 23rd June, John returned to St. Mary's, Leith, where at his funeral Mass the packed congregation included representatives from the parishes in which he ministered and the clergy from the other denominations in Burntisland who joined his family and many friends, clerical and lay to pray for their pastor, brother and friend who had so suddenly been taken from among them. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Patrick Joseph Canon Sheary—1st July, 1983

The dates and places of a priest's curriculum vitae convey little of the reality of a man's life and character. A better picture could be painted if the persons he ministered to could tell their tales of his work among them.

Patrick Joseph Sheary was one of those larger than life individuals. Large is the epithet that describes him best. He was well over six feet tall, tipping the scales for a time at twenty-two stones with a voice to match his stature and a big and generous heart.

He was born in Ballyphilip, Nenagh, County Tipperary. Of the eight boys in the family three became priests: Jack served in Buffalo, New York State, Joseph in Glasgow and then in Paisley Diocese and Patrick in Glasgow. This tells us of a family well endowed with the Catholic Faith. In the next generation four grandsons were to serve the Church as priests. Patrick always spoke with pride of his parents, particularly of his mother who said her priest-sons were the first in her prayers in the morning and the last at night.

His early education was at the Christian Brothers' School in Nenagh. He began his study of Philosophy at Mount Melleray but soon transferred to St. Peter's College, Wexford, where he completed his studies and was ordained by Bishop William Codd for the Archdiocese of Glasgow on 9th June, 1935.

His first appointment, on 9th August, 1935, was to St. Stephen's, Dalmuir, where the parish priest was Father John Brotherhood who worked morning, noon and night visiting his parish but he never thought of giving his new curate a district book. Patrick bought a notebook and starting with one Catholic family found his way to another until he filled his book with names and addresses and details. That set the pattern for the rest of his life. When Father Brotherhood died in 1936, Father Henry Corr, another relentless visitor and careful administrator, was appointed as parish priest. No doubt his young curate learned much from him. These were the days of the Depression with much unemployment. Then came the War and in March 1941 the shattering and nerve-racking experience of the Clydebank blitz. The priests of St. Stephen's were fortunate to escape with their lives when the church and presbytery were destroyed by a bomb. On radio and television, Patrick was to recall his experience and the sufferings of the people on the fortieth anniversary of the event. He used to laugh heartily when he recalled that one worthy said of him that he would have been a great priest if he had not been blitzed.

He was transferred to Holy Cross, Croy. Firstly his interest was with the evacuees who like himself had escaped from the bombing but soon he became involved in the affairs of that parish. He often described his time there as the happiest days of his priestly ministry. Again he was an indefatigable visitor knowing everyone. He was particularly interested in the Men's and Boys' Societies and sought to promote the Pioneer Total Abstinence Association. It was a mining village but he urged the young men to seek other trades. His love for music found scope in Croy. He formed a Concert Party which could stand with the best in the land and served as a matrimonial agency with some of the duettists being paired for life. Many changes took place in that area before he left: the Mass came to Cumbernauld and the parish of St. John of the Cross was established in Twechar.

In July 1948 he was transferred to the city parish of St. Mary in Abercromby St. What a change from the quiet country to the busy city with noisy tramcars disturbing the night! As was his habit he came to know the people by thorough and frequent visitation. Mgr. Michael Ward was his parish priest for most of his time here. He had great admiration for the Monsignor and often sought his advice in later years. It was Mgr. Ward who told him not to expect every priest to work at the pace that Patrick set for himself. His interest in music showed itself here in the training of St. Mary's Boys' Choir.

On 3rd November, 1955, he was sent to Toryglen to establish and build up a parish named after St. Brigid, the Mary of the Gael. Archbishop Campbell promised Brigid this dedication if she would find him a suitable site for a church. How happy Patrick was to have charge of this new parish named after the Patroness of his native land. His dwelling at the start was a council house in which for the first two years on weekdays he offered Mass and had all the Devotional Exercises for Lent, May and October; people were installed all over the house.

Targets were set—two years for the building of the church and ten years for its consecration. The early years were filled with intense fundraising. Garden Fêtes were quite an occasion with Father Pat in the midst urging people to buy. When he celebrated the Silver Jubilee of his Priesthood in 1960 in their tribute the people mentioned his "tireless devotion to sacred duties" and his "constant and unwearied visitation".

A priest who knew him well once remarked that the text for his panegyric would be "zelus domus tuae comedit me" (The zeal of your house has eaten me up). A headteacher who also knew him well put it more colloquially "This man will get you into Heaven even if he has to push you in."

He met his targets, opening the Church of St. Brigid on 3rd November, two years to the very day from the beginning of the parish and it was consecrated by Archbishop Scanlan on 18th March, 1965. (It was the Archbishop's first consecration of a church in Glasgow.) For the Consecration the Church was decorated with paintings on the ceiling and stained glass windows were specially designed and the sanctuary redesigned for the new liturgy.

One of his ambitions had been to establish a convent in the parish, even to the extent of building it in the grounds of the church. He was refused permission. He directed the Little Sister of the Assumption to Ferguslie when his brother Joseph was made parish priest of St. Fergus', These Sisters used to call him their "Father Founder". He was very generous in his benefactions to several communities. If he found a cause worthwhile he did not stint in his contribution to it.

St. Roch's, Garngad, became vacant in 1965. He was sounded on his willingness to go there leaving his beloved St. Brigid's. He asked time to consider it and consulting with a visiting Missioner was advised that if it were the Archbishop's wish then that could be for him an indication of the Will of God. He indicated his readiness to accept and received the appointment in March 1966. When the letter arrived he was laid up with a thrombosis in the leg and asked for a postponement. The two Vicars-General, Bishop Ward and Mgr. Ward, came to visit him and decided instead to cancel the appointment and leave him in St. Brigid's.

In August of 1966 he went to Majorca for his summer vacation and was struck down by a coronary thrombosis. It was feared he might die and his brothers Father Joseph and Michael went out to be at his side. When he rallied and recovered sufficiently Father Joe brought him back home to Toryglen. After that he was continually plagued by illness. Hardest for him to accept was the fact that he could no longer work at the same pace. Yet his slower pace would have shamed many a younger and healthier man. He still visited regularly and liked to take public services. To put him in the pulpit was to revive him.

On 30th October, 1969, a call came to the presbytery that a priest was injured in a car crash on the road near St. Brigid's Church. Patrick was quickly on the scene but the ambulance had removed the priest. With the local doctor Patrick went in pursuit of the ambulance catching it eventually at the City Mortuary. What a terrible blow it was to discover that it was his younger brother Father Joseph who had been killed in the crash. Joseph had been a support to him in his time of illness and that day had been coming to arrange to take him away for a holiday.

Another blow was the untimely death of one of his nephews, Father John Joseph Sheary on 29th January, 1979. He had been a regular visitor and a great help to him.

He kept going and seemed to find renewed strength surviving several bouts of illness. In a letter to his College Magazine "Petrus" published after his death he appealed "Maybe we could get more from that old Alma Mater. We (i.e. the Wexford Men) have done Trojan work here and now at almost seventy-two with five heart attacks I am working harder than I ever had to in the past." In the same letter he asked for some commentaries in the magazine on Modern Theology and the New Canon Law to help busy priests to keep abreast of developments. It should be mentioned that he had a loyalty to his Alma Mater and was chairman of the First Reunion of the Priests of Great Britain from St. Peter's Wexford on 10th May 1955 in Troon.

Truly he had been busy in recent years, celebrating in 1980 the Silver Jubilee of the establishment of St. Brigid's parish. In the panegyric Bishop Renfrew reminded us of how in his expressing thanks at the end of the Jubilee Mass Father Sheary outlasted the Archbishop by three minutes.

He was installed as a canon of the Cathedral Chapter in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 18th January, 1981. He accepted the honour only after consultation with an old friend who insisted that it was as much an honour to the parish as to him personally.

1983 was to be a highlight in the history of his parish with an Ordination to the Priesthood in the church; not the first in the parish but the first in the church. How proud he was. He had the church freshly painted and personally prepared the choir for the event. However God's ways are mysterious because he died suddenly on 1st July and his Requiem was on the morning of 5th July with the Ordination in the evening. The preparations had all been for his funeral. Bishop Renfrew who was to be the ordaining Prelate in the evening presided at the Requiem Mass and preached the panegyric. In it he remarked that the Canon would go down in history as the priest who found for himself the quickest replacement. Bishop Devine was the chief celebrant in the absence of Archbishop Winning who before departing for business in Rome had celebrated Mass for the Canon on the evening of his death. On the day of the Requiem Mass the church was packed with mourners among whom were nieces and nephews from Ireland (His one surviving brother was unable to travel). There were mourners from places where he had ministered. The grounds of the church and the streets outside were thronging with many who wanted to bid farewell to this good shepherd who could say truly "I know my own and my own know me." He was buried in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead beside his brother Father Joseph.

His last act in the parish had been to conduct a Holy Hour on the eve of the First Friday; a very prayerful and touching event as those present will testify. May he see Christ as he really is and be bidden now his busy life is over to rest in peace and joy eternally. Amen.

Very Rev. John Canon Gillies—13th August, 1983

In his homily at the funeral of Canon Gillies, the Right Rev. Colin MacPherson, Bishop of Argyll and the Isles, thus described him: "We remember Canon Iain as a man who was always courteous, genial, cheerful, enthusiastic to promote the good of all around him. He cared for and savoured the language, literature and music of his people. He was generous, hospitable, sympathetic and understanding. We remember him as a priest—the solicitous shepherd of all in his care; wholehearted in the service of God and God's children, caring for the young and for the elderly; ever smiling, with a word of encouragement and support."

Iain Gillies was born in the hamlet of Bracara in Morar on 8th May, 1923. He attended school in Morar and Fort William, and entered Blairs College in 1937. He studied philosophy at Blairs, and theology in St. Peter's College in Bearsden, Mill Hill, and Cardross. He was ordained as a priest of the Archdiocese of Glasgow by the Most Rev. Donald A. Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 22nd May, 1948. His first appointment was as assistant in Castlebay, Barra, and shortly thereafter he was incardinated into his native diocese of Argyll and the Isles. In 1952 he was appointed parish priest of the remote and scattered parish of Knoydart, serving also the Catholics of the islands of Eigg and Skye. For the first two years he lived at Spean Bridge, while the new house was being built for the priest in Inverie. This meant a great deal of travelling, and he and his motor cycle became well known throughout Lochaber and the Rough Bounds. His second appointment as parish priest was to St. Mary's in Arisaig where he remained for the rest of his life.

He was involved in every aspect of public life, but his great priority was the building up of the Church both in the spiritual and the physical sense. He developed his natural talent for handcraft to a high degree. His spare time in Knoydart was spent in renovating the church himself, and it is a lasting reminder of his solitary toil. From that he went on to designing and making altars and other church furniture for churches all over the diocese; he turned his mind and time to the study of planning buildings, and oversaw the reconstruction of several churches and church houses—Fort William, Glencoe, Eochdar and Daliburgh, among others. He worked long hours on the restoration of the picturesque little church at Polish in the Braes of Arisaig which was built in the last century to serve the people of the peninsula of Ardnish, now, alas, depopulated. When the new road has been constructed, this chapel will be a popular place of prayer for travellers. Canon Gillies also planned the conversion of the old Court House in Brodick into the first Catholic church in Arran for centuries.

Father Iain was assiduous in his work for the betterment of social conditions in the area, and served well first on the Lochaber District Council and then on the Arisaig and District Community Council. But it was as a pastor that he will be best remembered, for he was greatly loved by his people, young and old. He particularly enjoyed the company of the elderly, and shared their enjoyment of folklore and all things Gaelic.

He was appointed a Canon of the diocese in 1981. Shortly after this came the first signs of ill-health, but the final deterioration came rapidly and painfully and he died in the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, on 13th August, 1983.

A tribute to his popularity among the clergy was the large number of priests who gathered from all parts of Scotland to attend his funeral. The church in Arisaig was much too small to contain the large congregation, and crowds stood in the rain to follow the Mass by loud-speakers, before bearing the remains of Canon Gillies to Morar for burial.

Gu'n robh 'fhois ann an sith.

Rev. Patrick Joseph Byrne—28th September, 1983

The sudden death of Father Patrick Joseph Byrne in the early hours of Wednesday, 28th September, 1983 sent shock waves of disbelief throughout the diocese, as only the previous days he had been at the Spanish meeting and had been full of life in the company of his fellow priests from all over Scotland, reminiscing about the happy but hard days in Valladolid, Spain, over twenty-five years ago.

Patrick Joseph was the eldest of the four sons of Patrick Byrne and Annie Daniel. He was born on 2nd April, 1933, in Uddingston, Lanarkshire and baptised by his uncle, Father Joseph Daniel in the Church of St. John the Baptist on 9th April, 1933.

Father Byrne's first faltering steps in formal education began in his local Catholic primary school, St. John's, Uddingston, in 1938 and continued in St. Aloysius', Springburn. In 1943 he transferred to St. Aloysius' College, Garnethill, where he remained till 1947.

The first signs of his vocation to the priesthood were by now beginning to manifest themselves when he decided to enter the national junior seminary of St. Mary's College, Blairs, Aberdeen, in 1947. The four years he spent there were important, formative and very happy years of growth in the spiritual, physical and intellectual field. He treasured many grateful and happy memories of his years in Blairs and only two years ago returned there to celebrate a Mass of Thanksgiving during his Silver Jubilee Year.

The young boy was by now developing into a young man and the strong influence of the Catholic home, the example and inspiration of loyal and devoted parents and the benefits which the Catholic schools and minor seminary offered in abundance, were beginning to bear rich fruits in the life and development of the aspiring priest. The time had now come to enter into the final phase of sacerdotal training and Father Paddy Joe was privileged to be allowed to complete his preparation for the mission in the hallowed halls of the Royal Scots College, Valladolid, Spain. Here was a country rich in all that was best in Catholic tradition and culture and this young man gladly seized on the opportunity to embark on this great adventure at the end of September, 1951.

The Scots College in Spain had only re-opened twelve months previously, due to the effects of the Spanish Civil War. It was with the spirit of an ecclesiastical pioneer that he set out on this important and momentous journey in life. The next six years were to prove decisive in strengthening the vocation, developing the natural talents and preparing him for the rewarding pastoral mission which lay ahead of him in his native West of Scotland. Over and above the spiritual formation of the man, the College offered a sound philosophical and theological course and Father Paddy Joe developed other natural talents in the field of music, drama and sport. His great love of Spain and all it gave him in those formative years was borne out in his life as a priest. His preaching and teaching was influenced strongly by the great mystics of the Spanish Church like St. Teresa of Avila and St. John of the Cross. The famed pilgrim shrines of Lourdes, Compostela, Avila and Loyola became popular and accessible places to be explored and sources to deepen the spiritual reality of life. The spiritual experience he gained during those years was later to benefit so many people in Scotland in the service of his priestly ministry. The seeds sown then developed into a life-long love of the country and its people, which caused Father Byrne to return to Spain almost every year on holiday.

The climax to those years of preparation was rewarded on 6th April, 1957, when in the chapel of the Royal Scots College, Valladolid, Patrick Joseph Byrne was raised to the sacred priesthood by Bishop William Hart of Dunkeld, a past student of this same College himself. Two months later in June, 1957, Father Paddy Joe returned to Scotland eager and devoted to giving the Church in the Archdiocese of Glasgow the fruits of those years of prayer, formation and hard work. The great adventure now entered a new era and sphere in the life of Father Byrne.

His first appointment was to St. Luke's in the Gorbals district of Glasgow. The area was in the process of change with the old tenement buildings being replaced with the new high-rise flats. It is a tribute to the priests of the time that despite all the upheaval, the parish still managed to maintain the sense of community which had been evident among the tenement dwellers. As churches go, St. Luke's was a relic from the past. The church itself was on ground level with the school above and the parochial house in the playground. This brought about a bond of love between priest and schoolchildren, and often Father Byrne could be seen walking through the playground with a string of children on either side. They loved their priest who visited the classrooms regularly and taught them hymns which he accompanied on the guitar—for he was a talented musician and singer.

During the twelve and a half years of Father Byrne's stay in St. Luke's his talents were used in the various sodalities and guilds. St. Luke's Boys' Club had the distinction of getting the boys to be not only footballers but also boys who were willing to attend their Sunday Church meeting as well, a task that was becoming increasingly difficult elsewhere. The well-prepared talks which the chaplain gave were an encouragement to the young men to make something of their lives and many of them did just that.

In February 1970 there came a change to St. Matthew's, Bishopbriggs, very different from St. Luke's. This was an area of growth with new housing estates changing the character of the village and plenty of priestly work to be done. Soon a second primary school was opened—St. Helen's, and Sunday Mass was celebrated in that school to try and accommodate the ever increasing Catholic population in the Woodhill area. St. Matthew's Church could not cope with the numbers. In 1973 this led to the foundation of St. Dominic's parish.

It became obvious that a new Catholic secondary school was needed in Bishopbriggs and with Father Kelly's backing Father Byrne gathered a committee of Catholic parents who worked very hard to ensure that the secondary education of their children would be the best obtainable. Turnbull High School was the excellent result of the combined efforts of priest and people, and Father Byrne became the first chaplain to the school—a post he was to hold for seven years. The school opened as an annexe to Bishopbriggs High School in September, 1974, and many problems which might have arisen were already anticipated and solved, for Father Paddy Joe had been a founder member of the Bishopbriggs Council of Churches and was a well-liked and respected figure in the community.

In the midst of this hectic activity came another change to All Saints', Barmulloch—back to the high-rise flats, but this time the flats were 32 storeys high, and our priest soon became an expert in dealing with broken-down lifts, for he believed that parochial visitation of the people was essential for the parish community. He was still travelling daily to Turnbull High, and had a concern for the primary children in neighbouring parish schools, for the All Saints' children had no school of their own. But his work did not stop with the young; the women of the parish were banded together to form a branch of the Union of Catholic Mothers. The importance of the mother in the home was very clear to Paddy Joe. His own parents, particularly his mother had played a significant rôle in his life. He liked nothing better than to go home to his mother after the Monday round of golf—an excellent evening meal was always assured, and the topics of conversation ranged far and wide. His mother's early and sudden death in 1967 was a heavy blow to the family, but her sister Nancy soon opened her door to welcome her "family" and their priest friends.

The formidable sight of Fathers Fitzgibbon and Byrne would have given the impression in Barmulloch that the parish was built on a firm foundation and indeed it was. The two priests worked well together and hoped to unite the parish even more with a parochial hall. It was not to be, for permission to build and the finance necessary was hard to come by. Father Byrne had now taken on the post of Diocesan Chaplain to the U.C.M., succeeding his uncle, Canon Joseph Daniel, and he was proud to follow in the footsteps of such a distinguished churchman. The sight of the little orange Volkswagen (to be replaced later by a white one) could be seen in parishes throughout the Archdiocese as the Diocesan Chaplain visited and encouraged the mothers in their vocation to the Church.

But the heavy schedule of work was taking its toll and in July, 1979, he suffered a severe heart attack shortly after a holiday in his beloved Spain. A stay in the Bon Secours Hospital helped him to recover and he was soon back in All Saints', though somewhat apprehensive about his health. This did not prevent him giving of his best in his priestly work.

In August, 1981, his superiors asked Father Paddy Joe to join the staff of St. Andrew's Cathedral. As in all his work as a priest, he accepted the will of those in charge as God's will for him, and he now began a new apostolate—no schools, no children, no sodalities, but the endless round of Masses and Confessions—providing a service in the city for visitors and shoppers, a very necessary and demanding sphere of work—he accepted the task and got on with it. 1982 was to see two outstanding events in his priestly career. In April he celebrated his Silver Jubilee in the Priesthood—a milestone in any priest's life. In June he was involved in the Papal Mass at Bellahouston. He accepted the responsibility of the clergy vesting station in the Palace of Art, knowing full well he would see little or nothing of the event itself. His attitude was typical of the man—he was involved and that was enough for him. Imagine his delight when circumstances meant a dash in a police car from the Palace of Art to the Papal sacristy with extra vestments and his meeting the Holy Father as he descended from the Popemobile after the tour of the Park. Paddy Joe was walking on air for weeks afterwards.

The year ended with a visit to his brothers and their families in Australia, a present for his Jubilee. The bonds of family ties had always been strong and Paddy Joe was happy among his nieces and nephews. All were told the story of "How I met the Pope" several times over. He came back to Scotland content in finding the Australian Byrnes doing so well.

Despite his indifferent health he continued to devote himself to the work of a Cathedral priest, but found it more and more taxing. In the Autumn he took a short break down the coast to prepare himself for the coming winter months. He had begun the new session of the U.C.M. with a series of talks to the mothers on the Holy Mass for the Eucharist was the centre of his life. Very often Father Paddy Joe was to be found making his daily Holy Hour before the Blessed Sacrament in the Cathedral, when his friends called to see him.

On Wednesday, 28th September, 1983, the Cathedral was not opened at 7 a.m. as usual. On enquiry it was discovered that the Lord had taken Paddy Joe during the night. He had left everything in his room ready for the morning Mass. Instead his Master had taken him to the Eternal Banquet.

The Funeral Mass was concelebrated on Tuesday, 4th October, by the Archbishop of Glasgow, three other bishops and a host of priests from the archdiocese and beyond, with the participation of a congregation so vast that the Cathedral could not hold them all. It was followed by the interment in the priests' plot at St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth. R.I.P.

Right Rev. Mgr. Samuel J. Kilpatrick, D.D.—3rd October, 1983

Everyone who was consulted about this notice and about what should be included in it was insistent that no matter what was recorded about the events of Mgr. Kilpatrick's life the obituary must do his memory justice. It might seem strange because the record of his life is ample evidence of a priest who was wholehearted in his devotion to the Church and in his work made an outstanding contribution to the life of the Church in the Archdiocese of Glasgow. He served three Archbishops so faithfully that they confirmed him in his appointment as their personal helper in administration and this in spite of his indifferent health. Forty-one years spent in the administration of the diocese is of itself eloquent testimony that he was no ordinary individual but was possessed of very special qualities. Those who were consulted were anxious because they feared that a mere catalogue of his work might indicate a cold, efficient, clinical administrator and would not reveal the lovely character of the person who was so efficient in administration. It is to be hoped that something of that warm, simple and gentle personality will emerge in this obituary.

Monsignor Kilpatrick was born in Motherwell on 31st March, 1904. He was one of eight children. His father was from Greenock, his mother from Germany. It was a very distinguished family. Two of the sons became priests; two of the daughters joined the Good Shepherd Congregation and have spent their lives in India; one son died in infancy and the other two became teachers; the remaining daughter qualified as a doctor. The father of the family was a railway clerk and was a well known figure in the old High Street Station in Glasgow. The home that the parents created was truly an ideal Catholic one.

Samuel went to Our Lady's School in Motherwell, to Blairs College in Aberdeen and to the Scots College in Rome where he distinguished himself and graduated with a Doctorate in Theology. His first priestly appointment was to St. Francis Xavier's in Carfin where he joined Father Thomas Taylor and Father John Murphy. The appointment lasted only six months but his time in Carfin was among his most cherished memories. He served for a year in Our Lady of Lourdes in Cardonald with Father James Durkin who was a close friend and mentor until his death in 1952. In 1931 he was appointed Secretary to the Archbishop and joined Monsignor Daly and Father James Ward in the Archbishop's Office in 160 Renfrew Street. It was a part-time appointment and he shared his time between the work in the Office and work in St. Joseph's, North Woodside Road. St. Joseph's had been a Jesuit parish and had been given over to the secular clergy just one year before. Father James Kelly was the first parish priest and he and his assistant priests were given the onerous and delicate task of winning the support and affection of the people of the area. Over the years the Jesuit Fathers had won a very special place in the hearts of the parishioners and naturally they were not at all happy at their departure. Everyone who knew Monsignor Kilpatrick would agree that no better person could have been chosen for such a troublesome situation. The parish did settle down in time and that achievement was due in no small measure to the industry, tact, patience and diplomacy of the priests who served the parish in those early years, and not least to Monsignor Kilpatrick.

It was at this time that he acquired his first motor bike and he became a familiar figure in the city as he commuted between St. Joseph's and the Office. He had a lifelong interest in anything mechanical and nothing pleased him better than to be given an opportunity to effect a mechanical repair. Faulty typewriters, duplicating machines and even at times the small telephone exchange in the Office yielded to his patient, persuasive skill. It must be said that he always managed to reassemble anything which he had taken to pieces and that his repairs were generally successful.

He was at St. Joseph's until 1943. He never really enjoyed good health and suffered from chest trouble. The slightest touch of fog during the winter months had him coughing and struggling for breath. At this time he suffered a serious illness and was a long time recovering. The Archbishop appointed him to St. Joseph's in Milngavie but was reluctant to lose the services of such a valuable priest in his Office and when he recovered sufficiently he began commuting between Milngavie and the Office. Five years later he became parish priest in Christ the King and was destined to serve there for the next 29 years.

Father William McGhee was his predecessor there and had managed to establish a private primary school. The Glasgow Corporation could not see their way to providing a school and Father McGhee was hoping that the private school would grow sufficiently in numbers and the Corporation would be forced to take it over.

The present generation has lived through a massive expansion in school building and take for granted the provision of Catholic schools in this programme. In 1948 the situation was not just as satisfactory and in many cases the only way of securing the provision of a Catholic school was to start a private school which would be taken over. This method was used in those days in a few areas and Christ the King Parish was in fact one of the pioneers. Monsignor Kilpatrick threw himself into a campaign for his school. He lobbied councillors and officials to secure the take-over of St. Mirrin's, and used to retell with glee of his meeting with the then Director of Education in Glasgow, Dr. Stewart MacIntosh. They were standing at the gates of King's Park, directly opposite the wooden church and Dr. MacIntosh said "Father Kilpatrick, there will never be enough Catholic children in this area to justify the provision of a school". He was proved false. Monsignor Kilpatrick's unceasing efforts finally paid off and the little private school was taken over by Glasgow Corporation. At the present time there are two primary schools in the parish and both have capacity rolls. One of the results of the take-over of St. Mirrin's and of similar take-overs in other areas, was that the provision of Catholic schools by the authorities when a new parish was founded became the more normal procedure.

Christ the King Church was a wooden structure. Monsignor's dream was to provide a worthy church for his people. The restrictions on church building in the years immediately after the war prevented an early start, but at the first easing of these restrictions in the mid-1950's he wasted no time in pursuing the necessary permissions. He had a very clear idea of his requirements. The church had to be simple in design, he did not want anything too ornate. It had to be devotional, bright, comfortable, everyone to have an unobstructed view of the altar, no future maintenance problems. Once he had detailed his requirement he let the architect get on with the design. As the building progressed, being on the spot himself and with the practical skills he had acquired over the years he acted virtually as an extra master of works. The new church was completed in 1960 and is an eloquent monument to his memory. It is simple, devotional and comfortable and so reflecting his personality is a monument also to those very qualities which he himself possessed.

His next dream was to provide a suitable church hall. Where he had succeeded against the local authority in the provision of the school, and with the church authorities in providing the church, he did not have the same success with a new hall. Diocesan commitments could not allow the necessary financial commitment and all his persuasive powers failed to win the necessary permission.

For forty-one years of his life he filled the dual rôle of pastor in the parish, and Secretary and Chancellor in the diocese. The demands of the Archbishop's Office, which increased as the years passed, did not allow him to give as much time as he would have wished to the parish. In pastoral care for his people he had to choose his priorities. The choices he made are a further indication of his character. It goes without saying that the celebration of Mass was his first priority, but apart from that the highest priority was given to the sick especially to those near death. He gave special attention to the families who suffered bereavement. A most generous proportion of his time was allocated to this. It is not surprising that he should have given such care to the sick, one of his principal devotions was to Our Lady of Lourdes. Mention must be made too of his love for the public devotions in the church.

The most noteworthy and prominent feature of his life was undoubtedly the contribution he made to the life of the diocese. Those forty-one years spent in the Office as Secretary from 1931 and as Chancellor from 1948 merit a page to themselves in any book of records. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday of those years, apart from holidays or illness, he was to be found at his desk engaged in the administration of the diocese. He sent out innumerable dispensations, receipts, circular letters, confirmation arrangements, clerical appointments and replies to nearly all the letters the Archbishop received. It is the kind of work which initially carries a fascination and interest but the glamour soon fades and the tedious routine and repetition of it all can become the most terrible drudgery. As with everything else he ever tackled in life, Monsignor Kilpatrick was meticulous in ensuring that it was properly discharged. He took quiet pride in clearing his desk every working day, nothing was left till the morrow, there was no room for procrastination.

He served three Archbishops and to each of them he gave outstanding and unswerving personal loyalty. In fact he was loyal to all his friends and colleagues. The parish and its affairs were never the subject of gossip in the Archbishop's Office, nor were the affairs of the Office subject for comment in the parish. We cannot exaggerate the praise due to him for the efficient way he administered the Archbishop's business nor could the Diocese ever repay the debt they owe this loyal servant.

To cover those forty-one years in two short paragraphs is to do less than justice, but to tell the story in its reality would be to give a boring catalogue of repetitious tasks being performed exactly and conscientiously. Boring tedium and repetition is precisely what those years were—even the change from Secretary to Chancellor made no great difference to the kind of work he was doing. He had to bring himself to do each day what he had done the day before. He did this, bringing to it an enthusiasm and freshness as if he were doing it for the first time. This kind of work does not carry the excitement of the pastoral scene, where, although at first sight it might seem to have the same repetitious nature, each day seen through the eyes of faith has its own magic in the continuing revelation of the Mystery of God, of his goodness and providence. Monsignor Kilpatrick perhaps had keener eyes of faith than most of us and saw the same revelation of the Mystery of God in the endless typing of letters and certificates and because of that was able to tackle the work with fresh enthusiasm.

He was not ambitious for recognition or for honours. He was content to find satisfaction in carrying out his work to the best of his ability. Honour did come to him. He was made Privy Chamberlain to the Holy Father in 1954, and Prelate of Honour in 1972.

In 1972 he retired as Chancellor and for five years devoted himself full time to the parish. He retired from that in 1977, but during his retreat he continued to serve the Church. He supplied in Our Lady of Loreto Parish, Dalmuir, and when Father McCallion was seriously ill he practically ran the parish. He continued helping out when the new parish priest was appointed and help in Mass and confessions was given up till shortly before his death.

His care for the sick spilled over into his relationship with his fellow priests and he was a faithful visitor during their illnesses. One could count on the fingers of one hand the number of his fellow priests' funerals where he was not present at the Requiem Mass.

It was a great privilege to know him, an even greater privilege to work with him. His life and career in the Priesthood is eloquent testimony to the intense loyalty he had for the Church, for his Archbishop, and for his friends and colleagues, but the outstanding quality which comes most readily to mind when one thinks of him or speaks about him is his gentleness. The comments passed about this obituary in its preparation, bear this out. Those who declared they had never heard him raise his voice, or those who never heard him speak bitterly about anyone, or those who said simply that he was so gentle.

His devotion to Our Blessed Lady must end this notice. He visited her shrine at Lourdes almost every year and undoubtedly it was there that he found his great love for the sick and dying and it was there too that he found the simplicity and gentleness which characterised him.

Christ the King Church held a capacity congregation on Friday, 7th October, feast of Our Lady of the Rosary, when Archbishop Winning and a great number of priests concelebrated the Funeral Mass prior to the interment in Old Kilpatrick Cemetery. R.I.P.

Rev. Patrick Rice—3rd October, 1983

The announcement of a priest's sudden death has become sadly familiar to the Catholic community of the West of Scotland in recent months. When it became known that Father Patrick Rice had died suddenly on 3rd October when on holiday in Spain the sense of shock was heightened by the fact that his death and burial had occurred so far from home and friends.

Born in Rutherglen on May 3rd, 1913, Patrick Rice received his early education in the local St. Columbkille's School after which he spent three years with the Marist Brothers at Dumfries before proceeding to St. Mary's College, Blairs, and St. Peter's College, Bearsden, to pursue his studies for the priesthood.

After ordination in St. Andrew's Cathedral Glasgow on 29th June, 1938, Father Rice was appointed to Dalry and Kilwinning, then part of the Archdiocese of Glasgow. After a few months of country life he was transferred to Christ the King, King's Park in December, 1938. This second appointment was also of comparatively short duration and in February, 1940, he was once more on the move, this time to St. Patrick's, Anderston in the city centre. So in these early years of his priesthood he had the invaluable experience of living and working in every variety of parish. On the frequent occasions when we met together Father Rice's clerical friends were left in no doubt that he enjoyed his priestly work in all of these parishes but most of all the five years he spent in St. Patrick's. Those were the war years and St. Patrick's, with its huge Catholic population, gave ample scope for a priest of Father Rice's unbounded energy and enthusiasm. Unfailing good humour and a realistic approach to life ensured that in Father Rice the people of St. Patrick's had a priest well equipped to assist them in coping with the many problems of war-time Glasgow. In later years he always derived great pleasure from meeting up with St. Patrick's parishioners now widely dispersed throughout the city and beyond.

In December, 1945, he was appointed to St. John's, Port Glasgow, and in October of the following year was assigned to assist Father Joe Sweeney in the foundation of the new parish of Holy Family, Port Glasgow.

In those early post-war years an ambitious programme of house-building had been initiated to accommodate the people from the over-crowded town centres and the diocesan authorities made heroic efforts to cater for the religious needs of the dispersed flock in their new environment. During the ten year period, 1945-55, no fewer than 60 new parishes were established in the area covered by the Archdiocese of Glasgow at the beginning of the decade but which, by the end of the decade, had become the Western Province of Glasgow, Motherwell and Paisley. Holy Family, Port Glasgow, was one of the first of these new parishes to be established.

These were difficult times. While families were overjoyed at being rehoused in decent surroundings they missed the support of the well-established communities which had been disrupted in the process of dispersal. The building of new houses was given top priority; often to the total neglect of other amenities. It was only in later years that the ill effects of this lopsided policy would be recognized in official circles.

It was in such adverse circumstances that Father Sweeney and Father Rice faced the herculean task of first identifying their flock and then welding them into a thriving Christian community. The only way to achieve this was by constant house to house visitation, a duty to which Father Rice applied himself with his customary energy. While striving to cater for the needs of all the parishioners, his special apostolate was to the young people of the parish. The additional handicaps of having no church and living in a somewhat spartan "pre-fab" never seemed to diminish his cheerfulness.

In response to an appeal from Bishop Black, Father Rice volunteered for service as a chaplain to the Royal Navy in July, 1951, and during the next eight years he carried out the full range of chaplain's duties in all the principal naval establishments in England and overseas. The many friendships formed during these years which were maintained for the rest of his life bear eloquent testimony to the effectiveness of his apostolate.

On his return to the diocese in 1959, Father Rice was appointed parish priest of St. Fillan's, Houston, and two years later was transferred to St. Joseph's, Clarkston. In 1966 came the appointment which undoubtedly gave him the greatest satisfaction—as parish priest of Holy Family, Port Glasgow, now a firmly established parish with a well appointed church and presbytery which owed so much to his pioneering labours.

In addition to fulfilling his duties as a parish priest, Father Rice was also called upon to serve the Diocese in a wider capacity, as a Religious Examiner from 1960, and as a member of the Area Education Committee from 1967.

By 1972 it had become necessary for Father Rice to curtail his activity and so he was transferred to the less exacting charge of St. Anthony's, Johnstone, and it was from there that failing health brought about his retirement in September 1975.

But retirement didn't mean inactivity and Father Rice managed to keep himself involved in the pastoral work which had been his principal preoccupation throughout the years by supplying for other priests at holiday time or to cope with some unforeseen emergency. He had just completed a three months stint of supply work in various parishes before setting off for Spain on what would prove to be his final holiday.

Cheerfulness and good humour made Patrick Rice a good companion. Generosity and loyalty made him a reliable friend. A solid if undemonstrative piety added to these natural qualities ensured that in Father Patrick Rice many people would have a priest from whom they could derive great strength and comfort.

May he rest in peace.

PERSONAL PRELATURE OF THE HOLY CROSS AND OPUS DEI—Personal Prelatures are juridical structures of a secular character governed by a Prelate and erected by the Holy See to carry out specific pastoral or missionary activities. The general norms on personal Prelatures are contained in the Code of Canon Law—canons 294 to 297. Each has its own statutes approved by the Holy See. Opus Dei is a personal Prelature, international in its scope, which aims to spread throughout all sectors of society a deep awareness of the universal call to sanctity and apostolate in the fulfilment of one's ordinary profession or job. It is formed by a Prelate with his own clergy and by lay people, men and women, who in virtue of a divine vocation freely join the Prelature. Vicar Regional for Great Britain: The Very Rev. Deanery Changes—Thursday, 19th August, 1982

The Bishop of Aberdeen announced the formation of a new deanery, formerly part of St. Mary's Deanery, called St. Columba's which would comprise the rural parishes which were formerly part of the City Deanery, which, as reconstituted, retains the name of St. Mary. The Orkney and Shetland parishes became part of the Highland Deanery of St. Joseph's.

St. Margaret's Church, IrvineTuesday, 31st August, 1982

Bishop Taylor of Galloway dedicated the new church of St. Margaret, Castlepark, Irvine. This was an extension to the previous Oratory of St. Margaret, which has served the community since 1976, when it was opened by Bishop Joseph McGee. Now the parish of St. Margaret enjoys a new building, designed with a dual purpose—for worship and for community life in the parish. This has been achieved by architect Sam Gilchrist of Irvine, by use of a screen to divide the worship area from the hall. The builder was J. Laidlaw & Sons Ltd. Ayr. The church interior is of Fyfestone, with an exterior finish in Barra Shell to match the existing house and old oratory. The opening celebration was enhanced by the presence of Bishop McGee, who preached the homily and who had initiated the project.

Deer Abbey—Sunday, 5th September, 1982

The annual pilgrimage attracted about 100 people. This year it included members of the Episcopal parish of St. Drostan in New Deer. The previous year in very inclement weather Bishop Conti of Aberdeen had blessed a memorial to Our Lady and St. Drostan and once again the bad weather forced the congregation to take shelter, this time in St. Drostan's at the kind invitation of the Rector, Canon Denis Bovey. The monks of Pluscarden Abbey sang Vespers.

New Church opened at CaldercruixSunday, 3rd October, 1982

Bishop Francis Thomson of Motherwell visited Caldercruix, for the Solemn Opening of the new St. Mary's Church.

Over 500 parishioners gathered to assist at the Bishop's Mass. No fewer than 35 priests, including several ordained from the parish, were concelebrants.

The building of St. Mary's was started the previous winter, and the church was completed in June, around the time of the Pope's visit. A plaque blessed by the Pope at Bellahouston Park for the new church stands at the door to commemorate the event.

The parish of St. Mary was established in 1879 to care for the population of the growing mining village of Longriggend. From 1881, Mass was celebrated in a school built by Father John Linster. The church of St. Mary was opened in 1924.

The decline of the mining industry in the area brought great changes as people moved out of the mining villages to find new work and better housing.

By 1952, the population of Longriggend had dwindled to a handful, while the modern housing estate in nearby Caldercruix was a growing community.

With the support of the local M.P. for Coatbridge and Airdrie at that time, Mr. James Dempsey, the parish was moved to Caldercruix and a church was built there in 1954.

The parish celebrated its centenary in 1979. By this time, the church, built in the shadow of post-war shortages and lack of funds, was showing signs of deterioration. The people of the parish petitioned Bishop Thomson for a new church. Work began in August 1981.

There was a strong Polish presence at special Mass in St. James's Church, Renfrew, for the dedication of a memorial to the memory of three Polish servicemen who lost their lives attempting to control an incendiary bomb in St. James's in the 1941 Blitz.

The memorial, dedicated by Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley, was unveiled in the Lady Chapel. It takes the form of a picture of Our Lady of Czestochowa which was originally presented shortly after the blitz and was itself nearly destroyed in a malicious fire in St. James's Hall in 1962 and a plaque bearing the names of the three Poles—Lance Corporal P.M. Radke (27), Airman Z. Sokolowski (24) and Airman A. Ptazkowski (27). They belonged to the 309 Squadron of the Polish Air Force. The plaque was designed by Mr. Eugene Waclawski and the music was provided by the Polish Youth Choir, Glasgow.

Beatification of Jeanne Jugan Mass—Thursday, 28th October, 1982

Paisley diocese marked the beatification of Jeanne Jugan, foundress of the Little Sisters of the Poor, with a special Mass in St. Laurence's Church, Greenock. Principal celebrant, Bishop Stephen McGill, had ten concelebrants. A combined choir of pupils of St. Laurence's and St. Kenneth's schools led the singing and earned commendation from Bishop McGill for their effective rendering of the new Mass composed by the Little Sisters for the Beatification.

The homily was delivered by Rev. Bernard J. Canning, assistant, St. Laurence's and one of the chaplains to the Little Sisters, Greenock. He recalled that three of the four homes of the Little Sisters in Scotland had been founded in the lifetime of Bl. Jeanne Jugan—Glasgow in 1862, Edinburgh and Dundee in 1863 and the fourth, five years after her death, was established in Greenock in 1884. Acknowledging the generosity of the people of Inverclyde and elsewhere that make the work of the Little Sisters possible, the homilist concluded by saying that "as we praise God for the Beatification of his servant, Jeanne Jugan, we should resolve to imitate her in her holiness because she was more than a 'do-gooder'. She did good because of the love of God that was in her heart; to trust more readily in God's Providence and to make present in our own little world some of the compassion, charity and thoughtfulness that characterised her life..."

Dedication of Newly Extended St. Ninian's Church, Gourock

Wednesday, 15th December, 1982

Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley officiated at the dedication of the newly extended St. Ninian's Church, Gourock. The enlargement of the 102-year-old church was planned in 1981 when Greenock architects J. G. Quigley and Partners were given an open brief to redesign the existing church to provide a doubling of seating capacity from 240. At the dedication ceremony more than 600 people participated. The architects saw themselves having three objectives for the revised church plan—to retain the identifiable characteristics of St. Ninian's over the century of the church's existence, to open the approaches and the setting of the church from the existing narrow constraints of Royal Street and the entrance design and to incorporate energy conservation without affecting comfort levels.

The new sanctuary was sited at the west end of the extension adjoining the presbytery while the new layout allowed the retention of the old sanctuary around which a day chapel has been created for week-day services and to act as a creche for children on Sundays. Adjoining the day chapel is the sacristy which has been altered and enlarged with direct access to the main entrance. As the church was designed in the Year of the Disabled it was felt that a ramped approach to the entrance would be of greater service than steps.

The main contract was awarded in January, 1982 to A. Robertson and Co. of Greenock and work commenced on the site on 1st February. Among the many local sub-contractors was local artist and glazier Edward Harkness of Gourock Glazing who with his son, Edward, executed the stained glass windows from designs by Kevin Quigley of J.G. Quigley and Partners, the architects, and according to a colour scheme by May Roxburgh. The focus of the windows is on the Resurrection and new life, a programme which St. Ninian's inaugurates as it enters its second century with its new extension.

The new sanctuary incorporates the font from the old church while the altar and ambo are constructed from a combination of altar rails from the existing St. Ninian's and marble from the Papal altar of Bellahouston Park, a fact that is recorded on a plaque unveiled at the church entrance. The marble work was expertly carried out by Thomas MacMillan and his son, Stephen of T. MacMillan, marble, stone and slate specialists, St. Ninian's Road, Paisley.

Concelebrating Mass with Bishop McGill were the present parish priest, Rev. Patrick Durcan—who also in December 1971 opened St. Fergus' Church, Ferguslie Park—his assistant, Rev. Patrick Brannan; Mgr. Matthew Provost Kinsella, Vicar-General of Paisley and former assistants of Gourock, Canon Hugh Gallagher, Canon Thomas Grace, Rev. Thomas Nolan and Rev. Arthur Kilpatrick.

Local churches represented at the dedication included St. John's Church of Scotland whose minister, Rev. Ian Strachan, presented a Sunday Lectionary for use in the new church.

Among the principal guests were Provost Harry Mulholland of Inverclyde District Council and Inverclyde Chief Executive Ian Wilson.

Centenary Celebrations in Cumnock—14-16th December, 1982

The parish in Cumnock was founded in 1850, but there was no church there until the Marquess of Bute built St. John the Evangelist's in 1882. To mark the centenary of this event, a new parochial hall was named the Centenary Hall, and the celebrations centred around the old and new buildings.

On 14th December, 1982, the hall was officially opened and blessed by Bishop Maurice Taylor of Galloway. As it was near to Christmas, the primary school children performed a Nativity Play, and then the youth gave an effective rendering in mime and dance of Jesus Christ, Superstar. The evening was concluded by a disco for the young people.

On 16th December the thanksgiving for a hundred years of worship was expressed in a Concelebrated Mass in the Church. The principal celebrant was Bishop Taylor, and the concelebrants included Bishop Joseph McGee, Father Gilmour Ommer, the parish priest, and the priests who had served in the parish, namely Canon George McCafferty, Father Nicholas Murphy, Father Thomas McGread and Father John Kinsler, together with priests from the deanery. The congregation included most of the ministers in the area. After the Mass there was an informal gathering in the Centenary Hall.

St. Joseph's Academy, Kilmarnock—Thursday, 17th February, 1983

The pupils of St. Joseph's Academy moved into their present premises at Grassyards Road, Kilmarnock on 23rd August, 1955.

On the occasion of the silver jubilee in August, 1980 it was decided to convert a former staff room into a chapel and this was to be done, at the school's expense, through the combined efforts of the parents, pupils—past and present—and teachers of the school. Professional help was enlisted only for plumbing work and for paper hanging. Electrical work was done by pupils and teachers under the supervision of former pupils who were qualified tradesmen and joinery and art-work were taken on by teachers and pupils.

Because of the fact that the oratory was built by self-help it was not completed until February, 1983, and on 17th of that month Bishop Maurice Taylor of Galloway, assisted by five priests who had served as chaplains to the school, celebrated the inaugural Mass. Those who were present at the Mass were there at the invitation of the Rector, Mr. Hugh Matthews, and were made up of as many as possible of the parents, pupils, teachers and benefactors of the school as could be accommodated.

The oratory is meant for use for class Masses and for private prayer and has already been a source of great blessings and comfort to all sections of the school.

St. Peter's Primary School, Aberdeen

Wednesday, 2nd March, 1983

In the presence of Bishop Mario Conti, Mgr. John Copland V.G., and Church Representative on the Grampian Regional Education Committee, the former Old Aberdeen school magnificently refurbished was opened as St. Peter's R.C. Primary School. Head Teacher Mrs. Joan Fenton, her staff and the children were present to hear the address and formal opening by Mr. John C. Campbell. Chairman of the Education Committee Mgr. Copland V.G. performed the dedication. The officials present were John Sorrie, Convener of the Regional Council, James D. MacNaughton, Chief Executive; James A. Michie, Director of Education and Walter Scott, Director of Architectural Services. The vote of thanks was given by John A. Porter, Deputy Chairman of the Education Committee. The pupils entertained the company.

The building, which has considerable charm and character, gives room also to the famous statue of Priest Gordon, (Father Charles Gordon) who spent his life in St. Peter's parish (1795-1855) in what was then the only parish in Aberdeen. The statue which is the work of Alexander Brodie was erected in 1855 in front of the first school site at Constitution Street and was moved to Nelson Street in 1936. The school serves the North side of the city including the growing parish at Bridge of Don.

Dedication of St. Augustine's, Langloan

Saturday, 8th May, 1983

It was an unusual occasion at St. Augustine's, Coatbridge on Saturday, but still a very happy one.

Some time ago, Parish Priest Father John Moss discovered, while looking through parish records, that the 84-year-old Pugin Church had never been consecrated.

Father Moss was joined by Bishop Thomson and seventeen former priests of the parish for Mass and the consecration ceremony.

The readings at the Mass concerned the Eucharist—a theme Father James Foley of St. Mary's, Coatbridge, took up in his sermon.

The Eucharist was the "central focus of the life of the parish, as of the Church as a whole," said Father Foley.

As the family and community of the church, some of the happiest and saddest moments of the parishioners' lives had been in St. Augustine's.

Father Foley added that although guests of other denominations were present, they could not share the Eucharist to the full, and the sadness of that should lead to a greater effort for unity.

Bishop Thomson performed the ceremony of dedication after the gospel.

Invited guests at the Mass included Coatbridge M.P. Tom Clarke, Monklands Provost Edward Cairns and Police Chief Superintendent Hugh Hamill.

Parishioners and former parishioners gathered to fill the church to its 900 capacity.

The parish was established in 1892 and the church built in 1899.

A striking feature of the building is the stained glass behind the high altar, installed to commemorate the dead of the 1914-18 war and their relatives.

The centre window shows St. Augustine with his mentor, St. Ambrose.

St. Francis of Assisi—Dedication of the Church
Thursday, 19th May, 1983

This church which was required because of the increasing congregation accommodates 200 persons. It was designed by Oliver Humphries, Architect. A presbytery has also been added to the original building which was erected in 1960, and which is now what it was originally designed to be, a hall. This new building has been described as a church in the round. The acoustics are excellent and the concelebrated Mass of Dedication was a very well orchestrated liturgy. Young instrumentalists accompanied the singing alternating with the specially built mechanical pipe organ—the work of Sandy Edmonstone of Dunning, near Perth.

It was an impressive act of worship presided over by Bishop Mario Conti who said the prayer of dedication before a large congregation.

The Opening of a Catholic Church on Arran—Tuesday, 7th June, 1983

Arran has always been a popular holiday island for many who live in the central belt of Scotland. Recently there has been quite an increase in the local Catholic population of the island. These two reasons called for the opening of a church on Arran. On 7th July, the hopes and efforts of many people over the years were realised when Bishop Colin MacPherson of Argyll and the Isles, joined by many priests, celebrated the Mass of dedication and named the new church—appropriately in the Holy Year of Our Lord's Redemption—after the Holy Cross.

Situated in the grounds of the Douglas Hotel, Brodick, the new church, a former court house, is an outstanding tribute to the design expertise of Canon Iain Gillies of Arisaig. The opening of Holy Cross Church represents a milestone in the development of the Catholic community on Arran and Mass is now celebrated in the church each Sunday.

Irish Children's Visit to Rothesay
Monday, 4th to Thursday, 14th July, 1983

One of the highlights in the life of St. Andrew's Parish in Rothesay over the last year was the visit of twenty children from Derry. These children were of mixed denomination and were "billeted" with various families in the town. The visit was organised by the parish's Justice and Peace group which financed the whole trip. The children were entertained through their stay with discos, beach barbecues, and trips near and far including one on the paddle steamer Waverley. As an event it greatly increased the understanding of many parishioners of the problems of Northern Ireland. It is hoped that it will become an annual event in the life of St. Andrew's, Rothesay.

Poles' gift to Carfin Grotto—Sunday, 28th August, 1983

Scotland's Polish community turned out in force for the blessing of a very special shrine of Our Lady at Carfin Grotto.

The Shrine to Our Lady of Czestochowa—is the gift to the Grotto of Scotland's Poles and was solemnly blessed by Cardinal Wladislaw Rubin who travelled from Rome for the occasion.

Members of the Polish community came from all parts of Scotland and the north of England. More than 1000 of them took part in the Rosary Procession that culminated in the service at the shrine.

Chaplain General, Mgr. Wincenty Drobina welcomed Bishop Joseph Devine of Motherwell and the priests from Scotland's other East European exile groups—Father Augustine Kuzma of the Ukrainian community, and Father Joseph McAndrew of the Lithuanian community.

It fell to Bishop Devine to welcome Cardinal Rubin to the diocese of Motherwell. The Cardinal, he said, was no stranger to Scotland.

He has global responsibility for the mission to Poles in exile and is also Prefect of the Congregation for the Eastern Churches in the Roman Curia.

Bishop Devine said: "Carfin is not short of statues or shrines. But I would think the whole Scots community when they come here will recognise your new shrine as one of the most beautiful.

"Each of us knows that your beloved homeland looks to that Holy Mountain for inspiration in its commitment to justice under truth and freedom under the law.

"We look to the Polish nation to inspire us in the free west with its commitment to Mary."

Cardinal Rubin thanked the Bishop for his kind words and addressed those present in their native language before blessing the new shrine dedicated to Our Lady of Jasna Gora/Czestochowa in memory of the 600th anniversary of that shrine and of the Papal Visit to Scotland last year.

The splendid costumes and lively singing made it a day to remember for the Poles and for the many Scottish friends who were privileged to share the day with them.

Installation of the Bishop of Motherwell

Thursday, 8th September, 1983

The Right Rev. Joseph Devine was installed as Bishop of Motherwell in Our Lady of Good Aid Cathedral.

The ceremony was conducted by the Most Rev. Thomas J. Winning, Archbishop of Glasgow and Metropolitan, Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray, St. Andrews and Edinburgh, gave the homily.

850 guests representing all walks of life within the boundaries of the Diocese, filled the cathedral.

Among the ecumenical guests were the Rev. William Beattie, Hamilton, the Rev. Dr. Alexander Gemmell, Wishaw and the Rev. Hugh Wyllie, Hamilton.

A further ecumenical dimension was that the Church of Scotland Audio-Visual Department made a video of the ceremony and supplied a picture for the over-flow congregation which was accommodated in St. Bride's Hall opposite the cathedral. The ceremony was recorded by Radio Scotland and on World Service.

Pride of place at the ceremony was given to Mr. Joseph Devine (83) father of the new Bishop. J.B.

Future of Paisley Secondary Schools

Sunday, 27th November, 1983

In a pastoral letter read in Paisley churches, Bishop Stephen McGill asked for co-operation and prayer in the period of consultation and debate concerning the future of secondary schools in the Paisley area. The re-organisation and provision of schools will "almost certainly mean that the number of schools will be reduced."

The letter asked "all those who are being consulted to inform themselves of what the alternatives are." They will understandably be "concerned to see that their own children will not suffer in any way from the changes that have to be made", but they should have a concern not only for the welfare of their own children and of their area "but also the welfare of the whole Catholic community of Paisley."

What all want, said the Bishop, "is to have Catholic secondary schools in the town which will really serve the needs of all our young people in the present and for the future" and "that our Catholic education will not be in any way weakened by the changes . . . but that in fact our Catholic schools may emerge stronger and even more able to prepare our young people for their adult lives . . ."

Paisley Youth Rally—Sunday, 12th June, 1983

Over a thousand of the youth of Paisley diocese packed St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley for a rally to mark the first anniversary of the visit of Pope John Paul to Scotland. Twenty priests from the diocese concelebrated Mass with principal celebrant, Rev. Charles Cavanagh, St. Charles', Paisley, the national youth co-ordinator for the Papal Visit. He wore—by courtesy of Glasgow archdiocese—the vestments worn by the Pope at the Bellahouston Mass. Also worn were the vestments made and presented for the Papal Mass by seven high schools of the diocese. On display at the lectern was the crook presented among other things by the youth of Scotland to Pope John Paul last year and which is now in the permanent possession of Bishop Stephen McGill.

The homily was delivered by Rev. Paul Francis Spencer, C.P., St. Mungo's, Glasgow and the music was under the direction of Rev. John Tormey, St. Mirin's Cathedral, with the orchestra of Trinity High School, Renfrew and supporting music by guitars of Paisley youth.

Golden Jubilee of Mgr. Ewen MacInnes V.G. Wednesday, 29th June, 1983

Bishop Colin MacPherson, together with the majority of the priests of Argyll and the Isles and priests from elsewhere, came to Morar to honour Mgr. Ewen MacInnes of the occasion of the Golden Jubilee of his ordination. An open-air Mass was celebrated in the grounds of the church. Bishop MacPherson preached, paying tribute to Mgr. MacInnes' long years of service to the diocese. It was fitting that the altar faced Loch Morar and the island which once sheltered the old 18th Century seminary. Canon MacInnes was once a member of the Blairs staff and served as Parish Priest in Castlebay, then Oban, before coming to Morar.

"Feis Bharraidh"—Sunday, 3rd July to Friday, 15th July, 1983

The first fortnight in July saw the third Gaelic festival in Barra ("Feis Bharraidh"). It began with Mass in Gaelic, the principal concelebrant being Father Colin MacInnes, parish priest of St. Barr's, Northbay, and the founder and moving spirit of the "Feis". He is assisted by many local experts in the language, music and dance of the Hebrides. The "Feis" was conceived to foster an active and practical interest in the culture and language of the Gael, as the use of Gaelic is becoming rare in the school playground and many forecast that the language is dying. Gaelic is still used in the liturgy of all the island parishes, but fewer members of the congregations have a ready familiarity with the written language.

Registered Adoption Society

Over 60 years serving the Church in Scotland

PREGNANCY?

We offer a pregnancy counselling service, help (and accommodation when possible) to expectant mothers, whether adoption is indicated or not.

ADOPTION?

We recruit and assess couples or families for children with special needs; e.g. handicapped babies; school age children; sibling groups; etc. There is a special need for families for 10-13 year olds at present in care.

FOSTERING?

Some children need families prepared to offer them a permanent commitment but they are not free for adoption.

Anyone interested in helping children in the above categories please contact us for further information or discussion, without obligation.

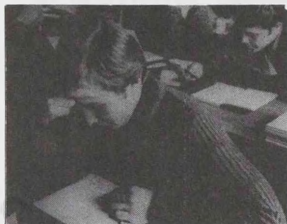

BABIES

Our lists are only open occasionally for babies except for babies with special needs, so most enquirers have to be disappointed. It is not possible to know when the lists will re-open; regular written enquiry is the only possible option.

That there might be priests...

Aid to the Church in Need distributed £22.7 million throughout the world in its 35th year of activity, the 1982 Annual Report revealed. The report concentrated on one key aspect of the work, aid for the training of priests. In 1982, through the continuing generosity of over 600,000 benefactors, Aid to the Church in Need gave £3.5 million for the training of new priests, the building of seminaries and the purchase of theological books. And over the past ten years aid under these headings has amounted to £18 million.

If you would like to help, or just to know more, please write to us at the address below
